THE ONLY WHEEL IN TOWN

Everybody concedes that the greatest invention known to man is the wheel.

And when you've got the only wheel in town, you really have something. Television Digest's 1972-73 CATV & Station Coverage Atlas is that type of a wheel.

No other publication, government or private, has so much to offer.

Now, for the first time, in one volume:

- 1) The complete text of the FCC's final CATV decision establishing Rules & Standards for Cable Television Operations,
- 2) Color coded maps of Grade A and B contours of television stations showing communities and areas served by each station, state-by-state,
- 3) 35-Mile Zone Maps of areas within 35 miles of TV markets as defined by the FCC in its final rules.

There are many more distinct features found only in the all new CATV & Station Coverage Atlas that make it the only wheel in town.

For your own copy now, use the special order card bound inside the back of the Stations Volume.

Cable: A very good year

The year just past has been the most active and productive in cable history.

After nearly five years of study, the Federal Communications Commission issued its Letter of Intent to Congress on August 5, 1971. The Commission's proposals fulfilled the pledges of Chairman Burch to get cable moving again. The closed door — if not flung wide open — was set ajar. And cable TV was challenged to develop the additional services so long envisioned for it.

But to achieve this tentative step forward, or "orderly development" as the FCC put it, major effort still remained. Opponents to the new plan sought delay.

The Rules

Through the NCTA, and its legislative committee, a successful industry-wide effort was launched to convince government leaders that the new plan must be promptly enacted. The Office of Telecommunications Policy urged modification of several portions of the Letter of Intent and sought a compromise agreement among the contesting parties — cable operators, television broadcasters and the copyright owners. The resultant OTP accommodation plan was approved by the NCTA Board of Directors, leading to the final formalization of the FCC rules, adopted on February 2, and effective on March 31, 1972.

The effort to give the cable communications industry this tentative first step forward did not just happen. It was a result of countless hours and major effort by the entire industry, led by the National Cable Television Association. The goal which was set was to open the major market areas to cable, but, at the same time, to preserve the industry in its present form to the greatest degree possible. In large measure, both goals were achieved. Cable will be able to proceed in the significant areas previously denied to it. Under the agreement the parties will support a provision in the law that would exempt from copyright payments independent cable systems having less than 3500 subscribers. This is more than 90 per cent of the small independent cable systems.

Pole Attachment Fees

Important national negotiations on pole attachment agreements continued. FCC hearings reopened in March on whether and to what degree the FCC has jurisdiction on pole attachment agreements, and are now in progress. It can reasonably be said that in excess of 10 million dollars in pole attachment fees for Bell owned or joint-owned Bell poles alone have already been saved by cable operators in the past two years as a result of NCTA and its pole line negotiating committee. This one activity alone has more than repaid to members the entire dues ever paid to the association by all NCTA member systems.

Copyright

The copyright question continues to be a major area of NCTA activity which will hopefully lead to a fair resolution of this complex question through federal copyright legislation this year. The NCTA Copyright Committee continues its negotiations with the Copyright Owners Committee on points at issue within the broad framework of the OTP compromise.

The NCTA participated in the important TelePrompTer-CBS copyright case. Arguments were concluded last fall in the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of New York. A favorable decision was handed down on May 2.

Sports Blackout

NCTA is very much concerned with the FCC's proposed rules-making proceeding on professional sports and has filed strong comments asking the FCC to adopt a blackout rule that reflects the legitimate interests of a professional sports team and no more. The sports blackout envisioned by the FCC would have serious impact on all existing as well as potential cable systems.

A new concept of a limited number of annual regional seminars has been advanced which will benefit both operators and manufacturers in reducing the financial impact and scheduling conflicts in attempting to exhibit annually at more than 40 state and regional meetings.

New election procedures overwhelmingly approved by the membership provide nine Board members to be elected on a regional basis, offering more opportunity for regional representation and involvement by the smaller operators.

Despite the tremendous strides which have been made in the past year, major problems face the Association and its members in the year ahead — problems which already are of great concern to NCTA: state moratoriums on franchise grants; state public utility commission regulation of cable television; developing responsible and responsive public access plans; encouraging the use of cable facilities for political cablecasting; support to the industry in developing new subscriber services, and responsiveness to organizations and groups that are studying cable TV and its uses.

Join with us at NCTA to meet the challenges and opportunities that are facing the cable television industry.

CERRO CABLE IS BUILT TO MOONSHOT QUALITY STANDARDS

Wire and cable used in America's Aerospace programs must be of top quality, uniform and reliable. When you're a quarter of a million miles from earth, you can't tolerate even the slightest deviation from specifications. That's why NASA and other aerospace agencies specify so much Cerro Power and control cable.

Cerro CATV trunk, feeder and drop cables are made to the same type of exacting standards. Sophisticated full logic analog/digital computer control corrects problems before they happen. You get the best quality the CATV industry has to offer, reel after reel and mile after mile of Cerro Cable.

If nothing but the best will satisfy you, call or write Cerro.

NOBODY MAKES BETTER SOLID SEAMLESS ALUMINUM SHEATHED CO-AX THAN PLASTOID.

Plastoid is the highest quality, but competitively priced aluminum sheathed coaxial. The lower attenuation, the longer life design deliver a picture that's sharper, clearer, more desirable; a selling plus for new subscribers.

Using Plastoid is like cutting the distance you have to cascade. All footage is swepttested and certified for minimum return loss of 26 dbs. (30 db available upon request.) This can mean sizable savings in installation or extension.

Lengths of up to 2500 feet are available. Make your system as long or short as you want. Then call us collect at 212/786-6200 and whatever your distance is, we'll do it a little better.

We wanted a cable with the advantages of solid copper, but at less cost to you.

Copper clad aluminum gave us the edge.

A copper edge. On the center conductor for a CATV cable. Since CATV electronic signals are transmitted only along the outer surface—the edge—of solid copper conductors, most of the copper is wasted, electronically, anyway. So it makes sense to use the transmitting copper where it's needed most, around the surface. And let the non-transmitting core be more useful by being less expensive.

Copper clad aluminum conductor does just that. It makes a center conductor for coaxial cable that handles the full range of RF signals, weighs much less than solid copper, and is easier to handle. And of course, much less expensive.

We offer this tested and proven center conductor as one of many choices in our CATV cables. It's another example of our ability to provide you with the finest quality cable in the CATV market, at the right price.

Whether your choice for your system is ALUMIFOAM®, (standard foamed polyethylene dielectric) or DYNAFOAM® (with foamed polystyrene dielectric) you can now specify copper clad center conductors for your choice and receive the same return loss values and the same attenuation characteristics as with solid copper center conductors. Write for complete information and specifications today.

this is it...

TWO-WAY plus FAIL-SAFE RELIABILITY Futura Two-Three Hundred Amplifier Series.

REDUNDANT FEATURES

- Add stand-by amplifier, sensor and DC power supply modules, as desired.
- Automatic switchover of standby modules.
- Highly reliable light emitting diodes indicate module in operation.
- Sensor module, used for switching, measures gain of RF amplifier.
- RF switching units included in removable base plate. Vacuum enclosed switches used for maximum reliability.

BI-DIRECTIONAL FEATURES

- Two way capability by simple plug-in modules.
- Two wide band channels plus thousands of narrow band return channels available for customer use.
- Status of each redundant trunk amplifier reported by each bi-directional module to a central location.
- One trunk cable required for downstream and upstream signals.
- Filters included in base plate allow bi-directional system to be obtained by plugging in return module only.

ADDITIONAL FEATURES

- All trunk amplifier modules push-pull.
- Toggle switch for AC input voltage selection from 18VAC to 60VAC.
- High reliable light emitting diodes indicate correct voltage switch position.
- External DC battery option for power supply in the event of local AC interruptions. Automatic switching and charging circuit incorporated in trunk amplifier.
- Current limiting fold back power supply design eliminates short circuit failures.
- Revolutionary latched housing for easy access.
