Elton John—Made In England, "Believes" In Hollywood

Elton John is back on top once again...he just celebrated a birthday, released a highly awaited new album (Made In England, on his recently reactivated Rocket Records label) signing countless autographs in the process, and this week's Academy Awards presentation finds him an odds-on favorite to win an Oscar while hosting one of Hollywood's gala awards-night gatherings... "circle of life," indeed.

South X Southwest '95

While signed major-label artists were certainly in attendance and on parade this year (to wit: Zoo Entertainment's Matthew Sweet, WORK's Chris Whitley and Columbia's Soul Asylum, Trauma/Interscope's Bush), the South By Southwest Music Conference in Austin, Texas remains a perennial must for A&R signees and signors.

CHARLIE MINOR DEATH: Charlie Minor, former Giant Records president and current president of the new business division of Hits Magazine, was shot to death March 19, at his home in Malibu. Suzette McClure, an exotic dancer and former girlfriend of the slain executive, was booked the same day on suspicion of murder in Santa Monica. A .25 caliber semi-automatic weapon was reported found at her apartment. It was also said the suspect had been distraught over the break-up with Minor in late December or early January. The dancer was formally charged Tuesday (22) with Minor's death and Michael Duarte, Deputy District Attorney of the L.A. County D.A.'s office, also accused her of the special circumstance of lying in wait, which could bring the accused the death penalty or life imprisonment without possibility of parole in California.

Immediately upon learning of the highly respected Minor's death, record company peers and acquaintances, including Giant owner Irving Azoff, David Geffen, Sony 550 Music's Polly Anthony, A&M's Al Cafaro, Freddy DeMann and Jerry Moss, issued statements of amazement, sadness and high praise for the executive and his abilities.

A memorial service was held at A&M Records' studios in Hollywood, CA March 22. The family requested in lieu of flowers donations be sent to the Charlie Minor Memorial Fund, 14958 Ventura Blvd., Sherman Oaks, CA 91403.

CEMA TO DISTRIB ICHIBAN INT'L U.S.: CEMA president Russ Bach and Ichiban head Nina Easton announced that CEMA will handle domestic distribution for the newly formed Ichiban International label. International distribution has not been set yet.

"The purpose of the new label," explained Easton, "is to provide us [Ichiban] with an alternative outlet for product that we would perhaps have otherwise not become involved with. For example, we have never pursued the mainstream urban music world because we always felt this was almost exclusively the major label's domain. Starting Ichiban International with CEMA was a decision made after Russ and I were talking leisurely at mini-NARM. Russ' vision about the future of distribution and the industry itself are qualities that reflected in our decision. We are delighted to be able to work with CEMA; you could not ask for a more enthusiastic and professional group of people. I have the highest regard for Russ Bach and his team and we are all looking forward to a mutually prosperous future."

The new label's initial releases are from Seattle-based rapper Kid Sensation, blues songstress Francine Reed, jazz maestro Kevin Toney and newcomer Lisa Cerbone.

STAR LINE-UP FOR HUSTON AWARD DINNER: David Geffen, Jeffrey Katzenberg, George Lucas, Martin Scorsese, Barbra Streisand and Robert Zemeckis will co-chair the second John Huston Award Dinner for Artists Rights April 28, announced Elliot Silverstein, Artists Rights Foundation president.

Michael Backes, screenwriter and co-founder of Rocket Science Games, will chair the two-day Artists Rights Digital Technology Symposium April 27-28, held in conjunction with the dinner. Both events will be held at the Regent Beverly Wilshire Hotel where Steven Spielberg will be this year's recipient of the John Huston Award for Artists Rights.

For ticket reservations and general information on the symposium and dinner, contact Ted Kaufman at the Artists Rights Foundation (310) 289-5338. Special Guild and student pricing are available.

MTV MOVIE AWARDS SET FOR JUNE: MTV: Music Television announced their 4th annual "MTV Movie Awards" will be taped in L.A. June 10 for airing June 15. MTV programming and production executive v.p. Doug Herzog made the announcement.

The nominations are chosen through a national poll of MTV viewers, an audience that represents the largest demographic group of today's moviegoers. Nominations will be announced April 12. This year's show marks the return of producer Joel Gallen of Tenth Planet Productions, who produced the first two "MTV Awards" shows.

HOUSTON HOSTS NICKELODEON KIDS' AWARDS: Whitney Houston will host Nickelodeon's "8th Annual Kids' Choice Awards" May 20. The hour-long show, the only award celebration that gives kids the power to choose their favorite stars, will air exclusively on Nickelodeon. The campaign for votes began March 25 over the network, for kids across the country to vote for the awards. Albie Hecht, executive producer/v.p. production/development for Nickelodeon, said, "Nickelodeon is honored to have Whitney Houston host the '8th Annual Kids' Choice Awards.' As a past 'Kids' Choice Award' winner, it is clear that she has universal kid-appeal and is the perfect choice to host the only award show for kids."

John R. Gonta of Farmingdale, NY has been named the grand prize winner of Angel Records' Chant Escape Sweepstakes. As winner of the nationwide contest, Gonta will take a trip for two to Spain to visit the monastery of Santo Domingo de Silos. The monastery is home to the group of Benedictine Monks who recorded the multi-Platinum hit album Chant. Gonta entered the contest at Tower Records in Carle Place, NY, and his name was eventually selected out of the 35,000 nationwide entries. Pictured (l-r): Angel publicist Randal Haecker; Gonta; Angel national sales manager Mark Forlow; and Angel publicist Jennifer Perciballi.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY in New York came and went with the usual suspects, highlighted by appearances from Sarah McLachlan at Radio City Music Hall and The Chieftains at Lincoln Center's Avery Fisher Hall. The Chieftains set was part of a national tour that will carry them through the end of the month. The group's latest album The Long Black Veil, their first to be certified Gold in the U.S., pairs them with such superstars as Mick Jagger, Sting, Sinéad O'Connor and Van Morrison and has produced the hit single "Have I Told You Lately That I Love You," performed with Morrison.

FOLK DIVA JOAN BAEZ is set to record a live album at the famed Bottom Line club on successive weekends in April. Baez will be joined by a number of guests when she performs an array of songs associated with her illustrious career as well as a number of new tunes.

The artist will be joined onstage by Mary Chapin Carpenter and the McGarrigle Sisters on April 10, Janis Ian and Mary Black on April 11, Indigo Girls and Mimi Farina on April 16 and Tish Hinojosa on April 17. The album will be released on U.K.-based Grapevine Records.

STEVIE WONDER marked the release of his first studio album in almost eight years with an in-store performance in N.Y.C.'s Lexington Avenue HMV store on Monday, March 20th. The new album, Conversation Piece, was released from Motown the following day.

WITH THE THREATENED cuts to federal funding for the arts, it is particularly gratifying to note the work of the Lila Wallace-Readers Digest Fund. The organization has awarded $5.1 million to the New England Foundation for the Arts (NEFA) to underwrite its National Jazz Network for another four years. The N.Y.-based fund, the largest private supporter of jazz in the United States, has invested almost $19 million to various projects since 1991. The NEFA, out of Cambridge, MA, funds and structures cultural/artistic programs throughout the region.

Some of the members of the Jazz Network that receive grants are the Artists Collective, Hartford, CT; Jazzmobile, Inc., N.Y.C.; Jazz Institute of Chicago, IL; the Contemporary Arts Center, New Orleans, LA; and the Concepts Cultural Gallery in Oakland, CA.

OUT AND ABOUT—John Lee Dorsey appeared at the S.O.B. club's weekly Friday Live After Work Showcase on the 17th to promote his soon-to-be released Muse Records album The Watcher...

Other recent support sets include non-newcomer Carrie Newcomer playing the West-End Gate doing bits from her latest Philo/Rounder album The Bird Or The Wing; Katy Moffatt gave up some of her new Watermelon Records disc Hearts Gone Wild at the Bottom Line; sax player Joshua Redman's quartet offered selections from the new Warner Bros. set Moodswing at the Village Vanguard; and Nicholas Payton also played the Vanguard supporting release of his new Verve set From This Moment.

The Wilson sisters, also known as Heart, along with producer John Paul Jones, the former bassist of Led Zeppelin, recently were in Bad Animals studio in their hometown of Seattle for the mixing of their upcoming live album The Road Home, to be released in June on Capitol Records. The material, including a new song, "Cherry Blossom Road," was recorded during the group's five sold-out shows at the Backstage club in their hometown. Jones, who also produced the current Butthole Surfers' record, not only produced the record but joined the band onstage. Pictured (l-r): Heart's Nancy Wilson; Brian Foraker, engineer; Jones, producer; and Heart's Ann Wilson and Howard Leese.

BLACK CROWESNEWS: Chris Robinson and the boys, having already made noise on their "America Or Bust" tour by allowing fans to record, or "bootleg" the shows, now find themselves in with the big boys. Having previously announced plans to open a date for the Grateful Dead April 7 at Tampa Stadium in Florida (maybe these bootleggers stick together), the group have been invited to open dates in Europe for the Rolling Stones and Jimmy Page & Robert Plant.

While the Crowes' America album sales haven't lived up to their two previous records, the band continue to distinguish themselves as a major draw on the touring circuit. The group recently sold out five consecutive nights at The Beacon Theater in New York city.

In the meantime, look for another single/video, "Wiser Time," to be released from their latest American Recordings album. Before heading off on their European sojourn, the group will be in Los Angeles for two nights at The Pantages Theatre on May 17 and 18.

"OOOHH...OOOHH!!!" Give yourself 20 points if you recognize that classic signature line. Hint: It comes from the Golden Age of television, the '70s. Give up? How about "Hi there!?" Or the ultimate giveaway, "Did I ever tell you about my uncle...?" That's right, in the life-really-is-worth-living category, Nickelodeon will be making "Welcome Back, Kotter" a part of their "Nick at Nite" line-up starting Memorial Day, May 29.

The hit ABC series ran from 1975-79 and is best known for starting off the career of current Pulp Fiction star John Travolta as Vinnie Barbarino, the leader of the Sweathogs.

But the show was so much more than the one Sweathog; it took place in Brooklyn, NY, centering on the exploits of Gabe Kotter, played by Gabe Kaplan, and his remedial education courses, including the Sweathogs. The rest of the group included Juan Epstein (Robert Hedges), Freddie "Boom Boom" Washington (Lawrence Hilton-Jacobs) and Arnold Horshack (Ron Palillo).

Says Rich Cronin, senior vice president and general manager, Nick At Nite, "The Sweathogs are the perfect complement to Nick at Nite's Classic TV line-up. Vinnie, Horshack, Boom Boom and Epstein all embody the true spirit of both good comedy and remedial education." We couldn't agree more, and we thank you, Rich.

A THOUSAND PARDONS: In the item that ran in last week's "On The Cutting Edge" column (issue date March 25) on the band Grin, the incorrect spelling of their name was given. The I.R.S. recording artists have changed the spelling of their name to Gren. We apologize for any inconvenience (and I will be shaving my head to atone for the grievous error).

Elton John—Made In England, “Believes” In Hollywood

By Steve Baltin

Review

FOLLOWING THE WARM RECEPTION given to his 1992 album The One, Elton John found himself in a familiar place, back on top of the charts. 1994 marked the 25th consecutive year that Elton, one of the most successful and consistent artists of all time, has had a song hit the top 40. However, 1994 was not just another year for the singer/songwriter. It found him enjoying his biggest success since the mid-'70s, when John dominated the charts the way the Beatles had a decade earlier. His success with the soundtrack to the Disney hit The Lion King, coupled with the Top 10 chart standing of The One, have led many to believe John's debut release on his newly-reactivated Rocket Records, Made In England (distributed by Island Records), could be his first chart-topping album since his heyday around the time of Goodbye Yellow Brick Road, a record that still serves as his highwater mark artistically.

Once again reunited with lyricist Bernie Taupin, Made In England—released only six days prior to the Academy Awards and while John is on the road with Billy Joel to resurrect one of the biggest tours of last year—seems like a sure-fire hit. An in-store autograph signing by John and Taupin at Tower Records in Los Angeles this past week attracted thousands of fans, and the record's opening track and lead-off single, “Believe,” is already nestled in the top 20 after only three weeks and continues to bullet its way up the Pop Singles chart. This is not surprising, as the record was predetermined to be one of this spring's most anticipated albums. The only question remaining is whether or not Made In England is a worthy return to the top for the Rock 'N' Roll Hall of Famer or simply a benefactor of good timing and momentum.

A lavishly produced exercise by Greg Penny and John himself, the record conjures up the ghosts of Elton-past almost from the beginning, as it draws upon his hits from every era. The title track, an upbeat poppy number, will have listeners scratching their heads trying to recall Elton's catchy pop hit of a couple of years ago. (It was “Club On The End Of The Street.”) The CD's fourth track, the grandiose ballad “Cold,” seems to feature a taste in the middle of “Someone Saved My Life Tonight,” and John aficionados might at one point recognize strains similar to those of his biggest FM anthem, “Funeral For A Friend/Love Lies Bleeding.”

The composer John has done an admirable job of mixing up styles, throwing in “Latitude” and “Please,” a couple of numbers that have an almost honky-tonk country feel to them, more so on the former. These are in addition to his normal mix of ballads, such as “Man,” “Belfast” and “Lies,” and pop songs like the aforementioned “Made In England” and “Pain.”

Made In England certainly delivers the most one could hope for from an Elton John album in this day and age—several hit singles and some decent album material. But then again, that's always been what John has done best. And when it comes to his credentials, he is second to none. In that respect, Made In England actually is a merited return to that familiar #1 spot for the man born Reginald Dwight.

Feature

IT WAS ONLY 11 YEARS AGO that The Academy Awards created a controversy by having Ann Reinking sing Phil Collins' Oscar-nominated song “Against All Odds.” The #1 single, which was nominated for Best Song, ended up losing to Stevie Wonder's “I Just Called To Say I Love You,” but the Academy's stance on pop performers is what was remembered from that year's ceremony.

Six years later, Madonna performed her Oscar-nominated song “Sooner Or Later.” Taken from the film Dick Tracy, in which Madonna co-starred, the song went on to win, opening a door in one of Hollywood's most glamorous evenings for pop and rock artists. While the Academy Awards remain the Establishment's party (one is not most likely to see Pearl Jam winning in the next couple of years for Best Song), no longer is pop and rock shut out.

Just last year, Bruce Springsteen and Neil Young both were nominated for songs from Jonathan Demme's Philadelphia. Each performed their own composition, and Springsteen went on to take home the award.

But perhaps the ultimate sign of how the modern-day music industry has blended in with Hollywood's cinematic clique is where Springsteen celebrated his victory that night. He partied with other winners from that evening, Steven Spielberg and Tom Hanks, at a party thrown by Elton John to benefit his AIDS Foundation.

Yes, “Captain Fantastic” himself, the man who used to be best known for his outlandish costumes, has quickly established his Oscar night benefit as the post-awards celebration, scheduled to be held this year at the Four Seasons hotel in Beverly Hills. Among the members of the host committee for this year's (third annual) party are Hanks (nominated once again for Best Actor in Forrest Gump), David Geffen, Jim Carrey, Elizabeth Taylor, Whoopi Goldberg, Jeffrey Katzenberg, Liam Neeson, Bonnie Raitt and Melissa Etheridge.

Elton John

Last year's soirée raised over $150,000 for John's AIDS Foundation, and according to a spokesperson for the foundation, they are hoping to raise even more this year. Along those lines, partygoers who wish to attend the dinner and watch the telecast on one of their giant-screen TVs are paying $750 per person, while those attending only for the after-show party are being charged $250.

This year's party holds particular significance for John (while his spokesperson may downplay it) as John is expected to be this year's Springsteen. The veteran English performer, who remains one of the most beloved figures in popular music, is coming off one of his best years ever, thanks in large part to his contributions to the Lion King soundtrack. In addition to having two of the top-selling singles of last year, John is nominated three times in the Best Song category and is a prohibitive favorite to win. In fact, it would seem the only way he could lose is if those three songs split the vote.

Given the contributions he has made as a philanthropist to fighting the AIDS disease, if John walks into the Four Seasons hotel without the Oscar but sees enough of a crowd to raise even more money than last year (which seems a foregone conclusion), this year's Academy Awards will still undoubtedly have been a success for one of the biggest selling artists of all time.

Besides that, given that Raitt and Etheridge are among the members of the host committee, it would be fitting to see mainstream pop/rock music once again emerge victorious at this year's awards. And who knows? Maybe one day we might even see Trent Reznor thanking the Academy

Elton John and Bernie Taupin sign autographs at the midnight release of Made In England at Tower Records in Los Angeles.

REVIEWS By Steve Baltin

■ TLC: "Red Light Special" (LaFace 24099)

Taken from their double-Platinum album CrazySexyCool, the latest single from TLC lives up to its name as one of the sultriest, sexiest singles to come along in years. Slow and entrancing, "Red Light Special" has definitely got the groove going on. A smash.

■ NEW IDOL SONG: "Butterfly" (Pavement Music 18002)

A hard-edged guitar-driven tune, "Butterfly" might rock a little too hard for the sugar-coated tastes of adolescent America. In addition, there's nothing really special about it that warrants it getting the exposure to be a hit. It's not a bad song by any means, but it's also not anything you haven't heard a million times lately.

■ SKID ROW: "Into Another" (Atlantic 6114)

Skid Row were one of those late '80s/early '90s pop metal bands that rode the success of other bands to a #1 album. However, the times, they have a' changed. This listless brand of contrived hooks has as much chance as succeeding today as Dan Quayle ever has of being president.

■ JILL SOBULE: "I Kissed A Girl" (Atlantic 6072)

Sobule's first single is reminiscent of a kind of folksy Julianna Hatfield in the way it tells a story from an adolescent's perspective. A charming little song, equally as warm in its acoustic guitar as in its lyrics, Sobule's "I Kissed A Girl" should go over well with AAA and could score airplay at more daring Modern Rock outlets. Also, check out the cool guitar solo in the middle.

PICK OF THE WEEK

■ DILLON O'BRIAN: "Something Almost Sacred" (RCA 64308)

The second single from O'Brian's debut album shows why the singer/songwriter has been getting such a buzz on AAA and why he was one of the most sought-after songwriter around before striking out on his own. A beautiful song written for his son, "Something Almost Sacred" has the most important aspect any ballad can have—sincerity. Totally lush in its arrangement, "Something Almost Sacred" is a strong candidate to take O'Brian over to Adult Contemporary.

REVIEWS by Steve Baltin

■ MATTHEW SWEET: 100% Fun (Zoo 11081)

Sweet flirted with commercial success with the acclaimed single/video "Girlfriend" from a few years ago. However, in between that record and this one, his sixth overall and fourth for Zoo, he released Son Of Altered Beast, an album that by his own admission was "dark." The result was a record that, while garnering some good reviews, slowed his fast track to success. He should be on the road again in no time, as this CD will appeal to the fans who wanted his last record to be Girlfriend II. And the great thing about it is that Sweet has made a cheerful, rocking pop record that stands on its own, mixing up tempos and hooks with impressive ease. Highlighted by the lovely "We're The Same," it surpasses any of his previous singles efforts. A guaranteed hit at AAA, 100% Fun deserves to be Sweet's breakthrough record.

■ VARIOUS ARTISTS: Original Soundtrack: Bye Bye Love (Giant 24609)

Highly reflective of the film's likely audience, this soundtrack is a refreshing change in that it's not based on hip-hop or alternative, but targets the Adult/Contemporary crowd. Featuring a stellar list of names from the genre, including Mary Chapin Carpenter, Linda Ronstadt and Ben Taylor (James' son), the record has a strong cross-section of '60s and '70s appeal, with the most plausible radio hit to be The Proclaimers' cover of the Everly Brothers' "Bye Bye Love." Though the Proclaimers get the title song, the Everlys are represented twice on the CD, once with The Beach Boys on "Don't Worry Baby." The highlight of the record is the beautiful duet between Jackson Browne and Timothy B. Schmit of the Eagles on "Let It Be Me," a song that recalls the lush piano tunes of Browne's '70s work.

■ WATER: Nipple (MCA 11196)

Hailing from Orange County, CA, Water are an alternative quartet that it seems are being groomed to be the next Live for MCA. Their 10-song debut effort was recorded at Daniel Lanois' Kingsway Studios in New Orleans and was produced by Gavin MacKillop (Goo Goo Dolls, Toad The Wet Sprocket). On the song "Seeds," the group even sound somewhat similar to Live, but Water's style is too diverse to be compared only to one act. Their variety is the strongest thing about the record, as the group cruise through a wide styles of true alternative; not pop, not punk, not rock, but alternative. Who'd have thought we'd be missing that already? Nipple fills that gap.

■ LAURIE ANDERSON: The Ugly One With The Jewels And Other Stories (Warner Bros. 45847)

Coming so soon on the heels of her last musical album, The Ugly One... signals a true bonanza for Anderson fans, as it finds the famed singer/performance artist delivering an album of spoken word material against the backdrop of very sparse keyboard and violin arrangements. Suitably eerie and amusing, Anderson displays a gift for the underrepresented and underappreciated art form. A record that National Public Radio will be all over.

PICKS OF THE WEEK

■ MORPHINE: Yes (Ryk-odisc 10320)

The Boston-bred trio have expanded on their critically acclaimed 1993 release Cure For Pain with a more experimental album that continues to show off their "lo-sound," a style encouraged by the band's unique blend of sax, bass and drums, while showcasing leader Mark Sandman as a gifted songwriter with vision. Whether it be incorporating spoken-word into "Radar" or the beatific feel of "Sharks," Morphine show that any worries there may have been about their being one-dimensional are completely unfounded. The highlight of the CD is the closing song, where the group strips down to an acoustic base on "Gone For Good." A simple three-minute song, it is a painfully beautiful break-up song. Reminiscent of early Dylan or early Waits, it reveals a great songwriter with the promise of longevity.

■ ANNIE LENNOX: Medusa (Arista 25717)

In a move that would make most label executives shudder, Annie Lennox has delivered Medusa, an indulgent cover album of her favorite songs. Fortunately for the suits upstairs, her instincts have led her to such renowned artists as Paul Simon, Bob Marley, Neil Young, Al Green and The Clash. The liner notes (written by Lennox herself) declare this project to be a "labour of love," a claim one cannot argue after hearing the soulful cool Lennox lends to the punk classic "Train In Vain" or the orchestral plush of the current radio single "No More I Love You's." Songs like "Thin Line Between Love

And Hate," which even the Pretenders couldn't raise from tedium, become velvet smooth when bathed in Lennox's trademark alto. A gem in the current glut of cover/tribute albums, it's proof-positive this former Eurythmic hasn't lost an ounce of the fiery grace that's become such a distinction with her work. (By Karen Allen)

REVIEWS by M.R. Martinez

KAM: Made In America (East West 61754). Producers: Various.

Funk with a Farrakhan backbeat, Kam's second album on this label finds itself covering more politically incorrect territory (it's all about the young and dumb) and, at the same time, culturally provocative material. The intro of this album starts the noise, but "That's My Nigga" is as heaping a serving of funky R&B as you might find on a late night of dance madness. Kickin' flava are "Pull Ya Hoe Card," "Down Fa Mine" (with MC Ren and Dresta), "Givin' It Up" and "Nut'N Nice."

KUT KLOSE: Surrender (Keia/Elektra 61668). Producers: Keith Sweat & others.

Endless seductive groove after endless seductive groove, this music leaves little to the imagination. You want to sweat these kind of girls as they bring you Keith's special brand of R&B emotive soul. This trio seethes sex. There's a dynamic working here that will make you want to work your mate's last nerve. "Don't Change," "I Like," "Keep On" and "Giving You My Love Again" will sweat you like no female can.

PICK OF THE WEEK

2PAC: Me Against The World (InterScope 93299). Producers: Various.

This documentary album comes with a funky pedigree. Like Slick Rick, Tupac reaches out from incarceration to demonstrate that you can lock up the man, but not his spirit, nor his experiences, nor his life force. The music on this album is expertly produced and frames a voice that is not bitter yet knowing. Maybe Queen Latifah knows something the New York court system doesn't. He didn't do it. But like the title track "Me Against The World" (featuring Dramacyd), "So Many Tears" (featuring some Stevie Wonder mouth harp), "Young Niggaz," first single "Dear Mama" and a litany of other tomes of casket-life circumstances are vivid. Well, in jail he can't be taxed; it'll be hard to sue him, or arrest him for assault or dealing drugs. Perhaps incarceration does have its advantages.

THE RHYTHM

By M.R. Martinez

Warner Bros. recording George Duke, who helped earn Anita Baker her recent "Soul Train" Music Awards—and the same man who produced the highly-regarded new album by Dianne Reeves—recently brought his noise to Qwest recording artists The Winans in the studio producing three songs for the group's May/June release. Pictured are (seated, l-r): Marvin Winans; Mike Stradford, Qwest vp, A&R; (standing): Michael Winans; Duke; Barry Hankerson, Winans' manager; and Carvin Winans.

The "Soul Train" Music Heritage Award went to the pop/soul goddess Diana Ross, who received the honor while family, friends and Svengali Berry Gordy, Jr. watched. Backstage after receiving the award, Ross talked about her next album, due out in late summer, and about her television deal with ABC-TV. Pictured backstage with Ross, holding the trophy, are (front row, l-r): Rvan and Ross (Diana's children); (second row) Gordy, Ross' daughter Rhonda, daughter Tracy; and Robert Ellis.

The legendary Commodores recently celebrated their first live performance in nine years at the House of Blues in Hollywood. The group was stumping for the Motown Master Series release of the seminal R&B act. The ubiquitous Sinbad introduced the act as they reeled off hits like "Brick House," "Easy," "Sail On," "Machine Gun" and "Night Shift." Pictured are (l-r): J.D. Nicholas of the Commodores; Sinbad; and the group's Walter "Clyde" Orange and William King.

THE RHYME

By M.R. Martinez

An enthusiastic crowd imbibed the sounds of Mercury Recording artists III AI Scratch and Uptown Records act Soul IV Real during a recent show/party in New York. III AI Scratch are aiming at the airwaves with the single from New Jersey Drive and "Chill With That" from their album Creep Wit Me. It's all good.

SPOILS? VICTORS?: The ultimate done deal. Now? Who gets what's left? So many people have exhibited their avarice in the wake of the announcement that master gangsta rapper, the most Ruthless record maker, homeboy Eazy -E, has full-to-the-hilt AIDS. The announcement that Eazy was dying put a serious funk in the day for those rap 'n' roll stars that think they are impervious to that phat bootie skeezer who knows how to bump 'n' grind. Eazy remains in intensive care at Cedars-Sinai Hospital in West Hollywood as of this writing. Word has it he's being treated with antibiotics and there is hope that he will improve. That should comfort the 31-year-old Compton ambassador's wife Tomika Wood. But at his San Fernando Valley offices, folks are continuing the work-a-day business of running a record company. "We're getting ready to release the Bone Thugs N' Harmony single "First Of The Month", Sean Williams, Ruthless national promotion rep, told Cash Box. "We're also going to release Above The Law's single "Kalifornia."

Who's running the company? Cassandra Ware, v.p. of marketing and promotion, appears to be holding the reins, although industry speculation has been rife with a power struggle brewing between Eazy's friend and attorney Ron Sweeny, wife Tomika and deposed manager Jerry Heller. Other sources insist that the power struggle is a red herring. At press time, no one would talk about the scenarios of ascension.

The only thing that seems certain is that Eazy will die, leaving behind a rich legacy of commercially-successful rap music. N.W.A. (Niggas With Attitude) and Eazy shaped a generation of rap artists and spawned major artists like Dr. Dre and Ice Cube. N.W.A. has also helped members MC Ren and Yellas live large since the group's break-up in the early '90s.

Now? The real deal is that sexual mores do in-deed. And all the backstage berries in the world do not make up for the future of pain when there is no discrimination of Indo Smoke, cognac, pussy without a jimmy. AIDS. Death. Shit happens.

News From The Commonwealth & Europe

By David Courtney

HYPERS CAUGHT ON CAMERA: Would-be chart-hypers face the prospect of being caught on camera following a move to employ closed-circuit television in the battle to keep the charts clean. Chart compilation body CIN has agreed to a deal with High Street retailers to use in-store closed-circuit TV tapes in a bid to catch buying-in-teams in action.

MTV INTRODUCE SCRAMBLER SYSTEM: MTV Europe is set to lose around 250,000 U.K. viewers and access to nearly six million European homes after announcing plans to encrypt the channel for the first time. MTV will switch over to a scrambled service on July 1, leaving it connected to 900,000 cable homes and satellite viewers who have subscribed to Sky Television Multi-Channels package. Of the 3.3 million U.K. Astra satellite homes, all but about 270,000 subscribe to the package.

TRING WITHDRAWS CHER ALBUM: Tring International has reached an agreement with PolyGram Records and Mercury Records not to re-market the album Cher, Holdin' Out For Love and destroy remaining stocks. Tring has conceded that the album, which was licensed from a third party, amounts to an infringement of PolyGram's copyright and has agreed to pay PolyGram damages and a contribution towards legal fees, which add up to almost £7,000.

U.K. COUNTRY ACTS JOIN AWARDS SHOW: U.K. country artists Stu Page, Sarah Jory, Hogans Heroes and The Down County Boys performed at the inaugural "Great British Country Music Awards," staged at Birmingham's Pebble Mill Studios on Thursday, March 23. The show will be the subject of a 90-minute broadcast on Radio Two this Friday (31). The awards show will be hosted by MCA artist Marty Stuart and broadcaster David Allan.

KERRANG 2: The Second "Kerrang Awards," recognising achievement within the heavy-metal and hard-rock genres, has been set for June 20 at a venue to be confirmed in central London. This year, there are 14 categories, the majority of which are voted by Kerrang readers.

POLYGRAM TOP OF THE CD CLASSICS: PolyGram labels took the lion's share of the "Classic CD Awards" with five of the 13 honours presented at the Royal College Of Music ceremony last week. The awards, voted for by more than 6,000 Classic CD readers, saw John Eliot Gardiner's Beethoven Symphonies DG Archive release win Recording of the Year.

PIRATE BUSTERS IN ESSEX SWOOP: Anti-piracy campaigners have carried out the biggest raid of 1995 so far, swooping on a music and video counterfeiting factory in Gildea Park Essex. Customs and excise officers, with the assistance of the BPI's Anti-Piracy Unit, seized more than 4,000 cassettes, 4,000 video tapes and four high-speed duplicators in the raid on a private house. One man was arrested in the raid and is expected to face criminal charges.

BBC MUSIC BIZ SERIES: BBC 2 launches what should be the highlight of the spring TV schedules for the music industry on May 7 with its long-awaited documentary series The Music Biz. The six 50-minute documentaries have been produced by Freelance Film Partners, the team behind the exploration of the fashion world The Look. The programmes will be looking at music industry deals ranging from the sale of CBS to Sony and Virgin to EMI to superstar record contracts struck by Prince and Madonna.

BEATLES SING AGAIN: Paul McCartney, during a Westwood One Radio Networks phone interview with N.Y.'s WNEW-FM morning man Pat St. John, said he, George Harrison and Ringo Starr had recorded a brand new song for the upcoming BBC-TV Beatles documentary. This is in addition to the previously announced "Free As A Bird," which features the voice of the late John Lennon from a tape provided by Yoko Ono and Sean Lennon which the others wrapped themselves into with new recording technology.

McCartney was promoting the Liverpool Institute for Performing Arts (LIPA), modeled after N.Y.'s "Fame" school, to which he has endowed $1.5 million and is considering teaching a songwriting class for when the school opens later this year.

South By Southwest Music Conference 1995

By Karen Sidlow

FROM ARTISTS TO ENTERTAINMENT EXECUTIVES and journalists to the music-loving public, a diverse crowd migrated to Austin, Texas for the 1995 South By Southwest Music And Media Conference.

The convention started with hours of organized chaos, as attendees stood in long lines to obtain a personalized admittance badge—their key to the days and nights of entertainment. For those who didn't want to shell out the $300 for an all-access pass, there was the option of purchasing a wrist band that gave one access to the live performances, or they could simply pay at the door for selected shows.

Several hundred bands played to several thousand attendees, with the amount of venues upped from previous years to accommodate the higher number of convention goers. Despite the enlargements, many people, including label executives, were shut out of the shows they wanted to see due to the capacity crowds. When current industry darlings Bush (Trauma/Interseope) played, the line stretched down the street.

Opening the convention was a keynote speech from former Husker Du and current Sugar (Rykodisc) frontman Bob Mould. Keeping with the flow of information, there were panels which featured news on the delicate understanding of the A&R process, dealing with the informative press and having faith in band managers. One enlightening panel included a discussion of Matthew Sweet's (Zoo) career. The panel, entitled Sweet Release: The Story Of Matthew Sweet's 'Girlfriend', drew fans, label workers and writers. And how did Sweet feel about having a panel focused on him? "I felt like a guinea pig." He admitted, "I was a bit nervous before it [the panel] started," but after looking into the audience, Sweet found enough familiar faces to calm his nerves.

Maybe the most attended, and certainly most anticipated, showcase was for Columbia artist Soul Asylum. The group, who have been around for over a decade but just recently caught the public's attention, played a few songs off of their breakthrough album Grave Dancer's Union, including "Somebody To Shove" and "Black Gold." But they used the opportunity to introduce the audience to even more tunes from their upcoming Butch Vig-produced release. The band, now consisting of new drummer Sterling Campbell along with veterans Dave Pirner on vocals and guitars, guitarist Dan Murphy and bassist Karl Mueller, treated the packed crowd to new songs such as "Nothing To Write Home About," "Bittersweetheart" and "To My Own Devices," a song that Pirner dedicated to his "girlfriend," actress Winona Ryder.

Despite the fact that Pirner, a Grammy-winning songwriter, is prolific when it comes to witty lyrics, he had few words for the audience—but he did request that fans "go see [American Recordings'] the Jayhawks," who were playing later that evening at a different venue (those Minneapolis bands sure stick together). To prove that point, the two bands joined forces later in the week to do a show under the name of "Golden Smog," the name they used to release a record on Crackpot, an Minneapolis-based independent label.

And then there's the parties...following the panel on Sweet, Zoo Entertainment threw a party that attracted members of labelmates Flowerhead. The Austin-based quartet also played this year's convention, just as they have for the past few years. Guitarist Buz Zoller says of playing a convention in their hometown, "It would be cool if it was in New York."

And speaking of parties and live shows, another Columbia Records artist, Chris Whitley, played for several hundred people following a Mexican feast. Whitley, whose long-awaited second release Din of Ecstasy recently hit stores, showcased several songs from the record and tended to stay away from material from his first effort, the critically lauded Living With The Law. The new songs featured in his set included mostly original tunes, such as "Wild Pagan Love," his new single, and "Oh God My Heart Is Ready" as well as a cover of the Jesus and Mary Chain's "Some Candy Talking." Whitley's set was well-received by all in attendance, which included labelmates Heather Nova and Dionne Farris, who performed earlier that evening. And just how does Whitley feel being a major-label artist playing a mostly-industry convention? "It couldn't hurt." As to why it took so long for his current record to come out, Whitley replied, "I've been living with these songs for three years...I just wanted to find [the right] producer."

Of course, it wouldn't be a complete South By Southwest convention without seeing an Austin band. Meehanic/Giant recording artists Seed played to a sardine-packed audience at Sneakers on infamous 6th Street. The band opened the show with their current single "Doe" and went on to play new songs like "Garnet" and "Purple Plum," which should be found on their upcoming, not-as-yet-recorded release. They closed their lively set with an outrageous rendition of the Beatles' "Helter Skelter"...not what one might expect from a Texas-based band. Guitarist Dean Truitt explained how playing the convention a few years ago helped their career. "It basically brought record [company] people to Austin." And what would he say to other unsigned or signed bands that have been offered a showcase slot? "If you are a good live band, it's a plus. It can only help. It's good exposure."

While it will invariably be called a successful endeavor by many publicists, writers and music fans, what do the A&R reps feel about this year's convention? Julian Raymond, staff producer and A&R representative for Hollywood Records, explains why he headed to Texas this year: "The only reason I ever go there is to see undiscovered talent." Raymond felt it was a bit unfair for all the unsigned bands to have to compete with the showcases of well-known, signed acts. "I'm coming from the band's side," says Raymond. "I've been in bands my whole life and it doesn't seem fair."

And what about A&R reps that may have had one of their bands performing? Benjie Gordon, director, A&R for Columbia Records, explains the logic of Soul Asylum performing an unexpected show at the convention: "They were stuck in the studio for the last three or four months [re-recording] and it just [was confirmed] a few weeks before the convention. Besides, every label has signed bands playing, anyway. They want to get exposure for them. There's nothing wrong with that." Knowing the show wasn't purposely scheduled, and a couple of members of Soul Asylum were initially headed there to play in Golden Smog, one really can't complain. But how does Gordon feel about the well-known signed acts taking away attention from the struggling artists? "I would get frustrated, too, but how many bands can you sign?"

Even though there were several shows to go to each night and many panels and exhibits to attend during the day, other artists made tour stops in Texas while the convention was going on. Among those acts were The Offspring, as well as the critically acclaimed Pete Dinklage, who played a radio-sponsored show with Steve Forbert at Lubbock Or Leave It on Saturday evening. So even if they weren't directly included in the convention's schedule, some may have benefitted from the goings-on accordingly.

Given all of the music, people and food, attendance at the South By Southwest extravaganza has become a yearly minimum requirement.

Dolores Claiborne Another Fine King Tale From Castle Rock

By John Goff

Mother and daughter survivors of the hardest sort, Dolores and Selena (Kathy Bates and Jennifer Jason Leigh) look back and inward for some peace.

STEPHEN KING'S BOOK was a lengthy first-person murder confession by the title character. In a straightforward, simplistic manner, Dolores told of murdering her alcoholic, incest-leaning husband long ago to protect herself from the suspicion of a present murder of the woman she had worked for and become a constant companion to for a quarter of a century.

The screenplay by Tony Gilroy, based on the book, is a terrific adaptation cinematically, not only retaining King's themes of love, protection and pride but also—with Gilroy's use of remembrance—elasticizes time to bring in the mother-daughter relationship centrally as well as that of a bloodhound-like cop for an element of intimidation which didn't really come across in the source material. King's inclusion of the total solar eclipse which cloaks the murder is eerily brought to cinematic life, wonderfully adding to the overall design.

Directed by Taylor Hackford, the film plays out with a near timeless quality; we are on that cold, small island off the coast of Maine (doubled by Nova Scotia, Canada) where time is not so much of an entity as it is a quality which progresses at a snail's pace. He has managed to trip back and forth in time without confusion.

In that back-and-forth rocker he is aided tremendously by meticulous make-up transformations by Luigi Rochetti and Micheline Trépanier who visually move Kathy Bates, Judy Parfitt and Christopher Plummer in and out of youth to worn and back again realistically...a super job.

And at the center of all this is a layered and moving performance by Kathy Bates (who teamed with Castle Rock in another Stephen King story, Misery, which brought her a Best Actress Oscar) as the title character. She is strength, Mother Love, protectress, human, all King had visualized in his story—the hard, accepting woman who takes her world as it is without complaining and works through it. Bates is wonderful. Jennifer Jason Leigh is her angry daughter Selena, expanded for the movie and brought back to the island she'd left so long ago with repressed memories. She pulls out all the pain of her youth expertly, as well as a solid love once her psychological breakthrough is made. In her first major American screen performance, Judy Parfitt brings Bates' seemingly coldhearted, demanding employer/friend Vera Donovan into razor-sharp focus with a wonderful edge, cutting off slices of humanity, compassion and self-protection as needed...an auspicious U.S. beginning. Plummer, in a largely invented role as a thwarted police detective doggedly trying to convict Dolores, is convincing. David Strathairn, with this performance as the incestuous and drunken husband of Dolores, father of Selena, and the philanderer in Losing Isaiah, appears to be carving out a character niche by taking on roles which on the surface appear to be bland or too evil for others. Whatever he has in mind, however, he's proving himself to be the kind of solid actor one begins to look forward to the next performance for. Eric Bogosian, Bob Gunton and Wayne Robson take on smaller roles and make them stand-outs for the moments they are on screen.

Gabriel Beristain's camera work and Danny Elfman's music add greatly to the suspense and moodiness which, when combined for the climactic murder within the solar eclipse (superbly manipulated by The Computer Film Company Inc.'s digital animation and personnel) and cold presence of the territory itself, tends to pin an audience in their seats chillingly.

Taylor Hackford and Charles Mulvehill produced for Castle Rock. Gina Blumenfeld associate produced.

The Envelope Please...Academy Award Winning Songs (1934-1993)

By John Goff

It's plush, it's lush, it's wonderful.

THIS IS ONE OF THE GREATEST COMPILATIONS of some of the best songs ever written. A couple of clunkers, too—though it's doubtful the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences will admit it—which mirrored the immediate times (and maybe it's just my taste), but it's a history of the Best Songs from motion picture history and so, good, bad or..no, no one can be indifferent to this music collection. They're all here, from the first winner in 1934, "The Continental," written by Con Conrad and Herb Magidson for The Gay Divorcee, performed on screen by Ginger Rogers and danced to by herself and Fred Astaire (Astaire sings the version here) to 1993's "Streets Of Philadelphia" from Philadelphia, performed here by Richie Havens.

Not all are done by the artists who performed them on screen, but each one on this five-volume set is masterfully produced. The earlier tunes have been cleaned up and digitally re-mastered through new technology and can whisk you away over the years on the sounds of some of the greatest ever written:

light-hearted from the early days just after sound had come in and almost every film was a musical, "Lullaby Of Broadway," "Thanks For The Memory," and the topper of the '30s, "Over The Rainbow" (Garland's original here); the '40s patriotism and swing and the era which produced probably the most recorded song of all time, "White Christmas"; '50s romance represented by "Mona Lisa," "Three Coins In The Fountain," and precursors of the approaching socially relevant themes, "High Noon (Do Not Forsake Me)" and "All The Way," which is given a stunning rendition by Billie Holiday, recorded two months before her death; and on and on, until the beats got heavier in the '70s, '80s and now the '90s.

Accompanying the music is a book with pictures, articles, interviews and bits of lore and trivia spotlighting writers and performers with four, three, two of the statuettes and each tune is highlit with a story concerning it and/or the writers—among them Johnny Mercer, Irving Berlin, Hoagy Carmichael and Sammy Cahn (who also is represented with a delightful interview). The list, covering almost 60 years of tunes and artists, is simply too long to record here, and you can get lost in the music and book for a full day, but it wouldn't be a day you'd easily forget.

In addition to the winners, the book lists the other nominees—two more sets could be compiled as Losers? from those—which can sometimes bring you out of your easy chair with, "How did that lose to that!" And there's the classic story capable of sending chills up your spine which tells of Louis B. Mayer's desire and attempt to have "Somewhere Over The Rainbow" removed from The Wizard Of Oz.

Thoroughly enjoyable from start to finish and then start again, capable of becoming as timeless as the music itself, the excellent compilation was produced for Rhino Records release by James Austin & David McLees and remastered by Chris Clarke and Dan Hersch of DigiPrep. Stand up and take a bow, guys.

Livin' In Dreamland

By John Goff

HOLLYWOOD—DREAMLAND, synonymous? Well, as synonymous as Hollywood—Nightmare, I suppose. You can find them all at the corner of Hollywood and Vine, and most of them have been written about, sung about, performed and acted out; Hollywood as a currently sinking (literally) strip of asphalt snaking along California's shaky firmament or a state of mind, both dreamland and nightmare. Take your pick. Everybody has their opinion and take on the place, and I mean everybody, everywhere.

Most writers—aside from Nathaniel West, perhaps—write about the glitter and glitz...Hollywood and Vine Streets, say. Actor/playwright Meegan King focuses down the street a bit, more like down toward Hollywood and La Brea and slightly beyond, just after the Walk of Fame ceases with the stars and just before the Boulevard shrinks to a mere street and the lights give way to trees and shadows where actors and others can get, and have gotten, lost but still function and push the town and its myths along...people like a star's driver on a set; a set painter; a producer scrambling to get one more film, the film, going; a carpenter; a sober alcoholic actor learning to live in the real world; and a runner, looking backward to a warmly remembered yesterday.

King, whose background is theatrical—his father is character actor Wright King (Streetcar Named Desire)—has assembled this group of characters from his time around movie sets, or rather, outside the "lights, cameras and action" on the sets, and he proves that he has a well-tuned ear for the dialogue cadences and empathy for the feelings of these people. They're not "lost," but they're not successful. Neither are they unsuccessful. They've settled, it appears... some happily, some not so. But they're all terribly human, and it's in their humanity King allows them to shine, to bring their star up in his writing.

These performances take place on a near bare stage, with only suggestions of costumes and settings. Original music. "Livin' In Dreamland" brings the audience in and was written and performed for the show by Jay Kessler, lead singer for Lil Elmo & The Cosmos. The tune captures the feel and sets the audience up nicely for what follows. Lloyd Sherr and John Schmidt directed.

In his performance of all these people, King brings the humanity out and creates a set surrounding them out of thin air and his imagination—that wonderful thing of an actor completely believing in his surroundings at that moment enough to conjure it up to reality in the audience's mind. It's a tour de force which presents King's talent as an actor to great advantage. Those casting people who love to brag that they go out to shows to seek out talent should do themselves and the people they cast for a favor and actually do it.

Go to the stage of the Eclectic Company Theatre, 5312 Laurel Canyon Blvd. in North Hollywood, Friday and Saturday nights., 8 p.m. For reservations call (213) 466-1767.

News From U.S. & Latin America

By Hector Resendez

MUSICAL PRODUCTIONS, INC., a.k.a. MP, describes itself as "the music company of the Caribbean." It may very well be the record conglomeration of the next millennium. Under the helm of its president, Antonio "Tony" Moreno, the Miami-based independent label has been churning out hit after hit for nearly half a decade. Specializing in Salsa and Merengue genres, MP first launched the incredible dream team appropriately called the Musical Productions All-Stars. They have gathered an incredible roster of top recording artists like Tito Gomez, Tito Rojas, Carlos Nuno, Hector Rey, Luisito Ayala, Primi Cruz and Anthony Cruz, as well as others. As of late last year, MP threw its hat into the Mexican Regional market.

Musical Productions, Inc. certainly merits respect for running a well-organized record company. It seems as if MP can "smell" a hit a mile away. Promotions director Edith Vasquez is especially proud that the indie has just released its first album by a female artist. Yet, Elizabeth "Mimi" Ibarra is not entirely a new face at MP. Ibarra first came to their attention when merengue artists Milly, Jocelyn y los Vecinos had asked the young composer-singer to write a song for their album. Ibarra penned "Amor Ingrato" and has since captured the eyes and ears of the tropical music world.

Hailing from the Departamento del Choco in Colombia, Ibarra has been composing tropical music for the past eight years. Hits like "Senora," "Juegete de Nadie," "Dejala," "Morena Linda," "Dile a El" and "Te Propongo" have been interpreted by such talent as Tito Rojas, La Puerto Rican Power, Tito Gomez, Anthony Cruz and Hector Rey, among others.

Elizabeth "Mimi" Ibarra

At the beginning of this year, MP released the all-Salsa album by the multi-talented Ibarra. There are eight very danceable compositions which reflect Ibarra's innate romantic side in addition to universal themes of relationships from a female perspective. The debut recording by Ibarra was directed by MP's musical genius, Julio "Gunda" Merced.

The first promotional single from the album is entitled "No Puede Ser." Ibarra performs a duet with the very talented Salsa singer Anthony Cruz.

ON OTHER FRONTS: Dominican Salsa artist Raulin appeared at the Grand Avenue Club in Los Angeles last week as part of his promotional tour in conjunction with Maria and Monica Zevallos of Wild Women Productions.

A child prodigy, Raulin has been performing for the past 20 years. He began his recording career in 1975 with Cuco Valoy on the album Homenaje a Miguel Matamoros. The following year, he did a five-year stint as co-leader with the merengue group Los Hijos Del Rey and Fernandito Villalona. Raulin formed his own orchestra in 1981 while establishing himself in the Salsa scene with Roberto Roena y su Apollo Sound. A major achievement for Raulin was his excellent 1993 recording with Ramon Rodriguez and Alfonso Noyola called La Sinfonica de la Salsa.

Raulin recently launched his second album with indie A & E Latin Music Productions, Inc. It features the popular tune "Uno Se Cura," a composition by fellow Dominican Alice Baroni. Raulin's first album, Lo Maximo, was in demand along the East Coast before it hit retail outlets....

Tex-Mex Queen Selena says she came to the "XV Tejano Music Awards" gala in San Antonio, TX recently with an "open mind." And why not? Selena has won every single year. The popular singer was also present at the Grammy Awards gala. That is one award that she may have won with less openness and more listless anticipation....

The latest Capitol/EMI Latin album from Alvaro Torres, Reencuentro, features the popular singer as producer as well. The first promotional single by the same name showcases the group Barrio Boyz in a video recorded in the city of San Miguel de Allende in Mexico.

■ LOS RANCHEROS: Ni Por Todo El Oro Del Mundo (SDI 81486) Producer: Jose Luis Massa.

Los Rancheros is one of the leading Argentine pop/rock groups. The group's vocalist, Meno Fernandez, delivers a strong performance along the lines of classic American vocalists from groups such as the Doors, the Beatles and R.E.M. With all original material, the quintet also features Miguel Gabanelli (guitar), Horacio Ardiles (drums), Anibal Meza (bass) and Daniel Sais (keyboard). The first promotional single from the album is "Mujer."

■ MERCEDES SOSA: Gestos de Amor (Mercury 526 354) Producers: Pelo Aprile, Adrian Muscarl, Fabian Matius.

Songstress Mercedes Sosa has released what many might call the most commercial work she has ever produced. Gestos de Amor is a fine collection of poetic and insightful compositions by Latin writers and even one by Sting. Sosa is accompanied by an eclectic, if not impressive band of Bohemians. There's Carlos Franzetti, Nilda Fernandez, Alejandro Lerner and Roberto "Polaco" Goyeneche just to mention a few. Sosa is certainly within a league of her own, and this recording will certainly attest to that fact.

■ RAULIN: El Sonero Que el Pueblo Prefiere! (AE Latin Music Enterprises 1940) Producers: Noyola & Paulino.

The Dominican singer Raulin releases another fine album of strong, very danceable Salsa music in this recording. There is an incredible performance by the artist's orchestra, who sound as great live as in the recording studio. The most visible drawback is the packaging of this product. The graphics are anything but complimentary. Fortunately, a good majority of consumers of Salsa music do not particularly care if they are already established fans. Newcomers will need to be advised to ignore the packaging. It's a great album that will delight Salsa dance fans.

PICK OF THE WEEK

■ MIMI IBARRA: Mimi Ibarra (MP Records 6148) Producer: Julio "Gunda" Merced.

Mimi Ibarra is a Colombian composer who has turned performer since first penning Salsa hits about eight years ago. Her debut recording for MP Records also marks the arrival of a very talented female artist who is sure to turn more than eyes in the years to come. Her first promotional single, "No Puede Ser," is a duet with fellow labelmate Anthony Cruz. All of the eight selections on the album are danceable and rhythmically engaging. Ibarra is certain to impact the Salsa music industry with not only her fine vocal talents but with her equally impeccable songwriting.

REVIEWS By Richard McVey

■ RUSS TAFF: Winds Of Change (Reprise 45676)

Amid a self-analytical title that no doubt makes reference to Taff's change from the Contemporary Christian to the secular country market, Taff has produced an all-around, well-crafted 10-cut album. Whether it's the upbeat "Bein' Happy," and "Love Is Not A Thing" or great ballads like "Your Face" and "Once In A Lifetime," this album is the complete package, with an abundance of Taff's heart-and-soul vocals, sincere lyrics and great production via producer Randy Scruggs. The best way of summing up this album is simple—when Taff sings, it's impossible not to listen. Other songs that stand out: #1-10. There's not a bad one in the bunch.

■ RICK TREVINO: Looking For The Light (Columbia 66771)

This is the most hard-core, country-styled album that's come across this desk in a long time. Possessing an incredible stage presence and following the success of his debut album, Trevino has given a valiant effort to top that previous success. With a mild case of the sophomore jinx, several cuts seem over-produced, especially so on Trevino's vocals. Nevertheless, this 11-cut project will stand up to any of today's new artist's efforts. Songs that stand out include: "Looking For The Light," "Poor, Broke, Mixed Up Mess Of A Heart," "The Pain" and "You Are To Me."

■ TANYA TUCKER: Fire To Fire (Liberty 28943)

For those country fans who may be worried that Tucker has gone stale over the years—especially so considering that this is album #28 in her illustrious career—this release will put those fears to rest. Led by her usual fire-and-brimstone vocals on cuts like "I Bet She Knows" and "Find Out What's Happenin'," along with the heartfelt duet with Willie Nelson on the title track, Tucker has produced a sensational 10-cut album full of vibrantly animated songs. For those few who may not be fans of Tucker's music, you're in for a long year, because any of these 10 cuts could see the light of day on radio. An honorable mention has to go out to producer Jerry Crutchfield...a great job.

come together
America salutes The Beatles

■ VARIOUS ARTISTS: Come Together/America Salutes The Beatles (Liberty 31712)

"Skeptical" is the best way to describe my thoughts when first hearing of this project. However, following repeated listenings, those thoughts are gone. With Lennon and McCartney as writers on 16 of the 17 cuts, it only goes to show that it's almost impossible to ruin a great song. Of course, it doesn't hurt to have some of country's best performing them. The awards for Best Cut go to: Collin Raye for "Let It Be"; David Ball for "I'll Follow The Sun"; Willie Nelson for "One After 909"; Delbert McClinton on "Come Together"; Billy Dean and "Yesterday"; Shenandoah with "Can't Buy Me Love"; Huey Lewis with "Oh! Darling"; Susan Ashton & Gary Chapman on "In My Life"; and Steve Wariner doing "Get Back." The Most Beatle-like award goes to Phil Keaggy & PFR for "We Can Work It Out," and the awards for Could've Done Without This One go to Randy Travis for "Nowhere Man" and Kris Kristofferson trying "Paperback Writer." If you like country music or the Beatles, don't miss this one. With 17 songs to choose from, it's impossible to go wrong.

CMT Takes On Canada

AS PART OF THE LATEST DEVELOPMENT in what seems to be the never-ending saga of CMT's expulsion from Canadian cable services, a group of U.S. entertainment companies have called on the U.S. Administration to retaliate against Canada if Canada does not end its discriminatory process against U.S. cable programmers.

On One Side...

The following is taken from a press release issued by CMT:

In a filing with the U.S. Trade Representative, the industry group—which includes CMT, Court TV, The Nashville Network, The Travel Channel, and The Weather Channel, as well as the National Cable Television Association and two distributors of superstations in Canada: EMI (Newhouse) and United Video—estimated that the appropriate level of retaliation should exceed $750 million annually.

Several other entertainment companies and organizations, including Time-Warner, C-SPAN, CNBC, Word, Inc., International Family Entertainment and a coalition comprising the RIAA, CMA, American Federation of Television and Radio Artists and the National Music Publishers, also filed comments. These filings called on the USTR to take a firm action against Canada if Canada is unwilling to address the problem of the Canadian discriminatory communications policies.

The industry comments were filed in response to the USTR's initiation of an investigation of the discriminatory practices of the Canadian government, which was announced on February 6. The USTR's investigation was initiated under Section 301 of the Trade Act and in response to a petition by CMT, which was evicted from Canada by the CRTC when a new Canadian-owned country music video channel launched on January 1, 1995.

On The Other Side...

Although not in direct response to this latest retaliation, Tom Thompkins, president of the Canadian Country Music Association, shares his views with Cash Box on the effect CMT's removal from Canadian cable has had on the Canadian music industry:

"Well, there's two things that have happened. CMT has taken the Canadians off that aren't signed to American labels. And I understand the reasoning. They're programming to their specific audience—their audience isn't in Canada anymore. They took those Canadians off the air who aren't available to their American audience. So I can understand that.... Another thing that's happened, CMT used to rebroadcast our yearly awards show in Europe and they have informed us that they will no longer do that. However, TNN will continue to rebroadcast it.

No one has really talked about this, but I also believe that they're concerned for the future. There's going to be another round of hearings in Canada for the more specialty channels. There could be another application for a country lifestyle channel like TNN. And if that happens, and is licensed, TNN will be gone. So Gaylord is protecting their interests around the world. I really don't blame them. But at the same time, in order to build a good star system in Canada and to make country music a viable industry to work and live in in Canada, we have to have some things of our own.... The sad part of it is the artists are the ones who are suffering. They didn't do anything. In fact, many of those artists were the very same people who supported CMT, who wrote letters to the CRTC supporting CMT.

Another thing to keep in mind—CMT was only in just over a million-and-a-half homes in Canada. This new channel in Canada is going to be in six million homes.... There's two sides to every story.... CMT was in Canada and made money in Canada. TNN makes money in Canada. They take about $15 million a year out of Canada, TNN. What do they put back in? I was talking to CMT when all of this was coming down and I said, 'Hey look, why don't you just commit to putting something back into Canada? You're taking these millions of dollars out every year, just commit something to Canadian talent. Just commit something.' But no."

Indie Spotlight

Jennifer LeClere... "Just Me And The Song"

MUSIC IS THE MAIN-STAY in Jennifer LeClere's life. Realizing she wanted a career in country music, and knowing it would take a lot of perseverance and tenacity, LeClere began working on her career. She's never shied away from anything she wanted, and she began pursuing her career with renewed vigor and hard work. That determination, talent and love for country music could ultimately be the keys to her success and the driving force that will keep her focused on Nashville.

Country music today covers a lot of musical terrain, which suits LeClere just fine. Her performances are versatile and professional, and her love for country music has laid the foundation for her to carve a distinctive niche for herself using strong songs delivered with vocal passion and instrumental fire.

LeClere has bided her time and divided her energy between high-mileage performances and the preservation of her traditional country ideas. LeClere doesn't edit the things that come from her heart through her music.

With performances at the 1994 Houston Livestock Show & Rodeo in Houston, TX, where she opened for Doug Stone and Tracy Lawrence, LeClere truly has her act together on stage. She has also performed in Houston at the Texas Opry Jamboree, the Legend Family Theatre and the Harris County Fair, as well as the Christy Lane Theatre in Branson and the Aladdin Hotel in Las Vegas.

Her confident stage performances can probably be traced back to her parts in such musicals as Phantom of the Opera, Jesus Christ Superstar, Oliver and The Sound of Music.

"I don't try to pattern myself after anyone," says LeClere of her performances. "I just want to be myself. If you can't feel the song you're singing, the audience can't feel it, either. While I'm performing a song, I'm so caught up in it, it becomes just me and the song, and I put everything I can into my performances."

Daniel Ray Edwards, who holds the #84 spot on this week's chart, stopped by the Cash Box/Nashville office recently to meet with Cash Box president and publisher George Albert.

COUNTRY RADIO

Q-&-A

Kris Erik Stevens: From WLS to Vocal Acting

How did you get started in radio?

Stevens: I used to be in a rock 'n' roll band when I was in high school, and I would get on the stage and sing the song. Every time that I would be in between the songs, I would begin to talk to everybody who was there—"Thanks for coming, it was nice to have you here," you know, "Welcome to the dance, yadda yadda yadda..." and then I would go into the song, and everybody would go, "Oh God no, he's going to sing." So I said to myself, "You know what? I'm going to go the local radio station and play everybody else's music and I'll talk for a living." And that's what I did.

I took over doing the all-night show in northern upper Michigan in a small station while I went to high school during the daytime. So that's how it kind of started. One thing led to another and, obviously, I grew up listening to stations out of Nashville—WLAC, and then WLS in Chicago, and KOMA out of Oklahoma City, KAAY out of Little Rock, Arkansas...stuff like that. I was listening to rock 'n' roll radio and I would copy that kind of thing up there in the small station. That's kind of the beginnings.

You worked at WLS in Chicago. That's probably where everyone got to know the name "Kris Erik Stevens."

Yeah, that's for sure. It still happens. To this day, there probably isn't a week that goes by that somebody doesn't say to me, "God man, I used to listen to you when I was..." you know. In fact, Hitmakers Magazine just did an article on me a couple weeks ago in February. It's all about WLS and all of that. So, it's constant, it's always there. People are always calling me and remembering WLS, because obviously, it was one of the great days in radio. That was a phenomenal signal and I was on the air like, 6:00 to 9:00 at night. I also did some 9:00 to midnight. But it would cover like, I think, 46, 45 or 43 states in various places. Some places were just crystal clear constantly; most specifically, too, in the winter. But anything after dark, it was Class A, clear-channel 50,000 watts. It just streamed across the country. The recognition factor was unbelievable. The fan mail would never end, you know, 40 letters a day...gifts, cards, letters, "I named my kid after you" and all the fun stuff that goes along with it. It was like big-time rock 'n' roll radio stardom because of the exposure. It was absolutely phenomenal...plus, it was a great radio station.

That radio station always had a big sound. To what do you attribute a big sound?

The image of that station was just big. Everything was big about it—the production was big, the voices were big, it was tight, it was clean, it was personality-oriented. It just sounded real big. And I suppose Chicago sounded real big and the "Windy City" and nighttime in Illinois, Chicago, everything that went along with it. It just was big, and the voices...I mean, the image-voice guy in the station was most specifically a big-sounding voice guy. The news guys were pretty good. And the jocks were just very good.

As the president of Kris Stevens Enterprises, you now make a living making other radio stations sound big, making other products and services sound big by doing that. How do you see the image of country radio in relationship to the business that you're in?

First of all, I guess, yes, I do a lot of voice imaging. What I'm trying to do is make stations sound better than they ever had with this voice that stands out above the rest, cuts through the clutter, as they say, and really makes the station sound, you know, more special than the next one and have its own image.

Country radio stations, many have come to me because there's the situation now [where] they want to have the sound of a Kris Stevens on their station. And I'm not quite sure—it could be for the versatility. I don't know if you know or not, but I'm the voice for the Orkin man.... You have to take colors and shadings and have variety and versatility, and take the words that they give you and really make them something special...every word counts. Treat it as a business, and focus in with the program director or the person who's trying to do it. And he tells you what his market is about, who he's trying to go after, what the audience is. And you take all of these elements and begin to bring it in to make their station very, very special. It really, really can work.

What can be accomplished with imaging, a voice that is able to be the voice of a radio station? How does it sell the radio station to the listener, and to the advertiser?

I think that before, it used to be a lot of announcers. I don't really think that's where it is right now. It's not just a voice anymore. Obviously, the texture of the voice is very important, but the believability is very important. When you hear it, you believe it. And I think that comes because you're a voice actor, not an announcer. You have to be a voice actor. You have to feel it. It's emotions more than anything else. It's not just the vocal cords. And that's why I think a lot of people who have got into this business are just, you know, voice announcers. And announcers are no longer what's really happening as far as an image voice is concerned. And it has a texture to it, a coloration, an inflection, a delivery, swiftness, tempo—all of these elements really add up to make it very special.

That will be the difference, I think, the deciding factor. And when you hear it, you turn around, you know. Or even subliminally, it's there. You constantly hear that voice—it's there, it's there. People who I run into who know I'm the voice of Orkin, or I was the voice of Pontiac for three or four years—there's always that, "Give me the Pontiac voice, man. I want to hear that." I even have a Dial-A-Demo. It's 818-990-KRIS. I do a lot of commercial voice work for ad agencies and people all over the country, and promos for major networks, and I do them out of here...they have an instant Dial-A-Demo that they can call and say, "Give me the Pontiac voice," or "Give me the one you did on Unforgiven for Clint Eastwood," or "Give me the voice that you used on Health Net, or these kind of things. And it's like different actors; it's playing a part. And you need to play the part of that radio station. If it's a country station in "X city," and this is the image, this is the feel, then you need to take on that part, that role, and make it your own and bring that station to the forefront through that imagery.

As to medium or secondary market radio stations, do you believe that these stations should budget money to have this kind of a service? How expensive is your service?

I think it's affordable, and I have to make it affordable to stations in those medium to smaller markets. There is a lot of competition out there, but the other side of it is, I really will not undercut a situation just to get the work. Because I think it is something special; if they can afford it, it's certainly worth it. I think it's like anything else—it adds to the image of your station. And I also don't want to do things for certain stations that say, "Well, gee, I want to stay with the image voice," and all of a sudden they decide to throw something at you that really is like, you know, a PSA or something that doesn't have validity to it. It certainly could be done, but I always talk to them about that and say, "Stay with the image, keep the image voice, you know? Don't use me on things that just aren't applicable. Have your local guy do that. It's much more important, because my voice is the image of your radio station at this point, along with other things. But it's certainly an integral part that you don't want to blow on a PSA." Not that it would be a Public Service Announcement anyway, but, you know, billboards and things like that. If they can afford it, I think it should be done. I try to make it affordable for them, because it's something that I want to do for a lot of stations, and certainly I'm only exclusive in one market at a time.

Q-&-A

Jim Murphy, Operations Manager, Jones Satellite Networks, On U.S. Country

How did you get started in radio?

I got started in radio in high school. I worked my way through college in radio, got my start in New England, where I worked in a number of radio stations in and around Boston. Ultimately I was able to program country in Boston. I've programmed country now for 20 years—it'll be 20 years this summer.

The first major station I had the opportunity to program was the country station in Boston at the time, WDLW. I was there for five years and then moved up the road to New Hampshire to WOKQ, which is a monstrously successful country station, even still. I was there four or five years as their program director and operations manager. I left there to go to work for a couple of years in Kansas City and programmed KFKF, which became the top radio station in Kansas City at that time. Then [I] left to go to work for Buck Owens Productions at KNIX in Phoenix, and programmed their Real Country Network...I programmed that for about three years, then had the opportunity to go home to Boston and jump into the country wars there. I programmed WBCF in Boston for about a year and a half, and now most recently I've been with Jones Satellite Network for just shy of a year.

Describe the U.S. Country format that you're currently programming.

U.S. Country is a mainstream, contemporary country format, very similar to the country formats that you would hear in major markets all across the country. The difference is that it's designed to work in small to medium markets. We don't have any great designs to be on the radio in New York or in Chicago or in Los Angeles. Our mission is to provide great country programming for small- to medium-sized markets, particularly those markets where they may not have the access to talent. They may not have the time to do all of the programming that we do on the network for all of our radio stations, and are really looking for a way to maximize the resources that they have in regards to personnel or promotional money or sales by using our network anywhere from one hour a day to 24 hours a day, depending on that particular radio station's circumstances.

What makes us different from some of the other network formats that are out there is that we really are designed to integrate with what the local radio station is doing. It's not an all-or-nothing proposition. We don't feel as though a radio station has to take us 24 hours a day, if they've got a sensational morning show and a really good afternoon show. They may want to use us middays, and then nights and weekends. In other words, we're there to—

A: fill in the holes that they have trouble filling with quality people, and

B: make it sound like it's one radio station, not as though, "Hey, we're going to do a local morning show, and then we're going to switch to this national service out of Denver, Colorado." We make it very seamless, and for the most part, the listeners have no idea that their programming is coming from anywhere other than their local radio station.

How many stations do you currently have on the satellite network?

We have over 360 stations that are affiliated with U.S. Country. And then we have a second format, which is CD Country, which is on somewhere around 70 radio stations across the country. Within the last year or so, Jones has become the largest supplier of 24-hour country network programming in America.

How is the CD Country format different from U.S. Country?

CD Country is an 18- to 34-year-old demographic target, where U.S. Country is a mainstream 25- to 54-year-old target.

How do you maintain a listener that is 50 years of age?

What you're looking for are songs that have great appeal to both ends of the spectrum. I don't think you can call yourself a 25-54 format, regardless of whether you're country or some other format. I don't think that you can try to serve that audience by saying, "Hey, we're going to play a song by the Tractors and that'll appeal to our 25-year-olds. Then we're going to play a song by Ernest Tubb, and that's going to appeal to our 55-year-olds." It really doesn't work that way, because you don't find that kind of acceptance of songs that are musically to the left and to the right of center. What we are looking for are songs that appeal to both ends. And the current artists out there, according to the research that we have done, have tremendous acceptance in both the younger and the older side of that 25-54. So we can play Garth Brooks and Vince Gill and Reba McEntire, Clint Black and Brooks & Dunn, and know that we're going to have 55-year-old women that are listing those artists and those songs as their favorites as well as 25-year-old men.

When you do research, what does the research consist of?

We do nationwide call-out research on a weekly basis so that we're able to get a handle on what's happening on the current charts. We're also able to test recurrent and gold product as well, and kind of keep a handle on where the country is at any given point and time.

When you talk about your "gold" product, what do you consider gold?

On U.S. Country, our gold goes back to the early '80s. We're playing those artists who are still being played today: the older Alabama songs, the older George Strait, the older Tanya Tucker, the older Reba McEntire. We're not playing old songs by people who aren't on the charts anymore, but we are playing older songs by those people who are still fresh and on the charts today.

As far as ratings, do you have some Arbitron-type success stories?

Well, it depends on the market; since most of the markets that we're in are smaller markets, they may not have Arbitron ratings. They may have their own local research that they've done. We do have a number of markets, though, where our stations do extremely well, whether it's in their particular trading area or whether it's in the Arbitron at large. Our mission is primarily to be in those smaller to medium markets. There are other formats that are out there, the niche formats like Real Country, and like our own CD Country, that are really designed to be in larger rated markets. So we wouldn't have the kind of ratings to point to simply because we're not in those size markets.

Do you have promotions that you do on weekends to attract weekend listeners?

We do a lot of special weekend programming. It's a way to get people to sample the radio station. It's another example of things that we're able to bring to the radio station that they just wouldn't have the time to do themselves. Everyone would like to do a lot of special programming, but the resources in most smaller markets are such that you can often times just barely do what you need to do. So we're there to kind of provide the icing on the cake, to be able to do the special weekend, to be able to do the giveaways. We do "Win It Before You Can Buy It" weekends. We have access to all of the new product that comes out that a lot of smaller stations, unfortunately, just don't have the opportunity to get. We also do theme weekends. The weekend that we have coming up is "The Hunks of Country." We're playing the hot new male artists of country music. We do listener's-choice weekends, where people can call in with favorite requests. We have 52 weeks' worth of special programming already planned out for our affiliates.

As far as the weekends and special promotions, are these meant to be tied to the station's sales efforts, things that can be taken out and peddled?

Very often. When we do a special like the "Top 94 Songs of '94," we provide our affiliates with a copy of the Top 94 list, the top 94 songs of the year, which they can then use as a point-of-purchase piece. They can run promos, encourage people to come to a local store—whether it's a record store or the local auto parts store—and pick up copies of the list, so that there's a value added there. They can also sell promotional packages around most any of these weekends, so that it becomes special for the radio station and for that local market. We have a lot of affiliates that tell us that they were able to generate additional revenue, revenue that they probably would not have been able to get otherwise, via the special programming.

How affordable is this to a secondary market station or medium market station?

It's a fraction of what it would cost them if they were to program locally. And I'm not talking about having major market announcers—which we have—I'm talking about just operating a radio station, having a local person sitting there 24 hours a day, seven days a week. It costs the radio station a fraction of that amount of money to use our network service.

As far as pulling it down, what is the sophistication of the hardware that's needed?

It's actually become very basic in the last several years. There's pretty much not a whole lot to it in terms of the equipment that is required. Generally a 12-foot satellite dish and the appropriate electronics will do it. It is a one-time cost.

COIN MACHINE

VNEA Junior Match Set For June 23-25

CHICAGO—Junior pool shooters from throughout the country will be gathering at the Mayo Civic Center in Rochester, Minnesota, June 23-25, for the fifth annual VNEA International Junior Championships.

Over 1,000 VNEA junior league players are expected to compete on 60 Valley pool tables. Competition will consist of both Singles and three member Teams, who will be playing in one of three divisions—youth, minors, majors—and will range in age from nine to 20 years old.

Other events will include the Adult/Youth Scotch Doubles, where youngsters will team up with their favorite adult in this unique and challenging match.

During the Team Uniform Awards presentation, prizes will be given to the most "stylish" teams. And, for the fifth year in a row, professional pool instructor Jerry Briesath will be on hand, serving as both instructor and entertainer for the young people.

Further information may be obtained by contacting VNEA executive director Gregg Elliott at 800-544-1346.

Dollar Coin Update

CHICAGO—The American Amusement Machine Association, along with other members of the Coin Coalition, have stepped up their efforts in behalf of H.R. 534, the "U.S. One Dollar Coin Act." Association members are being urged to contact their legislators in the hope of attracting more House co-sponsors of the bill.

The dollar coin has 53 co-sponsors thus far and indications are that hearings might be held within the next three months.

Any questions relating to this issue may be directed to AAMA executive director Bob Fay at 450 E. Higgins Road, Suite 201, Elk Grove Village, IL 60007.

Midway's Cruis'n USA Can Be Linked

CHICAGO—More fun, more challenge, more earnings! Rave reviews on its Cruis'n USA 3-D cross country driving game has prompted Midway Manufacturing Company to introduce Cruis'n USA Head-2-Head and provide an all-new linked driving experience. The game adds multi-player competition to the 2,650-mile coast-to-coast joy ride.

Also included are five new competitive cars for extra driving challenges. An internal artificial intelligence mechanism prevents uneven matches to make Head-2-Head exciting, regardless of player ability.

The basic linking kit features a new chip set and linking cable. The deluxe kit also contains a dramatic, new neon attraction marquee to draw attention on location. The linking kit is available for full-motion simulator, deluxe sit-down and upright models. All Cruis'n USA models feature a 25-inch high-resolution monitor.

Head-2-Head retains the use of UltraGrafX texture-mapped video display. This technology provides 360-degree immersion, duplicating curves, crests, full-throttle bumps and jumps. State-of-the-art reality mapping adds unsurpassed realistic, photographic 3-D imagery.

Cruis'n USA Head-2-Head also features a selection of "secret vehicles." Seasoned players can drive a school bus, police car or all-terrain vehicle. At various junctures, drivers encounter potholes, pedestrians, animals and boulders in the road.

"The excitement of linking is pushing Cruis'n earnings to new heights," commented game designer Eugene Jarvis. "At the time when our competitors' games are tiring, Head-2-Head is zooming ahead with a tank full of high octane!"

Further information may be obtained through factory distributors or by contacting Midway Manufacturing Company, 3401 N. California Ave., Chicago, IL 60618.

U.S. Games Introduces Countertop Champion 2

CHICAGO—The latest entry in U.S. Games' line-up of countertop machines is called Countertop Champion 2, which offers 70 games in one and 16 advertising screens.

The new model employs sharper graphics and fast response touch-screen, among other enhancements. There are over 40 different categories of trivia, ranging from movies, food and drink, to comic books, U.S. presidents and many more.

New game choices include 3-D Bowling, Quick Draw, Shooting Gallery and Memory Master.

Countertop Champion 2 is equipped with such operator features as: front coin drop with high-grade Asahi Seiko coin mechanism; a separately locked cash box with front access and a large security hasp and full-featured accounting software with running tab of plays on each game, mechanical counter for total machine plays and re-settable electronic counter. All programming and accounting can be done via the touch-screen.

Further information may be obtained by contacting U.S. Games, Inc., 5825 B Peachtree Corner East, Norcross, GA 30092.

Register Now For NAMA Western Conclave

CHICAGO—The 34th annual NAMA Western Convention and Trade Show will be coming up April 20-22. The convention site is the Reno/Sparks Convention Center in Reno, Nevada. Deadline for advance registration is March 31.

This year's theme is "Threshold to Greater Profits!," which will be reflected in the show's format and seminar sessions. The convention floor will house more than 225 exhibits, displaying the latest in vending equipment, products and services.

Showgoers may contact the NAMA Travel Desk, 110 W. Hubbard St., Suite 300, Chicago, IL 60610-4504 or phone 1-800-666-6756 to arrange for special hotel rates and airfares.

For general information and advance registration, contact NAMA headquarters at 20 N. Wacker Drive, Suite 3500, Chicago, IL 60606-3102.

Veteran songwriter and performer Don Henley testified at a Senate Judiciary hearing on Capitol Hill recently in support of the "Digital Performance Right in Sound Recordings Act of 1995" or S. 227. In his testimony, Henley spoke for the "thousands of other artists and musicians who love the act of making music—who strive for success and look for that big break." With him on the panel were RIAA chairman Jay Berman and RIAA president Hilary Rosen (in background at left), as well as Mark Massagli, president of the American Federation of Musicians.

Virgin Records staffers gathered around legendary guitarist John Lee Hooker to celebrate his 76th birthday and the release of his latest PointBlank/Virgin Records release Chill Out, which features him performing with artists such as Carlos Santana and Van Morrison. Known as the "King Of Boogie," the pioneer Mississippi Delta blues legend was also recently inducted into Hollywood's RockWalk. He was joined at the ceremony by blues artists Bonnie Raitt, John Hammond, George Thorogood and others.

MTV's news anchors Tabitha Soren and Kurt Loder are flanked by executives from Sony Music Video and MTV Home Video during their recent appearance at HMV Records in N.Y.C. The pair were on hand to launch their video The Year In Rock, 1994, one of the recently released titles in SMV's new MTV Home Video line. Seen here are (l-r): Joe Marziotto, sales rep., Sony Music Distribution; Pete Demas, exec. producer, MTV Home Video; Soren; Loder; Carol Babeli, dir., video sales, SMD; Debbie Berman, mktg. mgr., SMD; and Donald Silvey, v.p., business development, MTV: Music Television.

Adam Sandler, "Saturday Night Live" stalwart and newly-minted matinee idol with his hit film Billy Madison, was recently awarded a Platinum album for his debut Warner Bros. Records comedy release they're all gonna laugh at you! Produced by Brooks Arthur, the million-selling album features guest appearances by SNL cast members as well as G.E. Smith and the SNL rhythm section. Pictured (l-r): Arthur; Sandler; and Warner Bros. Records sr. v.p. Liz Rosenberg.

The first single and video from the Bye Bye, Love soundtrack is a bittersweet cover of the Beatles' classic "I Will," performed by Ben Taylor and co-produced by his father James Taylor. Giant Records has released the soundtrack to 20th Century Fox's latest feature film starring Paul Reiser, Matthew Modine and Randy Quaid. The album includes Jackson Browne & Timothy B. Schmit, Mary Chapin Carpenter, Linda Ronstadt, the Everly Brothers and others. Pictured (l-r) at the recent video shoot are: Matthew Walden and Robert Kraft from 20th Century Fox; Ben Taylor; Jim Yukich, "I Will" video director; and Geoff Bywater from 20th Century Fox.
