50,000 WATTS COMPLETELY SATURATE THE GREAT SOUTHWEST MARKET

RATE RISE STAYED • Look for FCC this week to suspend interim increase in teleprinter rates proposed by AT&T and Western Union effective Oct. 1. FCC, at special meeting last Friday, considered volume of vigorous protests filed by press associations, American Newspaper Publishers Assn., NAB (in behalf of station subscribers to news services), stock brokers and other users. FCC will take up matter again this week, with suspension likely as prelude to hearing on proposed permanent rate increases.

Private line (teleprinter) rates would have been increased average of about 25% but up to 70% in some services under interim tariffs originally proposed. AT&T, it is learned, offered compromise schedule which would have increased its rate by approximately $11 million a year (around 6%) rather than $16 million (7%-plus) originally sought. Western Union has not filed new proposal. At weekend strong protests still were reaching FCC.

SEAT WARMERS? • Insiders are terming last week's election of officers and directors of National Theatres, which put John Bertero into president's chair and moved president Elmer Rhoden into post of board chairman (see story, page 78) as temporary measure. When NTI has completed its deal to acquire NTA, assuming its approval by NTA stockholders, NTA board chairman Ely A. Laudau and NTA president Oliver A. Unger are expected to assume important positions in NTI top management, story goes.

Expected in current upgrading of top executives at Kenyon & Eckhardt (see story, page 35) is promotion of John W. Murphy, in charge of radio-tv production in New York, who appears slated for vice presidency. Alfred Tennyson, who headquarters on West Coast, is vice president and commercial production director for K & E.

SPECTRUM STUDY • While White House has maintained strict silence on plan for five-man Presidential commission to undertake overall spectrum analysis, speculation has centered around appointment of Dr. Irvin (Ike) Stewart, one-time member of FCC (1934-1937) and recently retired president of U. of West Virginia (1957), as its head. Dr. Stewart (Democrat) headed somewhat similar commission (President's Communications Policy Board) appointed by President Truman in 1950, which submitted drastic report that was never implemented into law.

There's speculation, too, about other members of five-man agency, which, if appointed, would be given six-month tenure to complete spectrum study. This would be undertaken in lieu of commission which would have been set up under Potter Resolution but died at last session after it had been drastically amended to shift burden to private rather than military users. Other names talked up: Lt. Gen. James D. O'Connell, Chief Signal Officer of Army; Rear Adm. Frank Virden, Director of Naval Communications, and either former FCC Comr. George E. Sterling or E. M. Webster, both engineers and allocation experts.

UNWELCOME BILL • One of the hotter topics at opening NAB Fall Conference in Biloxi, Miss., wasn't on agenda. Topic—NBC-TV's proposal to charge affiliates part of cost of VTR delayed networking during daylight time months. Stations complained there shouldn't be any fee because southeastern quadrant of U. S. is solidly standard time. They charged network is making them underwrite costs involved in scheduling programs to suit network's owned and operated stations. NBC-TV stations also claimed network is over-greedy in its own use of station break time, leaving less time for station use than CBS-TV affiliates are allowed.

It's meeting season for ABC-TV affiliates too. In addition to CBS Radio and NBC Radio and Tv affiliates sessions in New York next month, ABC-TV's primary affiliates are now scheduled to convene in New York Nov. 19 for meetings with network brass. Agenda understood to be primarily study of fall programming and results to that date. CBS stations meet Oct. 29-30, NBC Oct. 22-24.

NEWS PRIZE • It's better than good guess that top candidate for Radio Television News Directors Assn.'s 1958 Paul White award for distinguished contributions to electronic journalism will be Robert D. Swezey, WDSU-AM-TV New Orleans and chairman of NAB Freedom of Information Committee. While White award committee members aren't talking officially, its consensus that Mr. Swezey will be honored for fight to remove barriers of Canon 35 restricting radio-tv access to courtroom. Hugh B. Terry, KLZ-AM-TV Denver, won award for similar service before Colorado Supreme Court in 1956. Dr. Frank Stanton, CBS Inc. president, was recipient last year. Winner this year will be announced at closing banquet of RTNDA convention in Chicago Oct. 15-18.

There's strong sentiment in RTNDA circles for creation of radio-tv newsmen's hall of fame. Structure and mechanics would follow baseball's Hall of Fame at Cooperstown, N.Y., with annual balloting for nominations. It's suggested that sportscasters also be included (like Graham McNamee, Ted Husing).

VINTAGE YEAR • Tv film people are getting more conscious of passing years and continual run of "old" movies on stations. Associated Artists Productions can be expected soon to play up its Warner Bros. feature library (more than 700 features) as "pre-1950" rather than "pre-1948." AAP points out it now offers more than 40 Warner Bros. pictures released in years 1948, 1949 and 1950 and since AAP's 1956 purchase appropriate payments have been made to settle clearances outstanding.

Communications lawyers wrangled through three long, separate meetings before wording of Federal Communications Bar Assn. comment in "strike" applications rules proposal was finally cemented (see story page 72). Many lawyers felt, it's understood, that private settlement—urged in canons—is perfectly legal and ethical way to compromise differences, and that FCC proposal tars good with bad.

REUNION IN GENEVA • Commodore E. M. Webster, U. S. Coast Guard (Ret.) and former member of FCC (1947-1956), is attending International Telecommunications Conference, American delegation for which is headed by FCC Chairman John C. Doerfer. Commodore Webster, expert in international telecommunications, was assigned to conference by Western Union, for whom he acts as consultant, and acted in advisory capacity in preliminary sessions of American delegation, which sailed Sept. 12 on USS America.

Senate Commerce Committee communications expert Nick Zapple currently is on a trip to West Coast where he will confer with Chairman Warren Magnuson (D-Wash.) and special counsel Kenneth Cox, both of whom live in Seattle. Subject: upcoming committee report on tv allocations and community antenna problem. Report, originally planned for summer release, now is targeted for late fall. Mr. Zapple also plans to attend NAB regional conference Thursday and Friday in Sun Valley, Idaho.

SECOND CHAPTER • Robert McMahon, House Legislative Oversight's "communications expert," this week will deliver second report on matters he says need correcting at FCC. Latest will deal with FCC's authority to crack down on broadcasters who violate its regulations (i. e., forcing station off air at expense of public). Last spring, Mr. McMahon hit Commission "pro forma" sale approvals, "dissipating" grounds for original grant and stimulating "trafficking" in licenses [LEAD STORY, May 19].

Commission-Fee System Here to Stay, Says Harper

Defense of commission-plus-fees system of agency compensation was entered by Marion Harper Jr., president of McCann-Erickson, in speech Friday (Sept. 19) at marketing conference of National Industrial Conference Board in New York.

He appeared with Paul B. West, president of Assn. of National Advertisers, who urged case-by-case re-evaluation of commission-fees system.

"For the present, and overall," Mr. Harper said, "I am confident that individual negotiations [between agency and client] can provide both incentive and adequate compensation to the agency and value to the client—within the commission and fee system."

Mr. Harper said present system "appears to have a number of advantages that are appropriate to the advertiser-agency-medium relationship and to the services rendered by the agency." Among factors he cited: Agencies share responsibility with advertisers in end-result of marketing program; most agency services are on continuing rather than per-job basis; ideas, "the primary product of agencies, are virtually impossible to price;" agencies are providing increasing number of services for which no single price yardstick applies.

While not expecting "revolution" in commission system "for some years," he thought that "in the foreseeable future—if and when agencies make contributions that demonstrably and importantly help build a company's growth—they may be compensated in the same way that major contributions of executives are compensated. In given situations, smaller advertisers may conceivably provide the incentive of stock options or some similar device." When that day comes, he thought, agencies may not be

HOT TIP

To other uses of videotape add another: Sort of electronic tout. Yonkers (N.Y.) Raceway is using it instead of film this year to record running of races and officials say it's so speedy that judges can review tape (for fouls, etc.) by time photo-finish still picture is delivered. They say also that VTR is adding whoppingly to track take (some estimates have ranged as high as $30,000 extra per night, but track officials would confirm no exact figure). Tape's role in increasing betting apparently stems from fact race results can be posted faster, thus giving more time for betting on next race—which horseplayers are reluctant to do till they've seen results of last one.

competing for clients so much as clients will be striving to retain their productive agencies.

FCC Refuses to Extend Daytimers' On-Air Hours

FCC Friday issued order denying Daytime Broadcasters Assn. petition for extended hours of operation for daytime am stations (from 5 a.m. or local sunrise, whichever is earlier, to 7 p.m. or local sunset, whichever is later).

FCC said population which would gain service by extended daytimer hours is "vastly exceeded" by that which would lose service of existing stations through added interference to all but few of 107 frequencies if proposal were approved. Operation by daytimers during non-daytime hours would serve only fraction of their daytime areas and populations, "sharply limiting" gains in service, FCC said.

Additional interference created would limit service of clear channel, unlimited time Class II and III stations so they in many instances would not serve all communities to which they are assigned, order said, adding: "While a first nighttime primary service would be afforded to some population during these hours, and a first local service would be afforded to more than 900 communities in the nation, extensive 'white areas,' in which the population would lose all nighttime primary service, would be created." All secondary service on virtually all clear channels would be destroyed, FCC said, and service to rural areas would be lost because of destruction of secondary service (only service received by some 20 million persons in about half area of U.S.) and "vast impairment" of primary service during hours involved.

Severe interference to foreign stations would occur, inconsistent with "international understanding," FCC added. Overall degradation of service would necessarily create greater needs in emergencies than those proposals would fulfill, FCC continued.

Answering argument local service gained would be of value to local population while lost service from distant stations would be of little consequence to those who would lose it, FCC said "record shows" that service lost would not be "solely or principally" that of distant stations but also would occur close to communities where such stations are located. Besides, record shows many full-time stations, both clear and regional, program for outlying communities which would lose service, FCC said.

Order was issued by six-member Commission (Comr. Rosel Hyde acting as chairman in absence of John C. Doerfer). Comr. John S. Cross issued concurring statements sympathizing with daytimers and adding, "I reach this conclusion with regret."

BUSINESS BRIEFLY

Late-breaking items about broadcast business; for earlier news, see ADVERTISERS & AGENCIES, page 32.

FORD FOR FALL • Ford Div. of Ford Motor Corp., Dearborn, Mich., has completed its plan for broadcast support to introduction of 1959 models during second week of October. Ford, through J. Walter Thompson, New York, currently is purchasing substantial spot radio campaign for its passenger car that will break in major markets during that week. Surprise part of Ford buying: one-shots signed in programs on all three tv networks on behalf of complete line of trucks, for which Ford also is buying some spot radio. Network shows (for introduction period): participation in ABC-TV's Sugarfoot and Cheyenne on Oct. 14 and Oct. 21 respectively; NBC-TV's Dragnet Oct. 28, and on CBS-TV the following, one-third of Perry Mason Oct. 25 and one-half of Playhouse 90 Oct. 16 and three Douglas Edwards With the News programs, Oct. 15, 17, and 21. Ford's regular network schedule includes full sponsorship on alternate weeks of Wagon Train and all of weekly half-hour Ford Show (Tennessee Ernie Ford), both NBC-TV, and weekend segments of Ford Roadshow on CBS Radio.

SILVER LINING • Sterling Silversmiths Guild of America, N. Y., which last quarter used only one network (NBC Radio), reportedly is seeking maximum audience impact by buying both NBC Radio and CBS Radio—segments in three programs on each network slotted opposite each other. Campaign on both networks kicks off end of October for eight weeks. Supplementing this strategy, Fuller & Smith & Ross, guild's agency, is adding 10-week radio spot campaign in 22 markets starting Oct. 6. Purpose: To promote gift-giving of sterling silver at Christmas and other occasions.

PENETRATION • Lever Bros.' new Handy Andy liquid all-purpose household detergent is close to achieving penetration south and west of Rockies. Buying out of Kenyon & Eckhardt, N. Y., continues without letup (see story, page 35) for markets in Arizona, Oregon, Washington. Tv spot is basic medium.

BACK AGAIN • Monarch Wine Co. (Manischewitz), Brooklyn, N. Y., coming back to spot tv after summer hiatus with special drive for Manischewitz fruit wines. Re-using theme "everybody's wine . . . because it tastes so good," Monarch agency, Lawrence C. Gumbinner Adv., N. Y., now seeks to lock up about 60 markets scattered in Far West, Midwest, East and South for pre-Christmas drive, beginning middle of

Harris Wants One Agency To Control Full Spectrum

Rep. Oren Harris (D-Ark.) said last week that he planned to re-introduce legislation in next session of Congress calling for study of utilization of radio spectrum (see story, page 66). Speaking last week before Arkansas Telephone Assn., House Commerce Committee chairman also called for establishment of single agency to control both military and civilian use of spectrum.

"I regret the action of the [broadcast] industry in suddenly opposing the study and investigation . . ." of spectrum, Rep. Harris said. Such a proposal passed Senate in 85th Congress but was killed in House after Commerce Committee had accepted White House amendments [GOVERNMENT, Aug. 11].

Rep. Harris said he had "complete sympathy" for broadcasters' fears that military is after additional spectrum space. However, he expressed hope that establishment of single agency to control all of spectrum would make more frequencies available for civilian use. Rep. Harris stated: "As demand for spectrum space grows, the need for unified control over this valuable resource for civilian and military purposes has become more and more apparent."

Guild, Roach Sign VTR Pact

One-million dollar exclusive long-term pact between Guild Films and Hal Roach Studios was announced over weekend. Under agreement, Roach lot will be equipped with orthicon camera chains and videotape equipment to make it in effect "complete tv station without a transmitter," announcement by Hal Roach Jr., president, Hal Roach Studios, and John J. Cole, Guild president, said.

Guild has already obtained two Ampex machines, one installed at KCOP (TV) Los Angeles, other in New York, and is negotiating with Ampex for undisclosed number of videotaping units. "Four machines are in standby position, available to us Nov. 1," Mr. Cole said. He estimated that remodeling to equip Roach for videotaping as well as motion picture production would take about three months.

'Pravda' Accuses NBC

NBC Friday declined comment on Pravda blast at network for "maliciously" violating agreement with Soviet that called for recorded tv interviews with several USSR leaders to be seen in Youth Wants to Know. Soviets claimed delay in showing interview with First Deputy Premier Anastas Mikoyan and of coupling film show with live "anti-Soviet fabrications." NBC-TV explained fortnight ago it delayed showing films because it wanted to reach greater audience by moving Youth Wants to Know to later time period.

Why National Airlines Counsel Tried to Hire Mack's Friend

Purpose for which Paul R. Scott, general counsel of National Airlines, attempted to hire Miami attorney Thurman A. Whiteside was probed at Friday's session of Miami ch. 10 rehearing (see earlier story, page 68).

Mr. Scott maintained all he wanted was to have Mr. Whiteside's name entered as counsel so Comr. Richard A. Mack would be impressed with respectability of National Airlines principals. This, Mr. Scott averred, was like having noted constitutional lawyers John W. Davis or George Wharton Pepper appear as of counsel in U. S. Supreme Court brief. Mr. Whiteside and Mr. Mack were close friends. Mr. Whiteside is scheduled to testify today and tomorrow.

Mr. Scott stated he did not attempt to hire Mr. Whiteside to have him talk to Mr. Mack about case. There has been testimony that Mr. Whiteside did talk to Mr. Mack about Miami ch. 10 case while final decision was pending.

National Airlines general counsel related steps taken to hire Mr. Whiteside as "defensive" move to counter purported "shenanigans" by other parties. He said he had no recollection of any proposed fee when James Brennan, FCC counsel, asked if $10,000 was mentioned.

Mr. Whiteside said he would not accept fee or become counsel of record, Mr. Scott testified, but offered to help. Mr. Scott said he treated offer as nothing more than "graceful gesture."

Mr. Scott testified before House Legislative Oversight Committee that at another time. Mr. Whiteside called him and said there was so much pressure on Mr. Mack in ch. 10 case that he (Whiteside) would have to withdraw his offer to help.

Affiliates Like ABC-TV Plans

"Pleased and shocked—pleasantly shocked" were words used by head of ABC-TV Affiliates Assn. to describe reaction after network officials presented fall and future program and other plans to association's board in semi-annual meeting Friday in San Francisco.

Chairman Joe C. Drilling, KJEO-TV Fresno, said board members were "enthusiastic" about ABC-TV's plans and, with network getting into daytime on substantial basis, no longer considered themselves affiliates with "half a network."

He said that plans to become competitive in sports coverage also were well received. Friday afternoon session of board was to be devoted to affiliates' "problems" with ABC-TV but Mr. Drilling said no "basic" ones were left after morning presentation, when handling of what had been considered problems—such as product protection—was explained by network officials.

PEOPLE

JAMES T. BUTLER and WILLIAM C. GOODNOW appointed respective managers of WISN and WISN-TV Milwaukee effective today (Sept. 22). They replace JOHN B. CHARLES GODWIN, newly elected station vice president of Mutual, will represent that network on NAB board of directors.

EDMUND ANDERSON, formerly with Ketchum, MacLeod & Grove, and JOHN J. MACDONALD, formerly with Sullivan, Stauffer, Colwell & Bayles, join Dancer-Fitzgerald-Sample, N. Y., as commercial producer and tv art director respectively.

C. HERBERT MASSE, formerly sales manager of WBZ-TV Boston, named account executive for ABC Films Inc. in upper New York state and New England.

JACK PRICE, formerly account executive with NBC Spot Sales, named to sales staff of WNEW-TV New York.

LEO PILLOT, previously exploitation director of Rank Film Distributors of America, to ABC-TV to handle field exploitation on "Operation Daybreak," network's new daytime programming concept.

October. Tv push will be supplemented with campaign on Negro radio stations.

COLD WAVE • Chesebrough-Pond's (Pertussin), through McCann-Erickson, N.Y., has bought 8-10 week spot-tv schedules in 50 markets, beginning Oct. 13. Approximately six spots per week will be used in each market.

DOUBLE SPOT • Warwick & Legler Inc., whose spot activity this past summer quieted down to give clients hot-weather respite, is back again with two major fourth-quarter campaigns: Warner-Lambert Pharmaceutical's Bromo-Seltzer (Emerson Labs. Div., Baltimore) this week kicks off 75-market tv spot drive to last through end of year. This is to be followed by 15-market Ex-Lax (laxative) tv push to supplement Brooklyn firm's four radio network spread.

RECEPTIVITY

Programing on Bartell Family Radio is pointed toward audience participation and response. That's why our continuous succession of copyright games for family fun . . . that's why our never-ending stream of response-producing featurettes . . . and the thorough local news coverage with names and addresses.

bartell family radio puts the audience into a "mental focus" which music and news alone cannot do.

And with mental focus comes RECEPTIVITY . . . "a disposition to receive suggestions" says Webster . . . a state of mind upon which an advertising message is most effective.

How to fish for men with the help of Air EXpress and Extra-Fast Delivery.

This is the story of a big profit that didn't get away. Seems that when a run of fish develops anywhere in the country, men from miles around rush to buy rods, reels, hooks, everything. The fish won't wait, and fishermen can't. So an alert manufacturer casts his net in these moneyed waters, and lands the business — with the help of Air EXpress. He speeds deliveries to stores, even thousands of miles away, no later than overnight.

If you, too, would like to land extra sales — no matter what you sell — call Air EXpress, the name with the "X" in it. For Air EXpress is the only complete door-to-door air shipping service to thousands of U.S. cities and towns. It multiplies your selling opportunities with 10,212 daily flights on America's scheduled airlines — plus fast pick-up with 13,500 trucks (many radio controlled) — plus a nationwide private wire system. Yet Air EXpress is inexpensive; a 15 lb. shipment from South Bend, Indiana to Grand Junction, Colorado costs only $8.03 with Air EXpress — $1.68 less than any other complete air shipping method. Explore all the facts. Call Air EXpress.

BRAINS AND BRAWN

A new quiz show is quite a novelty these scandalous days. And, in the case of NBC-TV's European import Brains and Brawn, it's the novelty of its approach to the business at hand that lifts it above the run-of-the-mill quizzer.

Two two-man teams, with a "brain" and a "brawn" on each, compete for the dangled loot, which has a top limit of $30,000 (the losers receiving autos for their time and trouble). The opening stanza had space-age expert Willy Ley and Vanguard rocket chieftain Kurt Stehling attempting to answer studio questions about rockets, trips to planets, and astronomical names of satellites, while out on the links, golfers Sam Snead and Tommy Bolt were competing with their irons.

The "brains" didn't live up to advance billing on opening night as they answered only one of three questions asked. The "brawns" fared better, failing in only one feat: an attempt to duplicate a difficult shot made three decades ago by golf immortal Bobby Jones. To golfers, National Open champion Bolt's three iron shots straight down a 215-yd. fairway to within inches of the hole was a remarkable feat. Even non-golfers straightened up and took notice, especially since Sammy Snead managed to get only one of his three shots on the green.

If the studio portion can receive an injection of visual interest to match that of the remote segments, Brains and Brawn should prove a winner.

Chain-smoking mc's Jack Lescoulie and Fred Davis handle their chores in a competent manner, though the viewing audience is usually a step ahead of Lescoulie in determining the winning "brawn."

Production costs: Approximately $32,000.

Sponsored by Liggett & Myers (L&M, Oasis cigarettes), through McCann-Erickson on NBC-TV Saturday, 10:30-11 p.m. EDT. Started Sept. 13.

Production: Ile de France International Productions Inc.; executive producer: Herb Moss; consultant to producer: Pierre Bellemare; associate producers: Boris Frank, Jerry Landay, Herb Strauss; directors: Paul Bogart, Craig Allen; musical directors: William Kelley, William Patterson; announcer: Bill Wendell.

THE PLYMOUTH SHOW
STARRING LAWRENCE WELK

With a bit of cooperation from the television viewer (who was asked to tune the radio with his tv), the new Lawrence Welk program on Sept. 10 produced a musical treat: a definite stereophonic effect. The program was said to be the first tv-radio stereophonic broadcast on a coast-to-coast basis (it covered five cities). The result was one of richness, fullness and depth of sound. Even with the radio turned off, the music seemed richer and fuller.

The first program highlighted Mr. Welk's new "Little Band," composed of gifted teenage musicians. They were uniformly excellent. Outstanding perhaps were Chris Piazza on the chord organ; Sheryl Swint on the piano and Cubby O'Brien on the drums. The program was a musical delight, covering the range of classical selections, standard melodies and Dixieland jazz. Mr. Welk knows how to strike the popular chord.

Production Costs: Approximately $20,000.

Sponsored by the Plymouth Div., Chrysler Corp., through Grant Adv., on ABC-TV and on ABC Radio (in New York, Chicago, Detroit, Los Angeles and San Francisco), Wednesday, 7:30-8:30 p.m. EDT. Started Sept. 10.

Executive producer: Sam Lutz; producer: Edward Sobol; director: James Hobson.

WANTED: DEAD OR ALIVE

If a new western series starring an unknown named John Wayne and called Stagecoach appeared, there would be more than a few viewers to groan, "Oh, no, not another one!"

Keeping this in mind, it can be said that CBS-TV's newest entry, Wanted: Dead or Alive, neither fails nor exceeds the present western norm. It has a lean hero: Steve McQueen, who is of the John Wayne rather than the Maverick school. It has plenty of action: In the Sept. 13 episode, there were fights between men, between women and a gun duel ending with one dead villain. It adheres to the old-fashioned rules: The colonel's daughter kissed the hero for clearing her father's name, but he didn't kiss her back.

There is a simplicity and tautness about the entire production which may draw conservative fans alarmed by the subtle effiteness of the adult western. At the end of the Sept. 13 show, the hero mounted his horse and rode off down the dusty trail to round up them fake posters (around which the plot revolved). As Mr. McQueen put it: "A man's gotta make a livin'."

It may be presumed that he will be making a fair living as a tv bounty hunter for the next 39 weeks anyway.

Production costs: Approximately $39,000 weekly.

Sponsored by Brown & Williamson (Viceroy) through Ted Bates on CBS-TV Saturday, 8:30-9 p.m. EDT. Started Sept. 6.

Producer: John Robinson; Directors: Thomas Carr and Donald McDougall.

STEVE CANYON

The drumbeaters for Milton Caniff's Pegasus Productions, have left no cliché unturned in driving home "the fact" that no newspaper comic strip has ever "successfully" been translated to television.

The premiere of Steve Canyon ought to reassure aficionados of the Sunday supplement that there's a mile-wide difference between the two Canyons. So much to the credit of newspapers. Taken for what it is—the makings of another tv trend, this time to the sky—Steve Canyon is interesting just so long as it remains in the air. With its landing flaps down, the series screeches into

In these days of high prices and low boiling points, a lot of broadcasters are relying on all sorts of attention-getting devices. Unfortunately most of them serve only to distract and confuse.

KHJ Radio, Los Angeles, believes that the best attention-getter (and attention-holder) is solid, mature programming, designed to specifically meet the variety of tastes that make up America's 2nd Market.

Nobody ever built up a loyalty to a kazoo or a glockenspiel, but for 36 years Los Angeles listeners have been loyal to KHJ's FOREGROUND SOUND and to the personalities on our air.

Never underestimate the variety of tastes in the Greater Los Angeles area. Here is a medium programmed to satisfy them all.

a muddy field of implausible situations and jarring officer dialogue that would send straight-backed Pentagonians scurrying for the Uniform Code of Military Conduct.

While Lt. Col. Stevenson B. Canyon USAF AO 041-044 is made of more believable stuff than some of his comic-strip predecessors, his tv counterpart suffers dreadfully from what apparently is a lack of oxygen. As portrayed by tight-lipped Dean Fredericks, this hero ought to feel more at home standing next to Sgt. Joe Friday at Madame Tussaud's Wax Works than at the wheel of a KB-50 fueling ship. The Pegasus promoters point out no little time nor effort has gone into securing a chap who looks the part of Col. Canyon. No doubt. Now all that remains is to find a chap who can also act.

The series opens with a pompous, Drag-net-like preamble that implies you've got to like this show or face the Un-American Activities Board. This is followed by a stirring "up-we-go-into-the-wild-blue-etc." theme by the late Walter Schumann. One senses danger. Somebody's going to get killed. Somebody does.

After all is said and done and the heroes fly off happily ever after, flight shock sets in. The initial reaction is one of keen disappointment.

Production costs: Approximately $48,000. Sponsored by Liggett & Myers (Chesterfield) through McCann-Erickson on NBC-TV, Saturday, 9-9:30 p.m. EDT. Started Sept. 13.

Produced by Pegasus Productions Inc. BOOKS

THE ADMEN—a novel by Shepherd Mead. Published by Simon & Schuster, 630 Fifth Ave., New York. 309 pages. $4.

Madison Avenue habitues are finding out that there's a distinctly serious side to the many-faceted Shep Mead—until his retirement two years ago at age 41, radio-tv vice president at Benton & Bowles Inc.

Shep Mead used to liken himself to Francis Scott Key: he wrote by dawn's early light—and how he wrote! Eight plays—satirical novels and a number of do-it-yourself manuals that made mince-meat out of old-fashioned ethics.

This time Mr. Mead has come up with something refreshing: a serious novel about admen and adwomen in which there are only demi-villains, and even then, they're not terribly good at their knavery.

The entire action of this novel is confined to an 18-day period of trial-error-and-triumph at Branch Torrey Assoc., a middle-sized agency presided over by temperamental, hard-and-fast-driving Branch Torrey whose rough-shod tactics are nicely balanced by the bland diplomatics of Sherwood Ernst, a boy-hood friend of dubious talents who plays Faust to Torrey's Mephistopheles. Orbiting around this twosome are copywriters given to sporadic bouts with alcoholism and sex; account executives who proclaim their rugged independence by standardizing their wardrobe to the nth degree; clients who delight in ridiculing the professionals and a chap named Chip—whose competition with Torrey goes as far as the conjugal couch.

This might read quite like the personae dramatis of any past-published advertising "expose." But Mr. Mead has stripped the characters of all artifice—here you will find no talk about sincere ties or running it up the flagpole. Instead, you will spend those 18 days with Torrey's associates—as your shop loses a big rotisserie account, makes a frantic pitch for—and gets—a much bigger electric shaver account; you sit through a session of "groupthink" or "brainstorming"; you will watch an overly-departmentalized client trample a perfectly decent ad to pieces by the "committee system."

Mr. Mead has spared us little; in many instances, not enough. Read The Admen and check your private "Glamour Counter." There'll be few clicks on the register.

THE BIG COMPANY LOOK—a novel by J. Harvey Howells. Published by Doubleday & Co., Garden City, New York. 384 pages. $3.95.

The author is emerging as leader of a back-to-the-grass-roots movement. Last spring in this magazine he advanced the theory that all advertising is not concentrated on Madison Avenue [MONDAY MEMO, May 26]. Now from his New Orleans (Fitzgerald Adv.) vantage, the avenue fugitive takes a retrospective look at city-oriented big business and the professional managers.

It is obvious that the writer has covered the same ground as his hero, Jack Pollock, boy wonder of the food promotion world. In pursuit of the big-company "look" Jackson Pollock steps out of college into the promotion department of a midwest-based food combine. From there on, it's a dizzying trip for the young man out of the ranks of one company and into the executive suite of another firm in New York. It reads much of the time like a case history from The Organization Man.

Many will feel they have read it before. It seems to be the story of the age—man caught up in the machine. Mr. Howells' version has an authentic sound, a frightening impact and some well drawn characters. Particularly amusing, in an ironic way, is the crusty head of one of the two food empires in Jackson Pollock's career. Mr. Pollock's boss is an ex-country boy, product of the American tradition—grown old and rich but preferring to retain the farm vernacular and give the executives their heads. But at a board meeting the old genius can still outwit them all, topping the most ruthless tactics any of his young men in a hurry can offer. The Big Company Look ought to be of interest to workers in any size company.

(and another testimonial for BROADCASTING)

This is an unusual kind of advertisement. It appeared in BROADCASTING's issue of July 28, 1958. It offers $500 in cash prizes to bona fide timebuyers who (a) could name the top Louisville station in the forthcoming July-August Hooperating; and who (b) could come nearest to the daytime share-of-audience figure. It was "blind"—i.e., didn't identify the advertiser.

Here was the follow-up, announcing the names of timebuyers in New York, Chicago and Detroit who came closest to the official Hooperating score. (Top winner was only .5% low.) As you see, the advertiser is WAKY.

As contests go, this was quite a rousing one. A total of 286 qualified timebuyers mailed their predictions to Box 290 at BROADCASTING. That's quite a passel of timebuyers. As a matter of fact, computed against BROADCASTING's total PAID circulation of almost 6,000 agency-advertiser executives (biggest by far in the TV-radio field, incidentally), this is roughly one response for every 21 paid subscribers. Or, among advertising agency readers alone, it's about one in 11!

Small wonder that WAKY owner Gordon McLendon wrote the letter you see here. "Evidently," he concludes, "you can't bury anything in BROADCASTING. Rest assured that we are delighted."

This sort of thing happens all the time. If you'd like to be delighted, too, we're happy to oblige. The only requirement in our contest is that you place your message in BROADCASTING. No guesswork involved. After all, why shouldn't the far-&-away No. 1 business-weekly of television and radio be able to do the far-&-away No. 1 advertising job?

The race is over! And WAKY has won away with Louisville's radio day! In the July 28 issue of BROADCASTING, WAKY's blind ad offered $500 to each of the three timebuyers who most accurately handicapped the leading station in the July-August Louisville Hooper.

The Winners:

D. T. Ellman, Jr. RSD & O New York	--- $250 ---	who predicted 48.6% share of audience
Morris Berns, J. Walter Thompson Chicago	--- $150 ---	who predicted 47.1% share of audience
Jordan Phoe, Hanson, Inc. Detroit	--- $100 ---	who predicted 46.5% share of audience

The Hooper July-August ad day report showing WAKY with a 49.1% share of audience is confirmed by the July-August Trends, which give WAKY a 51% ad day average.

Dear Ed:

Well, WAKY's 49.1% Hooper in Louisville was a shaver! All right, but nothing compared to the response we had from our ad.

As you know, we ran a single page ad blind and white, one line whip, offering $500.00 to the timebuyers who could predict most accurately the Hoopering of this station and the share of audience in the July-August Louisville Hoopering. I never thought when I ran the ad that you had buried it in the middle of the book, but certainly you had a hunch, as I did.

You can certainly take credit for all the 286 replies received, since BROADCASTING was the only magazine carrying our one-line only ad.

Thanks for your fine cooperation. Ed, and for assured that we are delighted.

Kindly personal return.

First flash from Arbitron!

(A CLEAN SWEEP FOR WCBS-TV)

It's electronic! It's instantaneous! But the results are the same: WCBS-TV is New York's number one television station.

Minute by minute throughout the broadcast day, Arbitron, the exciting new electronic rating service, measures New York viewing instantaneously — and Channel 2 piles up impressive margins of leadership.

During the first week of continuous operation, Arbitron flashed this report:

WCBS-TV has the largest share by far of total audience viewing, with a 59% lead over the second-place station;

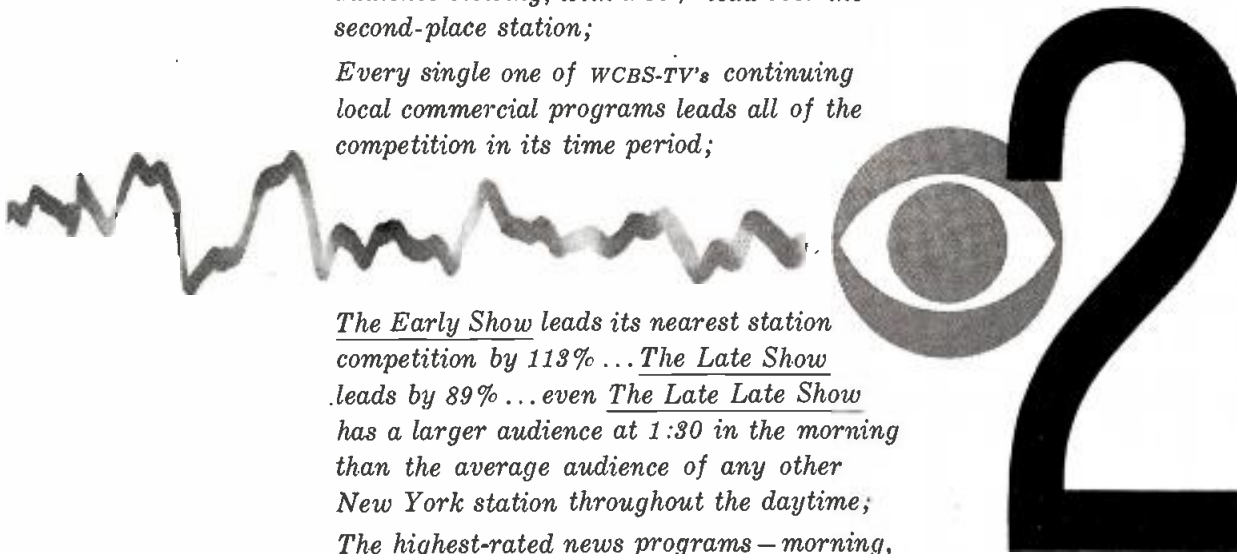

Every single one of WCBS-TV's continuing local commercial programs leads all of the competition in its time period;

The Early Show leads its nearest station competition by 113% ... The Late Show leads by 89% ... even The Late Late Show has a larger audience at 1:30 in the morning than the average audience of any other New York station throughout the daytime; The highest-rated news programs — morning, afternoon, early evening and late evening — are all on WCBS-TV; to Michael Joseph Higgins Jr.

9 of the top 10 shows are on WCBS-TV.

SOME three decades ago a 12-year-old caddy, Joe Higgins, had an important hunch. Listening to the conversation of businessmen-golfers at the Dayton, Ohio, golf course operated by the MacGregor golf equipment firm, he decided to parlay his own aptitude for the game into a commercial career.

The result—Joe Higgins is general manager of WTHI-AM-TV Terre Haute, Ind., and president of the Indiana Broadcasters Assn., and represents his district on the NAB Radio Board. Though golf is a spare-time pursuit, he has won countless tournaments and holds six low gross trophies won at the annual BROADCASTING golf tournaments held at NAB conventions. One year he won both low gross and net.

Golfing contacts led to Mr. Higgins' Terre Haute connection. A time salesman at WIBC Indianapolis in 1947, he played an exhibition match with Sammy Snead, Bobby Locke and Fred Wampler at the Indianapolis Speedway golf course for the benefit of the Police Athletic League. An interested spectator was Anton Hulman Jr., principal in the Speedway ownership and associated with Frank McKinney in radio and other properties.

A few days later Mr. McKinney offered him the managership of the new WTHI, soon to take the air. He's still running WTHI as well as the tv station added in 1954.

Joe Higgins' introduction to golf was on the rugged side. When he showed up at the MacGregor course to earn caddying money, the older caddies set up a rugged-hazing for the 12-year-old. He was directed to fight five selected caddies. What the hazers didn't know was that the Catholic fathers at St. Josephs Orphanage in Cincinnati had trained him to use his dukes. The hazing ceremony ended quickly, and caddy Higgins went right to work. Golf came easily to him and by 16 he was often shooting in the sixties.

Joe went to the orphanage at age 6 when his mother died. Some years later his father remarried and took him to Dayton. When financial tragedy struck the family in 1929, he entered Parker co-op high school where he worked two weeks and went to school two weeks, graduating in 1933. During his school years he worked in the advertising department of the Dayton Daily News, a Cox newspaper. After graduation he went to work fulltime.

GETTING restless in 1934, and perhaps contemplating the 12-month golfing in Florida, he signed on as an apprentice engraver at the Cox-owned Miami Daily News. Six months later the union voted to have no more apprentices. Jobless, he returned to Dayton and went to work at the Reynolds & Reynolds printing plant making offset plates.

His caddying career had included bag-carrying for E. B. Newill, now vice president of General Motors and then chief engineer of Frigidaire at Dayton. The Frigidaire advertising department normally hired only college graduates but Mr. Newill helped find him a spot in the mailroom and he soon shifted to advertising. At Frigidaire he met Kathleen Helmig and they were married in 1938. They went to night sessions at U. of Dayton two years.

At age 24 he joined MacGregor Golf as advertising manager. The job gave him the chance to play the nation's best golfers. He had won the Dayton city championship in 1937 and took it again in 1942. At Dayton he moved to Chrysler Airtemp division where he headed the price and order department and aided in postwar planning. When he took the Chrysler job he discovered from a birth certificate required by wartime rules that his name included a "Michael" and a "Jr."

When the Indianapolis News bought WIBC in 1944 Joe was hired to help arrange a move from hillbilly to urban programming. He learned management and time-selling at WIBC, leading to the Terre Haute opportunity in 1947.

Joe Higgins runs WTHI-AM-TV by the committee system, discussing, planning, making changes and improvements. "It's no problem when people make mistakes, but there must be action and lots of it," he said, and added, "My owners have never second-guessed me."

The whole Higgins family goes in for golf, including Mrs. Higgins and Sue, 19. Mike (III) 18, and Sharon, 11. Mrs. Higgins had emergency surgery at Los Angeles at the close of the last NAB convention but was soon ready to resume traveling after leaving the hospital.

Joe's industry activities include secretary-treasurer of the CBS Radio Affiliates. He set precedent Sept. 6 by staging an all-day rally with most of the state and national legislative candidates and their wives, with Indiana Broadcasters Assn. as host. His list of civic activities is a yard long, including Rotary, Elks and Knights of Columbus as well as chairman of the Catholic Information Committee in Terre Haute.

THE WASH THAT STOPPED THE DRAIN

More than fifty years ago, U. S. Steel scientists found a way to reclaim the iron particles in low grade ores by washing away the useless sandy particles. Thus they obtained a high grade ore from a low grade one—which early miners had pushed aside as worthless. In 1910, they built their first plant to handle this job of ore beneficiation, because they knew that even vast ore deposits like those of the Mesabi Range in Minnesota would soon be drained if only the richest ores were scooped out to feed our steel-hungry economy.

Today, more than 1/3 of all the iron ore shipped out of Minnesota is beneficiated ore. And U. S. Steel's research work on ore beneficiation is still going on to find even better ways to utilize and stretch our ore deposits.

MONEY ON THE MOVE IN TV FILM

Wrather's $11.35 million TPA buy latest symptom in shifting business

THE distribution of millions of dollars in annual television film sales appeared last week to be headed for major changes. Behind the speculation: the restless realignment of ownership interests evident over the past several weeks.

The changes being fashioned were pointed up most recently—and most dramatically—by last week's announcement that Jack Wrather's new and heavily endowed Independent Television Corp. had bought out Television Programs of America for $11.35 million. While the ITC-TPA deal was the most spectacular, it actually was only one of many recent expansions, mergers and acquisitions that may in time rearrange big portions of the lineup of leading distributors.

Days after the ITC-TPA announcement, CBS Inc. let it be known—at least by implication—that it is out to get a bigger chunk of the foreign market. It announced the creation of two subsidiaries, CBS Europe Ltd. and CBS Ltd.—to handle licensing and distribution of tv films and properties in Britain and on the continent. This not only will permit greater concentration on the foreign market but will free CBS-TV Film Sales Inc., already one of the topmost distributors (and incidentally to be renamed CBS Films), for even more intense selling on the domestic front.

Even the sale of the Mutual radio network [LEAD STORY, Sept. 15] may in time have a measurable effect on tv film sales. A. L. Guterman, Mutual's new president, reportedly assured staff members in a get-acquainted session last week that the company not only would acquire tv and radio stations up to the FCC-set limit, but also planned to get into film network operation. Mutual's new owner: Hal Roach Studios, which a short time ago announced a $15 million production schedule of six tv series and 20 feature films, plus plans for formation of a releasing organization for both tv and theatrical films and the financing of outside productions [FILM, Aug. 25].

The country's only existing national film network, National Television Assoc., meanwhile is continuing an expansion program of its own. This many-armed organization announced last week that it had acquired control of Telestudios Inc., New York, producer of videotaped commercials and programs. The move was attributed to NTA's growing interest in tv tape. What effect tape will have on the film business is, of course, the question everybody in the business wants answered.

NTA also stands to gain from its planned merger with National Theatres Inc., the nation's second largest theatre chain and, like NTA, also a station owner. The merger was approved by the NTA board a month ago and now awaits clearance by stockholders and certain government agencies [FILM, Aug. 25]. National Theatres, incidentally, realigned its top echelon last week (see page 78).

Another move which could have strong bearing on the film picture came last week in United Artists Corp.'s bid to acquire full control of Associated Artists Productions, a major distributor which handles Warner Bros. feature product and other films. This move had been anticipated for months but was delayed by litigation finally settled out of court. It is still subject to stockholder and other approvals.

The rundown on last week's principal developments follows below.

ITC OFF TO FAST START WITH ACQUISITION OF TPA

Jack Wrather, who last month told the world that his new Independent Television Corp. would be the equal of any in tv within 30 days [FILM, Aug. 25], started making good on his promise last week. He did it the fast way, shelling out $11.35 million to take over all assets and subsidiaries of Television Programs of America.

The result: a new power mover in the film industry, representing a total financial investment of approximately $25 million.

Mr. Wrather termed the TPA deal "the first of several expansion moves planned for ITC both here and abroad." He was not specific about others he might have in mind. The purchase was announced jointly by Mr. Wrather and Milton Gordon, president of TPA.

These are the tv properties ITC picked up with TPA: Fury, Ramar of the Jungle, Private Secretary, Last of the Mohicans, Charlie Chan, Tugboat Annie, Count of Monte Cristo, Ellery Queen, Halls of Ivy, Stage 7, Cannonball and New York Confidential. The latter two are new series now in production. Also included: distribution rights to Jeff's Collie (reruns of the Lassie series, owned by the Jack Wrather Organization) and foreign distribution rights to Lassie, The Lone Ranger and Sergeant Preston of the Yukon (also owned by the Wrather firm).

TPA subsidiaries now under ITC include TPA Ltd. (British), TPA Films Ltd. (Canadian), TPA Music Co. (California), Normandy Productions Ltd. (Canadian) and Donall & Harmon Inc., a New York advertising agency.

JACK WRATHER

Incorporated Programme numbers among its assets the television series Robin Hood, William Tell and Invisible Man.

UNITED ARTISTS MAKES BID TO ACQUIRE ASSOCIATED ARTISTS

United Artists Corp., through its subsidiary United Artists Associated Inc., has made its first move to acquire all the assets of Associated Artists Productions Corp., a major distributor of feature films for television.

With litigation cleared away, UAA offers $11 in cash for each share of AAP stock plus 6% interest from July 1, 1958, until the closing date. The offer also includes $7 for each warrant that represents the right to buy four shares of stock. UAA proposes $1,186 and interest from July 1, for each $1,000 6% subordinated convertible sinking fund debenture. Offer expires at the close of business Oct. 16, although it can be extended beyond that date if circumstances warrant.

Holders of AAP debentures will meet Oct. 6 at Toronto (AAP traces its creation to Canadian interests) and stockholders will meet Oct. 16 in Wilmington, Del., to give consideration to the offer.

The full acquisition of AAP has been pending for some time—ever since UA first announced in late 1957 its purchase of 700,000 shares of AAP's capital at $12 a share, half in cash. Litigation clouding this purchase was cleared in an out of court settlement this summer with a payment of $2 million by UA to National Telefilm Assoc., which also had sought control of AAP.

Eliot Hyman, president of AAP, also is president of UAA.

UA last week took note of the litigation settlement and pointed out that an arrangement has been consummated for bank loans to finance its acquisition of AAP. AAP distributes Warner Bros. feature films, Warner cartoons and Popeye cartoons as well as numerous other feature films and some tv films. United Artists Associated will continue to distribute these films. UA has a management contract with UAA and an option to acquire all of its stock at a later date—UAA was formed expressly for the purpose of acquiring the corporate assets of AAP.

UA is a multi-faceted entertainment enterprise, principally a financing-distribution organization, its major revenue stemming from theatrical motion pictures. In the past two years, UA has entered tv film production and financing, sale of feature film to tv, phonograph recording, music publishing and motion picture theatre management-ownership.

CBS SETS UP TWO FOREIGN ARMS, CHANGES NAME OF FILM COMPANY

Creation of two new foreign subsidiaries to license and distribute television films and properties was announced last week by CBS Inc. President Frank Stanton.

The new companies are CBS Europe Ltd., with offices in Switzerland, and CBS Ltd., based in London. Merle S. Jones, president of the CBS-TV stations division, has been named director-president of CBS Europe and chairman of the board of CBS Ltd. A single managing director will be named to supervise both operations and will be based overseas, authorities reported.

Dr. Stanton also announced that CBS-TV Film Sales will become CBS Films Inc. next month. He said that, like CBS-TV Film Sales, the new domestic film company will "be engaged in the financing, production and syndication of television films."

Other authorities explained that there will be no change in the functions of CBS Films

FOREIGN CAR AIR BUDGETS GROW

- Importers still exploring in radio and television
- But they seem to like what they've seen so far

Foreign auto makers and distributors are beginning to rev up their interest in broadcast advertising.

Comments from various ad managers for the European auto makers indicate that what's kept them out of broadcasting up to now was the knowledge they could not match Detroit dollar-for-dollar. But with greater and more enthusiastic U. S. public acceptance for their product, this need to match ad dollars has become less important. Now, radio and tv are looked to by many not only for hard selling but as "security"—building consumer interest and spot schedules—against the day the current foreign-car buying fever may subside.

The foreign car makers most active in broadcast usage are Simca, Renault, Jaguar and Volkswagen. The success or failure of their campaigns may have considerable bearing on the ad plans of a number of other foreign makers and importers. While some of them—such as Rootes Ltd. (Hillman Minx) and the Swedish-owned Volvo Distributing Co. (Volvo)—have been using radio on both network and spot basis, a number rely on print almost exclusively. Among them: S. A. Citroën, Fadex Commercial Corp. (BWM Isetta), Fiat Motor Co., Hambro Automotive Corp. (Morris, MG, Riley, Austin-Healey) and Hoffman Motor Car Co. (Alfa-Romeo, Porsche).

This holds especially true of higher-ticketed cars such as the Rolls-Royce and Mercedes-Benz. Neither intends—right now—to go into "common denominator" media, their advertising strategists claiming the price of the cars as too high to suit a mass medium. Jaguar—no cheap car—thinks otherwise.

An interesting sidelight is the fact that the U. S. "Big Three" now will use radio-tv in many instances to sell what in effect may be their competition: Chrysler for Simca, General Motors for Vauxhall, Ford for Taunus. American Motors Corp. (Rambler) has been placing its British-made Metropolitan in broadcasting for the past year—principally NBC Radio's Monitor. But, in a sense, the Metropolitan isn't regarded as a foreign make, as it bears an FOB Detroit tag.

Volkswagen of America Inc., Englewood Cliffs, N. J., wholly-owned subsidiary of Volkswagen G. m. b. H., Wolfsburg, West Germany, believes in "fixing the roof while the sun shines." Advertising manager Scott Stewart admits that "right now" the demand for the "beetle" car exceeds the supply. "But it's not always going to be this way," he says, casting an anxious eye at the French, Italian and British competition. So, Volkswagen seeks sales security with radio-tv spot. The word is it will speed ahead later this year and early next with $1 million in spot allocations.

Most Volkswagen buying will be done locally. "After all," says Mr. Stewart, "the dealers are in a better position to know their market potential." So, he feels, are local advertising agencies. Thus the 14 major Volkswagen distributors have been told to get themselves local ad agencies—"and fast." Their jurisdiction over spot campaigns would cover wide areas. For example, the San Antonio-based distributor would place the buying order for the Denver market. Conversely, the Los Angeles distributor, Van Newman, does not have jurisdiction over the San Francisco area; Newman retains Compton Adv. there, whereas the San Francisco distributor uses J. M. Mathes Inc., New York, also the agency for Volkswagen of America.

Volkswagen seems more anxious to sell its line of baby trucks and buses than the famous passenger car. Thus it would like to bracket radio-tv sports programming—"to get the man to look at our product," points out Mathes radio-tv vice president Read H. Wight.

How much of that $1 million will be administered by the Mathes agency? Neither Messrs. Wight nor Stewart will say, although it's understood only a fraction will go to national spot. The bulk will be funneled into co-op distributor-dealer funds.

Renault Inc., U. S. subsidiary of the state-owned Regie Nationale des Usines Renault, Paris, last week became the first foreign car manufacturer to sign for a regularly-scheduled tv network series [see BUSINESS BRIEFLY, page 34]. It agreed to pick up alternate weeks of the Edward R. Murrow-Fred W. Friendly Small World (CBS-TV, Sun., 6-6:30 p.m., effective Oct. 12). Actually, it will be sponsoring six shows in all for $168,000 gross—which, Renault's U. S. advertising manager, Ethel Norling, points out, "is additional money. We haven't taken a franc from other media."

She declines to talk about the national ad budget, but indicates it to be "substantial" for a foreign car maker. Nationally, Renault uses no spot, but this coming Friday (Sept. 26) may see a change of plans. At that time, Renault's U. S. stewards will meet with their French "bosses" in New York to go over all future advertising strategy. It may decide what to do after the initial 13-weeks on CBS-TV are up. Apparently broadcast-

VOLKSWAGEN is seeking sales security, despite present heavy demand, with radio-tv spot throughout the United States.

RENAULT becomes first foreign maker to sign for a regularly-scheduled tv network series, Murrow-Friendly Small World.

Inc. except that its European and British operations would be handled by the new foreign subsidiaries. They said Leslie Harris would continue as vice president and general manager of CBS Films.

NTA BUYS TELESTUDIOS CONTROL TO FURTHER VIDEOTAPE AMBITIONS

In line with National Telefilm Assoc.'s growing interest in the videotape field, Ely A. Landau, NTA board chairman, announced last Wednesday (Sept. 16) that the company has acquired all of the preferred stock and two-thirds of the common stock of Telestudios Inc., New York, producer of taped programming and commercials. The transaction involved an exchange of Telestudios' stock for NTA stock but no other details were revealed.

NTA recently ordered several Ampex tape recorders for use at its owned and operated WNTA-TV Newark and KMSP-TV Minneapolis-St. Paul. The acquisition of Telestudios, Mr. Landau said, will enable NTA to produce taped programs for distribution to tv stations throughout the country.

The Telestudios stock acquired by NTA includes the shares held by George K. Gould, president and treasurer, and stock held by other members of the company's management. Mr. Gould will continue as president and operating head of Telestudios. Mr. Landau said an offer to purchase all of the other outstanding common stock of Telestudios, at $1.75 per share, payable at the option of NTA in NTA common stock or debentures, will be made to other stockholders.

Mr. Landau said that Telestudios plans to develop mobile units to utilize videotape on location work.

Telestudios was organized by Mr. Gould two years ago. In recent months it has completed tape commercials for Grant Adv. (Florists' Telegraph Delivery Assn.), Pillsbury (Campbell-Mithun) and the Democratic Party (Kastor, Hilton, Chesley & Clifford), among others.

Coincident with the announcement of Telestudios' purchase by NTA, the Radio & Television Executives' Society of New York held its production workshop at the studios last Tuesday. Mr. Gould was the principal speaker to an audience of more than 200 members of the society. He reviewed the history of videotape and presented a demonstration of VTR.

ing's future at Renault hinges on the success and/or failure of Small World.

Spot-wise, Renault defers to its 15 distributors and their 600 dealers coast-to-coast. The U. S. company does not provide co-op funds, but the distributors do. Tv spot is used in New England surrounding local newscasts (since May 5); since March in the Southwest; "on and off" in the Far West and "very little" in the Midwest, Renault just having undergone a change in distributorship there. Spot radio presently figures in New York, Providence, Boston and Los Angeles.

Why did Renault gamble on network tv? Says Miss Norling: "The idea of sponsoring Ed Murrow and the international flavor of the series is wonderful for us." Renault's staple item for U. S. consumption is the Dauphine passenger car. Back in June, its agency, Needham, Louis & Brorby, Chicago-New York, began scouting up network availabilities. NL&B took over the Renault account from Mann-Ellis this past April.

Jaguar has caught a slight broadcast fever. It is using radio for the first time in its history. Jaguar Cars Inc., New York (U. S. subsidiary of Jaguar Cars Ltd., Coventry, England), through Cunningham & Walsh, New York, has allocated about $50,000 to sponsor CBS Radio's coverage of America's Cup Races off Newport, R. I.

Although it's a small expenditure, the radio ad campaign may signal a departure in Jaguar's advertising policy. The company's luxury-priced automobiles appeal to a limited market and in the past Jaguar has used such magazines as New Yorker and Time.

Now it is trying out the flexibility of radio and the ability of an advertiser to become associated with such specialty sports broadcasts as the yacht races.

Simca, whose total national ad budget (separate from the dealer and distributor allocations) has been held down to $20,000 this past year, will have the budget increased "quite considerably," according to Richard N. Meltzer, president of the San Francisco agency bearing his name. The reason is simple: Simca Inc., wholly-owned U. S. subsidiary of Societe Industrielle de Mecanique et Carrosserie, will have its national advertising policies shaped by Chrysler Corp., no stranger to broadcast advertising.

Chrysler several months ago purchased "a substantial interest" in the French firm and will take over U. S. distribution. The announcement last June kicked off a flurry of major agency "pitches" but Chrysler, satisfied with Meltzer's work, retained that shop. Additionally, it handed Meltzer the Simca portion of the budget that will be administered through Chrysler of Canada.

Meltzer Adv., with offices also in Los Angeles and Denver, last week opened a Detroit office to handle Canadian time placement. U. S. time-buying probably won't start until next year, and will be done out of the San Francisco office. In addition to the national account, Meltzer also serviced 8 out of 10 regional distributorships which now will be "completely revamped." Local distributors and dealers "in some instances" used spot, Mr. Meltzer indicated. With Simca distribution to be handled through local Chrysler-Plymouth-DeSoto-Dodge dealers, Mr. Meltzer said, "it's too early to predict just what percentage of the new budget will go into radio and tv spot." He said, however, that "we will go into tv for certain."

One Minute Preferred As Radio Spot Length

More than 82% of spot radio announcements on the air are one minute in length, according to a study released last week by the Radio Advertising Bureau.

The bureau acknowledged that the popularity of the 60-second announcement among advertisers was known but the study sought to ascertain the extent to which the one-minute commercial was being bought in preference to commercials of other lengths. A breakdown of the study reveals that during the second quarter of 1958, 82.3% of spot radio announcements were 60-second; 6.2% were 10-second; 5.6% were less than 10 seconds; 3.3% were 20-second and 2.6% were 30-second.

The breakdown is based on the total number of announcements of each length bought, as reported to RAB by a one-third sample of the radio industry's timebuyers. It covers purchases made by more than 1,100 brand advertisers.

RAB also released the names of the five largest advertisers for each category of radio commercials, covering 17 companies. The bureau noted that the "less than 10 seconds in length" category represented primarily Sinclair Refining's extensive campaign of six-second "quickies" for its Sinclair gasoline. The RAB list:

60-Second Announcements: (1) R. J. Reynolds Tobacco, (2) Ford Motor, (3) American Tobacco, (4) Lever Bros., (5) Best Foods.

30-Second Announcements: (1) Carling Brewing, (2) Liggett & Myers Tobacco, (3) Morton Foods, (4) Pearl Brewing, (5) Fels & Co.

20-Second Announcements: (1) Beech-Nut Life Savers, (2) Anheuser-Busch, (3) Carling Brewing, (4) J. A. Folger & Co., (5) Holloway House.

10-Second Announcements: (1) Eskimo Pie, (2) American Tobacco, (3) Anheuser-Busch, (4) American Home Products, (5) Lever Bros.

Less than 10-second: (1) Sinclair Refining Co.

Material for its new study of commercial preferences among advertisers was compiled by RAB from information used in its

SIMCA looks to Chrysler Corp. (part owner) to shape national advertising policies to be increased "considerably."

JAGUAR will use radio for first time in sponsoring America's Cup Races as indication of possible switch in advertising.

second quarter 1958 report, which the bureau is making available to advertisers and agencies on request. The report may be obtained by writing to Miles David, RAB director of promotion, 460 Park Ave., New York 22.

Kevin Sweeney, RAB president, pointed out that the current sample of one-third of radio's time sellers will be enlarged for future issues of the quarterly report. He added:

"We're working right now on compiling data for other third quarter study. And from all indications, it will be even more comprehensive in scope than our present issue, which, in itself, represents more data than has ever before been assembled in one source for the radio medium."

Recessionwise It Pays To Advertise—Buchen

It pays to advertise—during and immediately after a recession.

That's the conclusion reached by The Buchen Co., Chicago advertising agency, in a study of the relationship between sales and advertising in over 130 industrial manufacturers of durable goods during the two periods—1947-51 and 1952-56. The agency described the survey as a "new yardstick" for measuring sales and advertising ratios.

Buchen concluded generally that "any firm which makes advertising aggressiveness a part of its marketing philosophy during and following a recession will feel the recession less, and recover from it more quickly, than its backward-looking competitors."

Buchen selected basic industries, avoiding "impulse commodities." Taking a list supplied by Associated Business Publications, it sent questionnaires to 1,200 industrial firms. Slightly more than 10% (133) responded and figures were converted to basic index numbers. "Pivotal" years were 1949 and 1954 in each of the two economic periods. Respondents were grouped into those (1) which did not cut advertising budgets during the recession year or the year following, (2) which did cut budgets during the recession year and (3) which reduced expenditures during the year after the recession. The study was conducted under the direction of J. Wesley Rosberg, Buchen vice president and director of research.

The finding showed that in 1949, the first recession year, "continuous advertisers enjoyed a big gain in sales, while the budget cutters dropped below their 1948 sales figures. In 1950 firms which maintained their advertising programs were still far ahead of those who had cut their budgets in 1949 and 1950."

The 1952-56 study showed non-cutting companies "consistently ahead in sales." Manufacturers which pared advertising in 1954 fell markedly below others. In 1955 sales of the non-cutters were almost 20% ahead of 1952, while those which reduced their outlays in 1954 or 1955 were not yet back to their 1952 levels.

BUSINESS BRIEFLY WHO'S BUYING WHAT, WHERE

CLEAN FIGHT • Battle lines among all-purpose detergent makers [CLOSED CIRCUIT, Aug. 18], are being more clearly drawn with reported shift by Adell Chemical Co. (Lestoil), Holyoke, Mass., into Canadian tv spot. As Lestoil heads north, little-known Texize Chemicals Inc., Greenville, S. C., is consolidating its grip on southland, and is understood to be using strategy similar to that of Lestoil—run-of-schedule packages, advance cash payment for campaigns at 2% discount (when requested), slotting in late night film programs. Texize, via Henderson Adv., Greenville, now is in 45-50 markets on saturation basis.

So far, Lestoil hasn't gone south of Washington nor west of Evansville, Ind., thus leaving Southeast, Midwest and West to three giants—Colgate-Palmolive, Procter & Gamble and Lever Bros. Latter's Handy Andy (Kenyon & Eckhardt) is now in about 35 markets—Virginia, Missouri, Wisconsin, etc.; P&G's Mr. Clean (Tatham-Laird) is breaking in Pittsburgh, Syracuse and Springfield, Mo., and Colgate's Genie (McCann-Erickson) is testing on West Coast. Interesting aspect of Big Three intentions: test runs are kept at minimum so as not to "waste time."

GOOD AND BAD • Purchase by Harold F. Ritchie Inc. (Brylcreem, other hair preparations) of two ABC-TV properties [BUSINESS BRIEFLY, Sept. 8] comes as unhappy news to number of ABC-TV affiliates. Reason: Ritchie's said to be canceling extensive spot schedules in markets where ABC-TV has received clearance. Agency, Kenyon & Eckhardt, still is holding spot cancellations in abeyance, pending ABC clearances on stations where network shares time with either NBC-TV or CBS-TV. should it fail to get either Cheyenne or 77 Sunset Strip in these markets—some 125 are on basic order—spot will stick. No change is contemplated in markets carrying neither show.

P&G PUSH • Procter & Gamble Co., Cincinnati, for Ivory and Cheer, stepping up spot tv activity this month. Through Compton Adv., Ivory is going into over 100 markets on 52-week basis using 60- and 20-second announcements. Through Young & Rubicam, Cheer is lining up undetermined number of stations.

CLEANING SEASON • Glamore Inc., (carpet cleaner) Clifton, N. J., has set four-week spot tv schedules in 25 markets to start Oct. 1. Six to 12 spots per week will be used in each market, concentrated on one or two specific days of week. Jules Power, N. Y., is agency.

'SMALL WORLD' TEAM • In their first use of network television, Olin Mathieson Chemical Corp., N. Y., and Renault Inc. (see page 32), N. Y., have signed to sponsor Edward R. Murrow's new Small World series of news and entertainment over CBS-TV (Sun., 6-6:30 p.m.), starting Oct. 12. Olin Mathieson, through D'Arcy Adv., St. Louis, and Renault, through Needham, Louis & Brorby, Chicago and New York, will alternate in sponsorship for first 12 weeks, after which Olin Mathieson will continue on exclusive basis for next 14 weeks.

RIVAL BUYS SERIAL • Rival Packing Co. Div., Associated Products Inc., Chicago, for Rival dog foods, has bought MCA-TV's If You Had a Million (rerun of The Millionaire) for 10 markets in Massachusetts, New York, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Michigan, Missouri and Ohio, for full year beginning early October. Agency is Guild, Bascom & Bonfigli, San Francisco.

TWO HALVES • RCA has signed for alternate sponsorship of two new NBC-TV color programs, Northwest Passage (Sun. 7:30-8 p.m.), effective Sept. 21, and The Further Adventures of Ellery Queen (Fri. 8-9 p.m.). Alternate weeks of both programs have not yet been sold. Kenyon & Eckhardt, N. Y., is RCA's agency.

BACK WITH JACK • Polaroid Corp. and Bristol-Myers Co. (Bufferin) have renewed on NBC-TV's Jack Paar Show, representing total of about $1.8 million in gross revenues. B-M renewal of almost 200 participations begins in October and runs through end of 1959. Young & Rubicam, N. Y., is agency. Polaroid order, placed by Doyle Dane Bernbach, N. Y., calls for 40 participations starting in January.

ROS RECIPE • Church & Dwight Co. (Arm & Hammer baking powder), N. Y., is launching seven-week spot tv campaign on 63 stations in 54 markets today (Sept. 22), using run-of-schedule ID announcements. Agency: J. Walter Thompson Co., N. Y.

IN THE NEWS • Six advertisers last week signed for NBC-TV's 15-minute weeknight newscast with Chet Huntley and Dave Brinkley (Mon.-Fri. 6:45-7 p.m.), effective immediately: Nestle Co. (Dancer-Fitzgerald-Sample Inc.) on alternate Wednesdays and Thursdays; effective today (Sept. 22): Kemper Insurance Co. (John W. Shaw Adv.) on various Mondays and Wednesdays; effective Wednesday (Sept. 24): Union Carbide's National Carbon Co. (William Esty Co.) on alternate Wednesdays and every Friday; starting Oct. 28, Bristol-Myers Co. for Bufferin (Young & Rubicam) on alternate Tuesdays and alternate Thursdays for 52 weeks; effective Nov. 3: Bulova Watch Co. (McCann-Erickson) on alternate Mondays, and effective Nov. 7: Bell & Howell Co. (McCann-Erickson) on various Fridays.

TUESDAY TIME • Ford Div., Ford Motor Co., is buying participations in ABC-TV's Sugarfoot on Oct. 14 and in Cheyenne, with which it alternates (Tues., 7:30-8:30 p.m.) on Oct. 21. Agency: J. Walter Thompson Co., N. Y.

ONE OUT, SIX UP AT K&E

A series of executive changes—one a surprise announcement—was announced last week by Kenyon & Eckhardt, a major agency with a substantial radio-tv billing.

The unexpected: the resignation effective Oct. 1 of Donald C. Miller, senior vice president and a director of the agency, who said he was leaving because of "basic disagreement on agency operating policies." Reportedly his resignation was made known in the agency after an executive committee meeting Sept. 11 that also considered changes already in the making.

Executive promotions announced: David C. Stewart, treasurer and senior vice president in charge of corporate services, elected executive vice president, a post reestablished at K&E after nine years; G. T. C. Fry, vice president and account supervisor in New York, to vice president in charge of K&E in Detroit and also account supervisor (David J. Gillespie Jr., vice president, continues as senior account executive and will assist in administration of the Detroit office); Barrett Brady, senior vice president in charge of creative services, elected to the executive committee; W. Stephens Dietz, vice president and promotion director, elected to the board; Robert C. Barker, vice president and senior account executive, appointed acting account supervisor, and Kevin Kennedy, vice president and account executive, made acting senior account executive.

It was understood that still further appointments are in the works at K&E.

K&E President William B. Lewis issued a staff memorandum on Mr. Miller's resignation, noting his contributions to the progress and growth of the agency and wishing him well "in whatever he undertakes." Mr. Miller joined K&E in Detroit 10 years ago, was elected vice president a year later and a director in 1952. He was one of five vice presidents advanced to senior vice president in April 1957, was made a coordinator of account management and was elected last September to the executive committee. He was in charge of K&E's Detroit office until his move to New York two years ago.

TV—contract said to represent $2 million in gross billing. Agreement made with other sponsors of programs concerned to give Frigidaire at least one commercial message every day of week. Programs include Treasure Hunt, Concentration, The Price Is Right, From These Roots, and Comedy Time, Dancer-Fitzgerald-Sample, N. Y., is Frigidaire's agency.

OIL FIRM REGIONALS • Oklahoma Oil Co., Chicago, has increased broadcast advertising, with $1 million-plus schedule of new radio-tv buys in three states through Needham, Louis & Brorby, Chicago. Schedule includes alternate-sponsorship of Citizen Soldier and Silent Service on WNBQ (TV) Chicago and Highway Patrol on WGN-TV, (with fourth under consideration); 56 newscasts weekly on WBBM-FM, others on WBBM-AM, and 25 per week on WIND, all Chicago; 70 insertions per week on WXLW Newsmobile and 200 time signals weekly on WIRE, both Indianapolis, (with tv newscast also in negotiation); 20 spots weekly on stations in South Bend, Fort Wayne, Terre Haute and Logansport, Ind.; three daily newscasts on KSO and sports on KRNT, both Des Moines, Iowa. Oklahoma also co-sponsors White Sox baseball on WCFL Chicago. Firm now has retail outlets in three states (Illinois, Indiana, Iowa).

LIPTON CUP • Thomas J. Lipton Inc. (tea, soups, dessert mix) is sponsoring coverage of America's Cup Races on both NBC Radio and Mutual, beginning last Saturday (Sept. 20). Agency is Young & Rubicam. Sir Thomas Lipton, founder of Lipton company, was associated historically with races, making five attempts in vain to win cup.

DOZEN IN CLUB • Procter & Gamble Co., Cincinnati, through Compton Adv., N.Y., joins 11 other national participating advertisers—including Bristol-Myers, General Foods, General Mills, Nabisco, Miles Labs, among others—on ABC-TV's Mickey Mouse Club (Tues. and Thurs. 5:30-6 p.m.) effective next Monday (Sept. 29). Product to be advertised: Big Top peanut butter.

14 FOR FOOTBALL • CBS-TV has signed total of 14 clients for its coverage of 64 National Football League games on ten regional networks, starting Sunday (Sept. 28) and ending Dec. 14. Sponsors of games are Philip Morris Inc. (Marlboro, Philip Morris brands), P. Ballantine Sons, National Brewing Co., American Oil Co., Pan-American Oil Co. (Amoco subsidiary), Falstaff Brewing Co., Duquesne Beer, Gobel Brewing Co., Speedway Petroleum, Carling Brewing Co., Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, Standard Oil Co. of Ohio, American Petrofina and Hamm Brewing Co.

CHRYSLER SETS PACE • New business reported late Thursday (Sept. 18) by CBS Radio was paced by purchase of Chrysler Div., Chrysler Corp., Detroit, through Young & Rubicam, N. Y. of Eric Severeid With the News (Mon.-Fri., 9:25-9:30 p.m.) for two weeks, starting Oct. 27. Other sales covering CBS radio "Impact" segments were made to Dodge Div., Chrysler Corp., Detroit, through Grant Adv., N. Y., and Chicago, starting Oct. 9; Hudson Vitamin Products Corp., N. Y., through Pace Adv., N. Y., starting Sept. 27; Mennen Co. (Skin Bracer), Morristown, N. J., through Warwick & Legler, N. Y., for Dec. 12-14 period, and Clair Inc., N. Y., through Foote, Cone & Belding, N. Y., starting Oct. 18.

'Omnibus' Loses Union Carbide As Sponsor for Coming Season

Robert Saudek Assoc.'s Omnibus has lost one of its major wheels. The Union Carbide Corp., New York, "after considerable studying" has decided against renewing. It is dropping the institutional campaign waged on the show for two seasons—at a cost of $3 million—because "we have nothing to sell but a corporate symbol."

While its subsidiaries such as National Carbon Co. (Eveready batteries) through William Esty and Dynel through Anderson & Cairns Inc. continue to use spot, UC's institutional tv campaign has been shelved "for the time being." The decision was made, it's understood, by the UC financial executive committee. J. M. Mathes Inc. is the "corporate" agency.

UC's pullout leaves the Saudek office with but one sponsor to carry the cost of 15 Omnibus shows; actually, Aluminium Ltd. (through J. Walter Thompson Co.) will sponsor only six of the 15. The series returns on NBC-TV Oct. 26.

Hecht, Foreman Debate Ad Antics, Semantics

Two authors met last week to do battle on the field of tv commercials. In one corner: Ben Hecht, controversial playwright ("Scepter of The Rose," "The Front Page," "Child of the Century"), starring on his own WABC-TV New York interview program. In the other, BBDO Executive Vice President Robert L. Foreman, author of the just-published "inside tv" novel The Hot Half-Hour. The match was somewhat of a draw, Mr. Hecht's irreverence and skepticism being neutralized by his guest's calm and objective grey-flanneled logic. Referee was Mike Wallace, whose News-maker Productions Inc. packages the new weekly-night programs for the ABC-TV stations.

Mr. Hecht felt admen ran a close second to politicians as the noisiest bunch of opinion molders in America today, that they have made people "turn off their senses . . . instead of their sets" and that they had put the mass viewer in an "automatic coma." His question: if people dislike commercials, claim they never watch them, why does American business spend millions of dollars in tv to bring "millions more" back? And why, Mr. Hecht said—seizing on specific commercials he disliked—did commercials have to be ungrammatical? First case in point: BBDO's spot for Wildroot Cream Oil (" . . . The hair tonic for men that women like to be near"). Mr. Foreman, tongue in cheek, admitted he wasn't "bright enough to get the lack of good grammar" involved. He felt "that" instead of "who" just "seemed a better way of expressing it to me . . . it would be a little more clearly understood."

Mr. Hecht on the Viceroy spots ("A thinking man's filter . . . a smoking man's taste") out of Ted Bates & Co.: "Is it the theory that the person who buys that cigarette will feel himself a thoughtful man?" or that "he seems to be an ignoramus if he doesn't buy." Mr. Foreman for the defense (although his agency services the competitive Hit Parade brand): "I can conceive very readily what the Viceroy people are driving at; that people who are thoughtful will turn to that brand . . . because of the effectiveness of the filter" and that the Viceroy prospect will be "thinking about the subject of smoking, which is on people's minds these days"—an allusion to tar and nicotine contest vis a vis the "cancer scare."

Mr. Hecht on Procter & Gamble's Zest spot ("For the first time in your life feel really clean") out of Benton & Bowles: "This is a very shocking statement . . . I can't understand how (they) can attack 99% of the people, saying they're naturally unclean if they hadn't used Zest, and expect to get their good will . . . their money. If you tell a person that because he hasn't done something before, he's an idiot, he feels he's been an idiot most of his life." Mr. Foreman for the defense (again): "You have to understand and have some sympathy for the fact that advertising does tend to exaggerate to a degree only. I am always reminded of the fact that when you wanted people to join the Navy before it was compulsory you'd say 'Join the Navy and see the world' not 'Swab the deck.'"

IN the 60-second Contadina tomato paste tv commercial, Stan Freberg, in turn of century garb, listens to Contadina jingles played over a gramophone. Another commercial features Mr. Freberg playing a piano while "girl" (actually Freberg himself) stands by. Middle of the commercials has home economist hard sell. Total of 44 spots per week will be on two New York stations, WNEW-TV and WRCA-TV, for a period of eight weeks.

Mr. Hecht thereupon asked, "You mean, fool the people?" Mr. Foreman replied: "No, just picking more pleasant aspects that people are interested in. The business of stating or implying that advertising is misleading is only done by people who don't know what we go through to be accurate in the advertisements." Mr. Foreman also pointed out that Mr. Hecht, in criticising ads on a purely semantic basis, was seizing on the audio portion and ignoring the video part which often told most of the story.

Mr. Hecht on Libby, McNeill & Libby's Frozen Orange Juice ("Mmm, mmm, that was Libby's Frozen Orange Juice. Just about the yummiest you can put in your tummy") out of Mr. Foreman's BBDO: expressed disbelief when Mr. Foreman noted the commercial to be angled to an audience age group up to 15, said "I have written many bad things but I have never used the word 'yum.'" Mr. Foreman for the defense: "I don't think it's misleading, because it is yum yum. I have tasted it."

The WABC-TV debate went on to other matters besides specific commercial examples such as "audience loyalty." Mr. Foreman felt "I think it is the smallest debt they (viewers) owe the advertiser who has spent so much to entertain (them) to give them the three minutes that's allotted out of a half-hour—six minutes out of an hour." He explained to author Hecht ("it seems like much longer than that") that close industry policing kept violations of this rule to the barest of minimums. Mr. Hecht then asked "How do you account—if I'm vaguely correct—the fact that people don't pay any attention and buy everything it advertises?" Mr. Foreman said he didn't "account." He said "They must pay attention. For instance, we do a great deal of research that shows that people react about products that should be of some interest by purchasing that product."

Mr. Hecht had the last word. In fact he had many last words. One of them: The admen are "making schizophrenics out of people . . . They don't like the commercials, but buy the products."

Contadina Aims Across Country With Eight-Week Spot Barrage

Contadina Foods (tomato paste), San Jose, Calif., has purchased an extensive spot radio campaign in 12 basic marketing areas including 27 major cities.

The campaign, placed through Cunningham & Walsh, San Francisco, and described by the agency as one of the largest spot radio drives emanating from a western company, will run for eight weeks beginning Sept. 29. More than 11,000 commercials will be used. Frequencies will run as high as 180 per week in key cities such as New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Detroit, Cleveland, Pittsburgh, St. Louis, Los Angeles and San Francisco.

At the same time, Contadina Foods will use spot tv in the New York market entailing 360 one-minute announcements during the identical eight weeks. Used in the drive will be radio and tv commercials produced by Freberg Ltd. and starring personality Stan Freberg. The spots will combine the serious with the bizarre.

C&W's senior vice president and account supervisor Bob Brisacher noted that this will be the fourth straight year that the bulk of Contadina's advertising budget has been concentrated in radio.

Also revealed by the agency:

- A merchandising drive has been set up for Contadina to alert buyers and retail store personnel on the spot radio campaign. Point-of-purchase material is part of the merchandising. More than 2,500 buyers across the nation will receive a recording of the commercials and a sales message.

- C&W currently is testing "several new" Contadina products in various cities. The products will be introduced nationally "market by market" next year.

Boeing Frowns on Agency Merger

The expected "marriage" between Calkins & Holden and Burke Dowling Adams Inc. [ADVERTISERS & AGENCIES, Sept. 15] has run into some last-minute snags, it was learned—but unconfirmed—last week. One of the witnesses to the proposed wedding, Boeing Airplane Co., Seattle, apparently voiced its objection to the match for what it feels are two "good reasons." Both involve BDA accounts. Boeing—which is a C & H client—is not too happy about the prospect of being under the same agency roof as two BDA clients who do business with Boeing's competitors. They are Scandinavian Airlines System, which has on order Douglas Aircraft Co.'s DC-8's and General Dynamics Corp.'s Convair 880's. Another BDA airline account, Delta Airlines, likewise has on order the Douglas planes. Additionally, BDA's major client, Curtiss-Wright Inc., makes certain aircraft parts not bought by Boeing. BDA executives admitted "some doubt" was in order

One-man bands are dandy . . . BUT

If you want to make music that'll move millions, you need more men. Not only musicians, but behind-the-scenes people, too. WJR has got 'em—well over a hundred—including musicians, singers, arrangers, directors, producers, writers and such. Now all these folks cost more to maintain than a couple of "disc jockeys," but when you cater to the musical whims of an audience as large as WJR's you find they're very necessary.

For instance—WJR's music motto is "Music for every taste"—and planning a musical menu for its many listeners requires experts in the classics, choral arrangements, folk songs, religious music, band music and other kinds, as well as the current favorites. And WJR's got the experts. Furthermore, WJR's audience appreciates the variety and quality of music that they get.

We know this by their letters—advertisers know it by the results they get. You can find it out by checking an Alfred Politz survey, which shows WJR as the No. 1 radio station in the Detroit-Great Lakes area. If you've got a product or service to sell, call your Henry I. Christal man, he'll show you how WJR can help you make music that will have your sales department dancing circles around competition.

SSC&B Volume at $45 Million As Agency Leases Larger Space

Sullivan, Stauffer, Colwell & Bayles, New York, is now billing in television at the rate of $24.3 million per year, it was revealed last week by the agency. Total billing was estimated at the yearly rate of $45 million.

The billing figures were contained in a special release from SSC&B noting it has completed its move to quarters at the new Gold Skyscraper Building at 575 Lexington Ave. SSC&B now has more than doubled its previous space at 477 Madison Ave., occupying four floors in the Lexington Ave. building. The new quarters have increased tv and radio facilities.

SSC&B started July 1, 1946, with a small staff in a 15-room apartment in the old Marguery apartment-hotel. It then billed $3.5 million a year. Today, 20% of its employes own stock in the agency, and its client list includes blue-chip advertisers.

All 22 Divisions of Kroger Co. Now Handled by Campbell-Mithun

As anticipated, Campbell-Mithun Inc. has inherited the remaining half of Kroger Co. business (11 divisions) to be released by Campbell-Ewald Co. in Detroit Nov. 1 [ADVERTISERS & AGENCIES, Sept. 8].

Campbell-Mithun in Chicago will serve 22 divisions, plus the manufacturing unit of Kroger, giving it an estimated total of $3 million in national billings, it is estimated by W. J. Sanning, advertising manager. He estimates that radio-tv billings are running about $2.5 million.

Kroger first assigned one division to C-M in 1956 and later moved 10 others to that agency. Campbell-Ewald got its share of the 22 divisions from Ralph H. Jones Co., Cincinnati, in a July 1957 realignment.

Airlines Favor Radio News, New Study by RAB Concludes

An analysis of airline advertising strategy by the Radio Advertising Bureau indicates that radio news programs and adjacencies to such broadcasts are prime favorites of the nation's airlines.

The practices of the various airlines are contained in the second of RAB's new series of "Radio-Activity Reports," distributed to bureau members last week. The report is part of a continuing study of the radio advertising strategy of leading companies in specific categories of business (the first report was on brewers).

The latest report shows that airline advertisers lean to heavy announcement schedules in on-line cities; saturation coverage in early-morning and early-evening time periods and wide use of jingles and sound effects. Information on the practices of such companies as Delta Airlines, Trans World Airlines, Trans-Texas Airways and North Central Airlines is provided, detailing the various approaches in their radio advertising programs.

B&B's Lind Explains
Uncertainties of Cost

What goes into the production of a television commercial?

Raymond A. Lind, vice president and head of tv commercial production, Benton & Bowles, New York, last week spent a lunch-hour facing a roomful of stern critics, the agency controllers with whom he and his colleagues must do battle just about every working day. He wanted to get on the record "The Human Factor [In Tv Commercial Production] Versus Cost."

Mr. Lind spoke before the 10th anniversary luncheon of the advertising agency financial management group of the New York Credit & Financial Management Assn. The group, representing about 60 advertising agencies, is comprised almost wholly of secretary-treasurers and controllers. Its newly-installed chairman is Irving J. Paulus, secretary-treasurer of Warwick & Legler Inc. He succeeded Clayton Huff, assistant treasurer, BBDO.

MR. LIND

By means of illustrations, Mr. Lind explained how and why tv production affects costs, how costs are controlled and why the men with the ledgers ought to consider the "human element."

Mr. Lind said the producer must wear two hats. He must be both a creator and an administrator. Regarding the latter, he must pre-determine costs, obtain competitive bids, recommend (to the client) the best buy for the money. He must adhere closely to the budget; he must coordinate every last detail, involve himself in set design, styling, casting, recording, screenings, printing and even jurisdictional union problems. Whatever he does, he must keep a fixed eye on "the 3 R's"—"rejection, revision and refinement."

Mr. Lind, in detailing the complexities of the producer's craft, noted that a three second tropical sunset, for example, involves "location hunting, right trees and foliage, good weather conditions, right season of the year, travel problems of crew and gear, subsistence of personnel, etc." The company that shot the three-second sunset took a week and a half to do it properly. This, he said, was for an industrial film. But what of the tv commercial? "We have 20 seconds to a minute and a half, with up to 10 or 12 different scene changes, all to be shot in approximately two days. This is the reason decisions have to be made at the storyboard stage whether or not to include a particularly difficult or costly scene in a commercial."

He concluded, "maybe, after a study, you decide that the expensive effect is worth it. But this must be decided before the shooting. Thus, the classic question, 'how much does it cost to produce a one-minute commercial?' has no answer . . . except in terms of a specific storyboard."

HERE'S HOW KTHS NEWS DEPARTMENT CAN CONTINUE TO FEED NEWS TO YOU ON "THE LITTLE ROCK STORIES"

During the past 3 weeks Bill Neel, News Director of KTHS, has received several hundred calls from stations all over the nation, asking for a news feed on the latest lead in "The Little Rock Story".

He and his staff have been working around the clock to oblige in every instance. As this ad is being written, it appears that "The Little Rock Story" will continue making news during the weeks and months ahead.

Since coverage of such an extended nature will literally swamp our news department, it is necessary that we make a nominal charge of $5.00 per minute to feed latest news breaks to stations desiring this service.

If you are interested in presenting this up-to-the-minute news coverage to your audience, please contact Bill Neel, direct. He will then provide you with the most complete local news coverage of "The Little Rock Story".

on recommendation of its agency, Benton & Bowles, in approving expenditure of approximately $1,456,000 for partial sponsorship of the What's My Line? the Douglas Edwards news show, and Perry Mason.

The television buy represents nearly half the $3 million budget set up by the commission for the fiscal year which began July 1. Already committed from this amount is $350,000 for the July-October period, all in magazines and newspapers. The major phase of the program, budgeted at $2,650,000, will begin Nov. 1. It was this part of the program which was outlined here Tuesday by Benton & Bowles and approved by the commission.

A. W. Hobler, chairman of the agency's executive committee, told the commission members that a heavy magazine schedule would have been presented this week for approval had the tv package not become available. As it is, magazines will get $580,000, or less than 20% of the $3 million budget.

Newspapers are slated for $590,000, plus another $76,000 for Sunday supplements.

The remainder of the 12-month budget, nearly $300,000, will go for a Canadian campaign (approximately $100,000), trade paper advertising, a special drive in Florida for gift fruit shippers, and for production costs.

During the 1957-58 season, tv time accounted for $1,950,000, about two-thirds of the $2,890,000 consumer advertising program.

The television sponsorship will begin in December. From mid-December to late June, the commission will sponsor part of the Doug Edwards news show Friday evenings; in December and January the citrus board will be an alternate sponsor Sunday nights on What's My Line?, and from February through most of June Perry Mason will carry citrus commercials on Saturday nights.

HOW PEOPLE SPEND THEIR TIME

There were 125,601,000 people in the U. S. over 12 years of age during the week Sept. 7-13. This is how they spent their time:

68.1%	(85,534,000) spent	1,652.5 million hours†	WATCHING TELEVISION
58.1%	(72,974,000) spent	1,077.8 million hours	LISTENING TO RADIO

35.1%	(44,054,000) spent	184.3 million hours	ATTENDING MOVIES*

These totals, compiled by Sindlinger & Co., Ridley Park, Pa., and published exclusively by BROADCASTING each week, are based on a 48-state, random dispersion sample of 7,000 interviews (1,000 each day). Sindlinger's weekly and quarterly "Activity" report, from which these weekly figures are drawn, furnishes comprehensive breakdowns of these and numerous other categories, and shows the duplicated and unduplicated audiences between each specific medium. * All people figures are average daily tabulations for the week with exception of the "attending movies" category which is a cumulative total for the week. Sindlinger tabulations are available within 2-7 days of the interviewing week.

SINDLINGER'S SET COUNT: As of Sept. 1, Sindlinger data shows: (1) 110,650,000 people over 12 years of age see tv (88.1% of the people in that age group); (2) 42,847,000 households with tv; (3) 47,179,000 tv sets in use in U. S.

The reports will be divided into sections, one on the amount and distribution of the tv audience, station by station and program by program, and the other dealing with "brand share of the market" indexes covering 20 brand categories. Trendex up to this time has confined its regular reports to program popularity ratings based on telephone interviews in 20 cities.

'Complete' Tv Ratings To Be Offered by ARB

The American Research Bureau's "Complete Tv Rating Service for 1959" will be available beginning next month.

Included in this package will be the "One-week/Four-week" report, begun experimentally in May 1957. These studies, which will cover over 100 markets on a regular basis, give both specific ratings for each program and monthly average ratings for each time period. Daytime as well as nighttime audience composition figures will be furnished. Said one ARB official, "Not much can be hidden—not many best feet can be pushed forward under the double scrutiny of the One-week/Four-week technique."

ARB's other services are the instantaneous Arbitron single-city (New York, Chicago and Los Angeles) and multi-city (New York, Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington) studies and twice-monthly Tv-National reports, based on sampling of every county in the country.

ARB Director Jim Seiler stated in reference to the new package, "We expect to provide our agency and advertiser clients with the most comprehensive and reliable television timebuying and audience evaluation tools ever made available."

ABC-TV PREVIEWES EXPANDED BILL

ABC-TV Wednesday (Sept. 17) previewed its 1958-59 season, revealing publicly for the first time its new "Operation Daybreak" and a strengthened nighttime lineup of scheduled shows.

Accent of the network's season beginning this fall will be on more live programs, additional hours of programming, more time sold and 10 different types of programming.

Participating in the preview program—a one-hour closed-circuit telecast to newsmen and affiliates in more than 80 cities—were ABC-TV President Oliver Treyz and Vice President Thomas W. Moore, who is in charge of programming.

Mr. Treyz said the network was backing its effort this season with "over $40 million invested in brand new programming to add to our continuing investment of the past season."

"Operation Daybreak" will add nearly 80 new quarter-hours of programming to the daytime schedule of ABC-TV. The projected program block gets underway Oct. 13. Since its inception this summer, the time made available has been increased from 60 to 80 quarter-hours [CLOSED CIRCUIT, Sept. 8] Seventeen advertisers, including several handled by Young & Rubicam, have been signed for nearly 70 quarter-hours [ADVERTISERS & AGENCIES, July 14, et seq.]

The new daytime schedule will open network programming Monday-Friday at 11 a.m. with the half-hour Day in Court (dramatic recreations of court trials), and will follow with The Peter Lind Hayes Show, 11:30-12:30 p.m.; Mother's Day (panel show) 12:30-1 p.m.; The Liberace Show 1-1:30 p.m.; Chance for Romance 2-2:30 p.m., and picking up at 3 p.m. with the half-hour Beat the Clock audience participation program. A show to be slotted at 1:30-2 p.m. has not yet been announced.

Mr. Treyz said that ABC-TV's evening schedule now will be "more than 50% live . . . compared to one-third last year and the daytime schedule will be over 90% live." He said 10 of the 21 evening programming hours are new shows, with another 20 hours of new shows being supplied in the daytime.

Mr. Moore outlined ABC-TV's programming precept as including five approaches: re-programming of time periods where audiences were not up to expectations and of periods in which ABC-TV wanted the most desirable product, changing the format of several key nighttime shows to gain additional audience interest and impact, rescheduling certain programs to take advantage of competitive situations and a desire to become "for the first time a full-time network operation in the daytime."

AB-PT President Leonard Goldenson, speaking in Hollywood where he is scouting program material for the 1959-60 season, pledged that ABC-TV will continue to pioneer in the development of new trends and new personalities in live tv as it has in the past few years with filmed programs. Now that the network has enough affiliates to reach 90% of U. S. tv homes live, he said, ABC-TV programming is swinging toward live rather than filmed shows.

Citing Encounter, a live dramatic series which ABC-TV is getting from CBC, Mr. Goldenson said, "we'll go to Canada, Europe or Japan—anywhere that good programs are available."

Stating that many program negotiations are underway for 1959-60, Mr. Goldenson declined to reveal any details at this time. He did say, however, that in place of the two or possible three special programs which Bing Crosby will do on ABC-TV in 1958-59, the following year should find many more special programs, perhaps one every three weeks.

Asked about color, he repeated what he has said many times before, that ABC-TV will get into color when the public has bought enough color receivers to provide a reasonable audience. Of the $1.5 million spent to modernize the WBKB (TV) studios in Chicago and the $4.5 million to rebuild WXYZ-TV Detroit, both network-owned, about half of the money has gone into preparations for colorcasting, he said. Two color studios will be completed in Los Angeles in the next six to nine months and two of the biggest color studios in New York will be constructed at St. Nick's Arena, which the network has acquired.

The 250,000 color sets out now are "for the birds" so far as tv circulation figures go, Mr. Goldenson stated, adding that ABC-TV will not go into color programming this year. "But we want to be prepared to move into color as soon as color starts to move."

ABC-TV has no present plans for editorializing, he said, but the network does plan to continue to present programs of spe-

COWAN SEES TV PROGRAM GROWTH

Television's future growth "will not be in reaching more homes" but in "providing the people in those homes with more exciting and better programming," Louis G. Cowan, president of the CBS-TV network, asserted last week.

Mr. Cowan ranged across programming, critics, tv costs and quiz shows (see page 48) in his first major speech since he became head of the network. He spoke before the Pittsburgh Ad Club last Tuesday.

He told the group that in his view "the next big step in television will be in its continued betterment of programs. It must continue to improve in quality and in stature if it is to be the vital force that all of us expect it to be."

Up to now, he said, television for the most part has borrowed from radio, the theatre, motion pictures and the lecture platform and its people have come mainly from these backgrounds. But for the future, he counseled, it "must more than ever develop its own new forms, new people, new creative talents, new techniques." He continued:

"By this I do not mean . . . that there

NOT ABC-TV'S AX

ABC-TV President Oliver Treyz held out the olive branch to newspaper tv critics during a closed-circuit preview of the new fall season (see adjacent story), even though his network has not been in direct conflict with the press.

Mr. Treyz in his opening remarks referred to another network head (Robert Sarnoff, NBC board chairman) using "hard words" on newspaper coverage and treatment of tv entertainment and of the medium itself. "Those hard words did not speak for ABC," Mr. Treyz said.

He said ABC-TV's "emergence . . . to competitive equality with the other networks has not been the result of lashing back at criticism," that the opposite was true, and that the network's "respect for the opinions of the press, and our willingness to heed its counsel, has been a substantial factor" in its "maturing." ABC-TV, he said, will continue the policy, "not in the spirit of 'battering you up,' but because we are convinced that your opinions are honestly motivated, constructively meant and directly rendered."

cial public interest, such as last season's Report Card, U. S. A. One such, now being prepared by Walt Disney, is Romance of Numbers with Donald Duck. The idea of the program, Mr. Goldenson said, is to encourage youngsters to gain the mathematical background they'll need to pursue careers in science to provide the number of scientists the nation needs.

no longer will be dramatic shows, variety programs, comedy and the like. These have always been with us. Story-telling is one of our oldest arts. What I mean to point out is that there will be fresh new forces, new ideas and new ways of informing and entertaining.

"This now gets to what I consider an absolute responsibility of the network broadcasters. I believe that the network must be a vital force in creating programs for the future. A network must be willing to experiment, to invest, to develop the programs that the viewers of this nation have every right to expect."

Mr. Cowan said CBS is spending "millions" in program development "this very year," that "only a tiny fraction of [CBS creative talent's] product ever reaches the screen." But, he explained, "ideas generate other ideas and skills pile on top of skills," with the result that "out of this whole building process great new products and personalities emerge."

He said tv prices could be the subject of a complete speech, but "let it suffice for me to point out that I am con-

TERRYTOONS, long famous for its television and movie cartoons, is now making its biggest hit. Producing animated film commercials which combine creativity with salesmanship. scious of this concern." He felt "it is clearly our joint responsibility . . . to see to it that the dollars spent by the advertisers bring the quality, the performance and the results that make these wise expenditures." "As we know price alone cannot be the determining factor. The focus of our attention has to be on results."

Mr. Cowan said broadcasters have "a great responsibility . . . not only to bring entertainment—the best possible entertainment—but also the responsibility for bringing news and information broadcasts to the screen. Further, I believe that such programs should be included in the schedule not only on Sunday afternoon, but in the daytime schedule and in the nighttime schedule when events and material so dictate."

He reminded that CBS-TV spent $21 million on news and public affairs broadcasts last year, with $11 million of this not recovered.

On tv criticism and critics Mr. Cowan said that "while there frequently seems to be a conspiracy at work to destroy television, I for one do not believe this is true. Nevertheless, there is loose criticism at times. I do point out, for example, that many who say that television is all quizzes and westerns don't know what they are reporting.

"On the CBS-TV network for the entire week during the forthcoming nighttime programming there are but two half-hour quiz shows and seven half-hour westerns out of 54 half-hours of network programming. I choose to believe that the misreporting of this fact by some is a lack of research and lack of complete knowledge of the field—not deliberate deception."

NBC News Dismisses Several In Network Economy Measure

Several NBC News veterans have been caught in the network's "economy move," in effect now for several months. Off the air as of last week, or going off, were such familiar names as W. W. Chaplin, Henry Cassidy and Dick Applegate.

NBC News Vice President William R. McAndrew confirmed these terminations. He indicated "seven or eight" people would be lopped off the payroll in his department, leaving "some 250" still employed at NBC News. Henry Cassidy, with NBC since 1945, was terminated as of last Monday (Sept. 15); W. W. Chaplin, with NBC News since 1942, has been told his contract won't be renewed as of Jan. 4, but that he will be free to work for the network as a free lance, being paid at standard fees. Mr. Chaplin has not yet indicated whether he will accept the offer.

Others lopped off are Dick Applegate, who joined NBC News in Chicago at the time of the 1956 elections, having served as an NBC stringer in the Far East (he had been imprisoned by the Chinese Communists and released in 1955); Jack Begon, an NBC programming writer assigned to Life and the World, and newscaster Jim Hurlburt, NBC News, Chicago.

New MBS owner Guterma: Optimist moving into a 'depression-proof' trade

A. L. Guterma, captain of diverse enterprises, has been for little more than a week a radio network president. After disclosure on the West Coast that Mr. Guterma's F. L. Jacobs Co. had bought Mutual Broadcasting System [LEAD STORY, Sept. 15], he was interviewed at his Los Angeles hotel by Bruce Robertson, BROADCASTING senior editor and west coast chief.

"I'm an unbounded optimist," Alexander L. (for Leonard) Guterma declared last week, in an exclusive interview with BROADCASTING following his election as president of the Mutual Broadcasting System [LEAD STORY, Sept. 15].

And well might Mr. Guterma be optimistic. At 43, he commutes daily from a home in Greenwich, Conn., to an office on Madison Ave. from which he controls the destinies of the F. L. Jacobs Co. of Detroit, of which he is chairman of the board and president; the Scranton Corp. of Scranton, Pa., of which the Jacobs Co. is controlling stockholder, and a number of subsidiary companies including, since June, the motion picture and tv producing company, Hal Roach Studios, and, since Sept. 11, MBS.

F. L. Jacobs Co. manufactures automotive component parts for General Motors, Chrysler, Ford and American Motors. A wholly owned subsidiary, Symphonic Electronic Corp., Mr. Guterma described as the world's largest manufacturer of phonographs, for Columbia, Capitol, Decca, Westinghouse and Western Auto as well as under its own label. Scranton Corp., a lace producing organization before Mr. Guterma and his associates took it over, now manufactures yarn, carpets, plastic products and electronic components as well as lace. A Scranton subsidiary, Storm Vulcan Corp. of Dallas, manufactures machinery for rebuilding automotive engines.

Scranton also owns 100% of Hal Roach Studios, which last month announced plans for expanding beyond the production of films for tv and theatrical exhibition into live theatrical productions for the Broadway stage, radio, recording and "any phase of the entertainment business in which we feel we can be successful" [FILM, Aug. 25]. Acquisition by Roach of MBS is the first major move in this expansion program.

The head of this far-flung industrial empire was born April 29, 1915, in Irkutsk, Siberia. His only formal education was obtained at a missionary school in China. His business career began in the Philippines, where he dealt chiefly in sugar and coconut oil, but also was interested in such diverse enterprises as shipping, soap, and cosmetics manufacturing and gold mining. He established the first jute manufacturing plants in the Philippines and also operated jute mills in Italy.

When Mr. Guterma came to the U. S. in 1950, he became a Florida farmer. "I was the first to plant kenaf in Florida," he said, explaining that kenaf is a substitute for jute and that this was a good thing to plant in 1950, "when India and Pakistan were not on speaking terms and so jute was hard to get." He also had a few "diversified business interests in New York."

Today, with more than a few diversified interests to keep him occupied, he said that when considering the addition of a new company into the Jacobs-Scranton empire it's not the type of business that concerns him, but the challenge it offers.

"I look at any business as a challenge," he stated. "I don't profess to know much about anything, but I've learned to buy when others are selling. The secret of success is management. In acquiring a new business property, we take over the management that's there, if it is there, and if it isn't, we bring it in. The Jacobs company had been losing money for several years before we took it over, so we turned it completely around."

The acquisition of Hal Roach and Mutual are based on Mr. Guterma's conviction that the field of entertainment is depression-proof. "As long as humans are here on earth they'll either buy entertainment or they will get it free at someone else's expense as they do now by radio and television," he declared.

Mr. Guterma believes that radio, as a vital part of the nation's entertainment, has a bright future, and that Mutual, as the world's largest radio network, is going to enjoy a bountiful share of that brightness.

"Mutual has a newscasting staff that can't be improved on," he stated. "It has good management. What it needs is strong guidance, the kind of guidance that NBC and CBS have. That's what we intend to provide."

Negotiations for Mutual were underway for five months before the deal was consummated, he reported, noting that these were well along before the acquisition of the Hal Roach Studios in June [FILM, June 2]. "We came with certified checks three times."

Nature—man's first and finest playground

Man has always loved the glories of Nature, for here is home-base; touching it, he feels safe. Standing in forested mountains, near tumbling waters, close to the wonder of living things, his heart is lifted and his hopes nurtured.

Thoreau, who found all life's meanings beside Walden Pond, would have loved Wisconsin's wonderful parks and forests. And you will, too, for wise conservation has kept the sylvan beauty that entranced Joliet and Marquette in 1673. You can study ancient Indian rock-carvings, or watch exciting Indian ceremonials, or perhaps find arrowheads to bring back home. There are eight thousand lakes for you to swim in, bass, pike and muskie to catch, and wild life to watch. There's camping, and hiking, and a million trees to sit under and watch the grass grow.

All men hunger for peace. It is still to be found in Nature. In the inspiration of cloud and forest, blossom and star, you will find testimony to the essential goodness of life — and the dignity of man.

Asked for the success formula which has obviously worked so well in his case, Mr. Guterma said that once in a business paper interview he'd been asked to explain the success of the Jacobs company and had replied, "It's because it's run by a god-dam genius." "When the story appeared it started out with that quote," he recalled, "so I won't make that mistake again. Just say that I get up early and stay up late and that in between I put in a lot of hard work. Also, I've been very lucky. I guess whatever success I've achieved can be put down to that combination of hard work and luck."

This reporter, who felt he had risen early to drive to the Beverly Hilton Hotel in Beverly Hills, Calif., for the 9 o'clock interview on Saturday morning, found that Mr. Guterma was not exaggerating about being an early riser. A sleepy-eyed associate who entered the suite about 9:30 picked up the phone to order breakfast and, asking what Mr. Guterma wanted, was told he'd had breakfast hours before. Another query about contacting someone in New York brought the reply, "I had him on the phone at 7."

Mr. Guterma, who was to fly back to New York the following day, said he had just returned from Europe and reported that these days he's as apt to commute to Los Angeles as to New York, which is all right except that it forces him to spend too much time away from his home and family, Mrs. Guterma, the former Anita McGrath, and their three children: Carol, 14, Robert, 13, and Karen, 6.

A mention of the Los Angeles Dodgers evoked the comment that in Mr. Guterma's opinion the team had made a big mistake in not permitting its games to be telecast this year and in holding out for pay tv, one branch of the entertainment business he believes is destined to fail if it ever gets started.

"The American people are astute enough to know that they're getting the best entertainment in the world for nothing. There's no power on earth that can induce them to pay for something that's now theirs for free."

NBC Expanding Foreign Tv

NBC International Ltd., organized as a Canadian subsidiary of NBC, is understood to be stepping up its program for investment in overseas tv stations. The company already is set for a 15% investment in a new station in Hobart, Tasmania, which is awaiting approval of the Australian government. NBC International also is investigating investment in tv stations in Lima, Peru, in Monterey and Guadalajara, both in Mexico, and plans to place these latter two projects before the NBC board for approval.

NBC, TRENDIX STILL LIKE QUIZZES

NBC-TV has come to the conclusion that the current investigation of quiz programs and the attendant publicity have not adversely affected the network's quiz shows.

And Trendix polled the public last week and found few viewers who said they were "disappointed and now suspicious" of quiz shows as a result of the charges and counter-charges.

The two signs of optimism were noteworthy in a week when the New York district attorney's office, as predicted [AT DEADLINE, Sept. 15], impaneled a special grand jury to take testimony on the quiz furor under oath.

A report issued by the network last Thursday (Sept. 18) said that an analysis by NBC-TV shows that "on the contrary, all the evidence to date points to the fact that the quiz shows are running at about the same audience level since the Dotto trouble as they were prior to it." The initial announcement on cancellation of Dotto was made Aug. 16 [NETWORKS, Aug. 25] and, the network said, its computations were based on the September Trendix and Nielsen. The network report added:

"A mention should be made of Twenty-One's audience share. In the months before Elfrida Von Nardroff started, Twenty-One's share had been running in the high 30's. Elfrida climbed to a 44. In August, after she had gone off, Twenty-One's share dropped to a 34; in September, after the quiz ruckus, the share was 32 and a week later, it was back to the same 34 level as August despite the fact it faced increasing competition from the premiere performance of Voice of Firestone [ABC-TV], which had doubled its share from about 8 to 18. Twenty-One also followed a similar pattern after Charles Van Doren lost."

The network pointed out that all of NBC-TV's quiz shows maintained or increased their share of audience levels according to the latest nighttime Nielsen report for the two-week period ending Aug. 23 as compared with the previous period, with only one exception: Dotto.

Jack Boyle, director of Trendix News Poll, which produces a weekly television column sold through McClure Newspaper Syndicate, reported in a column for release Saturday (Sept. 20) that a special survey showed these reactions to the quiz investigation:

Like quiz shows and will continue to watch them	43.4%
Never liked or watched them	24.9%
Always thought they were fixed	14.3%
Disappointed and now suspicious ..	7.4%
Haven't paid much attention to shows or accusations	6.3%
Other reactions	3.7%

The Trendix study coincided with the special analysis by NBC of before-and-after audiences of its own quiz programs. Both studies came out in a week when quiz-probe developments got probably the fewest and smallest newspaper headlines since the "scandal" broke with the summary dropping of Dotto in mid-August.

Trendix said it asked all its interviewees to give reasons for their answers and that "perhaps the most startling explanations came from the scattered few who said that now there was evidence that the shows were fixed—they wanted to become contestants and make some fixed money."

The report offered this "sampling of the reasons given by the 43.4% who said they like quiz shows and will continue to watch them."

"A Utah woman: 'I prefer to think the stories I've heard are not true and that people are basically honest.' A New Mexico male: 'Someone is simply jealous.' A Seattle man: 'As soon as we read about the fixes we became more interested. Now we are watching them closer than ever.' An Indiana woman: 'It hasn't been proved that the shows are fixed.' A California woman: 'I enjoy watching quiz shows. If they are fixed, it is no money out of my pocket.'"

Among those who were disappointed and now suspicious of all quizzes Trendix said the replies included: "I always thought they were on the up and up and when you find out they aren't, it kinda hurts"; "it had the same effect on me as hearing that wrestling is fixed; it spoiled all the fun"; "I feel cheated; I don't think I'll watch them any more."

Trendix found "little interest" in the answers given by those who never watched quizzes, but said those who reported that they had always suspected rigging were often amusing: "I knew they were all crooked, but I still enjoyed them"; "it was very foolish to let the public know they were fixed"; "all shows are rehearsed; if they weren't they would be dull entertainment."

Among people whose answers didn't fall clearly into the other categories Trendix cited these answers: "Somebody always has to spoil everybody else's fun"; "I'm glad the shows were exposed; now I don't feel so ignorant myself."

Shows Must Be Honest, Cowan Tells Ad Club

Programs that are not fair and honest have no place in television, Louis G. Cowan, president of the CBS-TV network and sometimes called the father of the big-money quiz show, declared last week.

Breaking the official silence that network top officials have kept during the current quiz probe, Mr. Cowan Tuesday told the Pittsburgh Advertising Club (see page 43): "I think it should be made abundantly clear that no program should be on the air—quiz or otherwise—that does not meet the standards of honesty and fairness."

"There have been many accusations made about quiz programs, and it is an index of the important role of television in our society that these accusations and stories have found their place on the front pages of our newspapers."

"No responsible person or organization can or does act on accusation alone. In the instance of the quiz shows, these properties usually are not owned by a network. Since these programs represent property values that may well be worth hundreds of thousands or millions of dollars to other people, we are obliged to act in utter fairness to their rights.

"When, however, in our opinion, there is sufficient evidence supporting such accusations, we have taken, and will continue to take, action to remove such programs from the air promptly. There can be no compromise. . . .

"Certainly, as broadcasters, we know and will continue to exercise our responsibility to the American people. In this I know I express the sentiment not only of our company, but of the other networks and the individual station owners throughout the country as well."

At the time Mr. Cowan spoke, two quiz shows had been dropped. Dotto, on CBS-TV daytime and NBC-TV in a nighttime version, was abandoned abruptly by Colgate-Palmolive and the networks on the heels of "fix" charges that touched off the current investigation [NETWORKS, Aug. 25]. The $64,000 Challenge, which was to move from CBS-TV to NBC-TV last week, was dropped by P. Lorillard and its last performance on CBS was "pre-empted" for a special news show presented by the network without a sponsor [AT DEADLINE, Sept. 15].

Lorillard was known to have been concerned about charges made against Challenge, which were quickly denied by the producer. The tobacco company attributed its move to a desire for wider audience appeal, pointing out that Challenge attracts the same type audience as $64,000 Question, which it co-sponsors.

Mr. Cowan has been credited with starting the big-money quiz trend with Question. He launched this program in 1955 when he headed his own production firm, now Entertainment Productions Inc., which packages both Question and Challenge.

Western National Firms Lag in Tv Use—Durgin

National advertisers located in the Western states are behind their fellows in other sections of the land in the use of tv advertising, Don Durgin, NBC-TV vice president and national sales manager, said Tuesday (Sept. 16).

Addressing the Los Angeles Advertising Club, Mr. Durgin reported that of the 798 national advertisers who spent $250,000 or more last year in network and spot tv, newspapers, newspaper supplements and magazines, Pacific Coast advertisers contributed only 5% of the five-media total. In the first six months of 1958, these Pacific Coast advertisers put up only 4% of the time billings of the tv networks and only 2% of the billings of NBC-TV.

Citing the recent Fortune list of the nation's top 500 companies, Mr. Durgin said that there are 22 companies with headquarters on the West Coast spending at least $250,000 for national advertising last year. These firms, he stated, divided their advertising expenditures this way: Network tv: 15%; spot tv: 9%; magazines: 44%; sup-

ROBINSON BECOMES 'D.P.'

An NBC newsman, pointing out in a tv network program that Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek had declined to answer 8 out of 15 questions submitted in advance, has been accused by the Taiwan government of being "unfriendly" to the nationalists. Result: visa cancellation and automatic expulsion. Cancellation came as the newsman, Jim Robinson, was en route to New York from Taipei to appear on a special NBC-TV report on the Quemoy crisis Thursday night. Thus, NBC News Vice President William R. McAndrew Thursday said his office would "protest in the strongest possible terms" to this action by the nationalists, defended Mr. Robinson his conduct and work as "fair and objective . . . highly responsible" and noted his expulsion was "an affront to all honest reporters."

plements: 18%; newspapers: 14%. The combined network-spot tv allotment of 24% of these advertising budgets compares unfavorably with the more than 50% devoted to tv by the nation's top 50 advertisers, he declared.

He attributed this underrepresentation of West Coast advertisers in tv to "poor communications—or maybe I should say poor selling—on the part of the networks and the agencies, who, after all, are the real salesmen of any medium."

Focussing on foods and institutional or industrial accounts, which he termed "the two principal product categories located in the West," Mr. Durgin said:

"There are so many examples of food advertisers using network tv to tremendous advantage that I believe the failure of west coast national food accounts to use network television as importantly cannot help but restrict their growth or the speed with which they realize their potential. In this connection, the remarkable advance of daytime tv is especially significant for food companies who are using this medium more than ever.

"We have just received substantial orders from Pillsbury, General Mills, Heinz, Armour, National Biscuit, Sunshine Biscuit—all new business to NBC-TV—which underscores the sales success of daytime tv. We are 70% sold out this year vs. 60% a year ago. Our daytime business alone will run to $64 million in time and talent this season. The other networks have also recorded significant sales gains in daytime vs. a year ago."

Paar Wants Time Shortened

Jack Paar, who has lifted NBC-TV's late-evening Jack Paar Show to success, is at odds with the network over whether the show should be cut and he reportedly has warned he'll quit unless it's shortened by a half-hour effective next July. An NBC spokesman said, "We're sympathetic with Jack's problem but it is not feasible at this time to reduce his schedule."

Post-Labor Day Rash of Orders Nets $5 Million for NBC-Radio

NBC Radio since Labor Day has racked up over $5 million net in orders to be executed during the last four months of this year, the network reported last week. NBC Radio Executive Vice President Matthew J. Culligan said: "This volume of post-Labor Day business is the greatest in well over five years." The allocations are spread over campaigns running between Sept. 1 and Dec. 31 and do not cover drives slated for 1959. Forty-one advertisers and 26 agencies are involved in this placement. Among them: the previously-reported $1 million order from Mogen David Wine Corp. (2,184 Monitor announcements) through Edward H. Weiss & Co.

Among other NBC Radio advertisers showing up in this last quarter of 1958: Morton Salt Co., California Packing Corp., General Foods Corp., Lewis-Howe Co., Warner-Lambert Pharmaceutical Co., Grove Labs., Bristol-Myers Co., General Motors Corp., Chrysler Corp., Pepsi-Cola Co., Readers' Digest Assn., and Brown & Williamson Tobacco Corp.

Radio Networks Cooperate In Storm Warning Service

Cooperation by the four radio networks has been enlisted in a project that enables about 140 stations in Florida to receive for the first time detailed instantaneous advisories of hurricane warning information three times a day on a regular basis.

Agreement on the plan was reached by officials of Mutual, ABC, NBC, CBS, AT&T and a representative of the Florida Assn. of Broadcasters, James L. Howe, president of WIRA Fort Pierce. FAB is absorbing the cost of a short loop from the Miami Weather Bureau to WKAT Miami Beach, MBS affiliate. MBS, which maintains a reversible telephone line between Miami Beach and Jacksonville, Fla., is making the line available for detailed hurricane advisories. They are fed each day at 8 a.m., 12 noon and 4 p.m. (EST), when warranted, to Jacksonville, which is an AT&T distribution center for all networks. In turn, the advisories are distributed to all network stations and to independents.

Network Tv House Still Growing

Network viewership continues to grow, Television Bureau of Advertising reported Thursday (Sept. 18). In TvB's January-August (1958) study, the first eight months showed a 9% increase in average nighttime audiences and 13% in average daytime audiences. This year so far has seen an additional 689,000 homes added to nighttime audiences and 389,000 homes added to daytime audiences.

In nighttime audience terms, 5.7 million homes were watching in 1955; 6.8 million in 1956; 8.1 million in 1957 and 8.8 million this year. In daytime audience terms, 2.2 million homes were tuned in in 1955; 2.7 million in 1956; 3.0 million in 1957 and 3.4 million this year. TvB's figures are based on A. C. Nielsen & Co. audience statistics.

KICKOFF NAB CONFERENCE MULLS LEGISLATIVE THREATS, ECONOMICS

- Biloxi sessions open fall series of eight meetings
- Fellows outlines new areas of NAB concentration

NAB's series of eight fall conferences opened last week at Biloxi, Miss., with two days of meetings devoted to station management problems and ways of increasing operating efficiency. The series resumes today (Sept. 22) at Oklahoma City and continues Sept. 25-26 at Sun Valley, Idaho (story, page 60).

The first conference drew an attendance of 150, comprising delegates from Arkansas-Tennessee on the north and Eastern Texas on the west. NAB President Harold E. Fellows was accompanied by nine headquarters executives, a smaller staff group than usual.

NAB has been directing its heaviest attention to three fundamental activities, Mr. Fellows said, listing them as government relations, public relations and economic relations.

Highlighting the trends brought out during the Sept. 18-19 Biloxi meeting were:

- Broadcasting escaped the wildest congressional year in memory without passage of any crippling legislation, but the 1959 session promises to be even worse.

- The profit position of broadcast stations is becoming more dependent, year by year, on efficient management rather than outside competitive factors (story page 56).

- Agency timebuying methods are due for an overhauling (story page 60).

- Station editorializing is slowly but steadily increasing.

- Tv broadcasters privately voiced concern over threats to tv allocations through spectrum juggling as a result of government and manufacturing industry studies of military and civilian services.

In shifting NAB's emphasis to government, public and economic relations, Mr. Fellows described the three as inseparable and overlapping in modern Washington and the nation as a whole.

He observed that legislators can't be expected to understand "the intricate challenges of broadcasting" unless their constituents also understand them, a point where the objectives of NAB government and public relations run parallel. But if economic considerations should bankrupt the broadcasting business, he went on, "there would be no funds for carrying on in the vital arenas of government and public relations."

NAB started building its economic relations a decade ago, Mr. Fellows said, tracing the growth of this activity. Next came stepped-up government relations in the last five or six years and the recent public relations expansion. He voiced concern that NAB is not geared even now to handle the job, particularly in government relations.

He backed the legislative gloominess with the prediction there will be more bills and hearings involving pay tv, community antennas, network regulation, restricted ownership (by multiples and by categories), allocations, international treaties, freedom of access to cover public events, advertising controls, music licensing, copyright and many other subjects of interest to radio-tv.

Arrival of the space age, Mr. Fellows said, will pose new and pressing challenges for broadcasters and require "freedom in which to perform" broadcast functions. Here, he said, is another reason for unified broadcaster action.

"We cannot say that the whole system of retransmitting signals may not be changed by the existence of stationary or moving space objects in the foreseeable tomorrow," he said, adding: "Surely, as pioneers in the field of electronic communicating, we must be prepared to do our part in utilizing the equipment of communicating for the good of international and intrapeople relations."

In a greeting to broadcasters at the opening Fall Conference session Mr. Fellows explained the new 1½-day agenda with its emphasis on management problems, association activities and station administration. This change was made by NAB board directive, the current series being programmed as a transition from past autumn meetings to operational phases of station management.

The 1959 meetings will be strictly operational and will be located at eight central metropolitan points.

Vincent T. Wasilewski, NAB manager of government relations, said 1958 had been "a successful year for broadcasters" despite the flood of hearings and the swarms of legislation. "No legislation was adopted contrary to the best interests of broadcasters during the 85th congress," he said, describing some of the excitement on Capitol Hill.

Copyright will be in the spotlight next year, he predicted. Any revision of copyright law, he added, should remove the $250 minimum damages for infringement even if innocent. He reminded that the present law has no requirement to reveal on labels where ownership of performing rights lies. Often it is impossible for a broadcaster to determine ownership, he said. In a discussion of political broadcasters, he said stations with local and national rates can't charge the national rate in the case of candidates for local office.

In line with the association's stepped up public relations activity, Donald N. Martin, public relations assistant to President Fellows, described a guide to be distributed to members. It is designed to help stations win goodwill in their own areas and to encourage participation in industrywide public relations efforts. He said NAB will circulate a questionnaire to obtain a library of individual practices and experiences that will help other broadcasters.

In heading the discussion of editorializing, Daniel W. Kops, WAVZ New Haven, Conn., cited a survey by BROADCASTING [TRADE ASSOCIATIONS, Sept. 15] showing that 36% of a.m. and 25.8% of tv stations carry editorials on the air daily, weekly or occasionally. He said WAVZ has been running two-minute editorials, each repeated six times, on an average of two or three times a week.

"We've never lost an advertiser because of our editorials," he said, adding, "and we've actually gained many advertisers because of our identification with community growth." On a showing of hands approximately one out of eight stations represented at the meeting indicated they editorialize. Mr. Kops argued that the problem of equal time for reply isn't serious. Mr. Wasilewski said the FCC is mainly interested in seeing if a station is trying to be fair in its equal-time policies.

At a radio panel Mr. Kops introduced NAB's new handbook, Broadcasting The News, and called on stations to measure up to the journalistic standards required of "the primary medium of spot news."

Robert T. Mason, WMRN Marion, Ohio, chairman of the all-industry radio music license committee, said the committee will soon be ready to start negotiations with ASCAP, BMI and possibly other copyright groups. ASCAP contracts expire at the end of 1958 and BMI contracts in the spring of 1959. Mr. Mason called on all stations to support the committee. A similar tv group led negotiations with ASCAP a year ago.

William MacRae, station relations director for the Television Bureau of Advertising, presented "The House That Television Built"—Lestoil's success story—and TvB's updated "E-Motion" film, showing "profiles" of four major media "in terms of the personal values people take from media, the ability of the media to communicate, and the manner in which people use the media."

The media studied, through 90-minute personal interviews with some 300 adults selected to be broadly representative of the U.S., are television, radio, newspapers and magazines. The study is described as "exploratory." Results dealing with use of the four media for advertising are pointed up in the film.

E-Motion is introduced, via recording, by Dr. Lyndon Brown, vice president and director of media, merchandising and research for Dancer-Fitzgerald-Sample, and TvB President Norman E. Cash.

WSYR-TV Weekly Circulation Tops Competition by 39,170 Homes

No matter how you look at it, the 1958 Nielsen study gives WSYR-TV a dramatic margin of superiority in the Central New York market. WSYR-TV delivers a vastly greater coverage area . . . more counties where circulation exceeds 50% . . . more circulation nighttime and daytime. Examples:—

TV Homes Reached Weekly	342,490	303,320
Weekly Circulation, Nighttime	340,440	299,870
Weekly Circulation, Daytime	274,140	247,190
Daily Circulation, Nighttime	274,960	247,950
Daily Circulation, Daytime	199,860	176,420

When you buy WSYR-TV, you also get the audience of its satellite station, WSYE-TV, Elmira, with a weekly circulation of 28,180 homes.

And finally, if ratings fascinate you: the June ARB report for Syracuse gives WSYR-TV 52.9% of total weekly audience; 63.9% from noon to 6 P.M. Mon.-Fri.; 54.6% from 6 P.M. to 10 P.M. Mon.-Fri.; 71.8% from sign-on to 6 P.M. Sundays.

studies," according to Dr. Brown. "It undertakes to map out the world of mass media . . . with the consumer left in. It completely ignores costs per thousand, ratings, circulation, readership—the media bookkeeping. Instead, it concerns itself with how the consumer looks at the media world . . . the personal values he gets from media . . . how he uses the media . . . what each means to him."

Mr. Cash explained the techniques used in the study, conducted by Motivation Analysis Inc., independent research firm headed by Dr. Philip Eisenberg. The project was directed by Dr. Leon Arons, TvB research director.

Two networks held meetings of affiliates at Biloxi.

David B. Williams CBS-TV eastern manager of affiliates relations; F. E. Busby, WTVY (TV) Dothan, Ala., and T. B. Lanford, WJTV Jackson, Miss., CBS-TV advisory board director, were hosts at an affiliates' breakfast. They previewed the upcoming CBS-TV program lineup.

Charles Godwin, MBS station relations vice president and Victor C. Diehm, WAZL Hazleton, Pa., representing the affiliates advisory board, said the network plans more and better news programming under the new network ownership.

NBC had a reception suite at the meeting along with several station representatives and programming firms.

Which Radio Stations Make Better Profits?

Independent radio stations show a better profit margin (revenues vs. expenses) than network affiliates but the latter show a higher dollar profit, according to an NAB analysis given delegates at the opening Fall Conference at Biloxi, Miss.

In outlining the results of a sample survey, representing a cross-section of the radio industry, Charles H. Tower, NAB's economist and labor relations manager, found that efficient management is the most important factor in a station's profit position.

Mr. Tower found that such "external factors" as power, affiliation, market size and years on the air make some difference but he added, "Management push can overcome competition and other external elements."

Total station revenue runs about the same whether there are two stations in a market, or seven or more, he said. On the other hand, the dollar profit goes down sharply as the number of stations in a market increases.

The study included 128 stations (both profit and loss outlets) in various sizes of markets.

In comparing network affiliates (NBC, CBS only), Mr. Tower found.

- Affiliates—5.3% profit margin; $12,100 profit.

- All others (independent)—9.2% profit margin; $10,500 profit.

These are median figures. Stations 30 or more years old showed the highest profit margin, the radio analysis revealed. The breakdown by age of station follows:

- 30 years or older—11.4% profit margin; $22,430 profit yearly.
- 20-30 years—9.9% profit margin. $12,890 profit yearly.
- 10-20 years—6.2% profit margin, $8,930 profit yearly.
- 1-10 years—6.1% profit margin, $6,640 profit yearly.

Profit margin as shown by station power varied sharply, with 10 kw and 50 kw outlets easily leading the field. The average power breakdown follows:

- 250-500 w—9.9% profit margin, $11,300 profit yearly.
- 1 kw—1.9% profit margin, $1,100 profit.
- 5 kw—6.3% profit margin, $13,400 profit.
- 10-50 kw—11.1% profit margin, $40,700 profit.

During separate radio and tv sessions at the Biloxi meeting Mr. Tower led discussions of administrative and management problems. He suggested procedure for purchase of new equipment and explained technological advances. To some extent "the rate of technological change is the measure of the rate of progress of the firm," he said.

NAB Plans Heavy Film Use For Promotion, Orientation

NAB is going into the film-producing business on an extensive basis to promote public understanding of broadcasting.

An 18-minute radio film titled "Hear and Now" was previewed Thursday at the opening NAB Fall Conference in Biloxi, Miss. The documentary traces growth of radio from the crystal set days, recounting memorable moments in radio history such as King Edward VII's abdication speech, the Hindenburg crash and President Roosevelt's "Day of Infamy" address.

The film shows how radio participates in community life and describes warning services. Donald N. Martin, NAB public relations assistant to the president, was in overall charge of the project. United Press Movietone News produced and Stan Raiff, of the NAB public relations service, was supervisor. NAB members can buy the film for $35 plus shipping charges, or rent it 10 days for $10 plus shipping charges. John F. Meagher, NAB radio vice president, will show the film at all eight NAB fall conferences.

A film presentation including "The House That Television Built" and "E-Motion" was offered at Biloxi by Television Bureau of Advertising (see page 54).

NAB's Tv Code staff produced a 16-minute "what-not-to-do" film, a fictional dramatic program including such departures from code standards as illicit sex, undue violence, suicide, eye-opening costuming, cruelty to animals, profanity and many types of advertising abuses. rector, wrote the script. Gene McPherson, WBNS-TV Columbus, Ohio, production director, produced the drama through WBNS-TV facilities.

Another film presented Roger W. Clipp, WFIL-TV Philadelphia, chairman of the NAB Tv Code Board, to the Biloxi tv meeting. Mr. Clipp reminded tv broadcasters they must be vigilant to control commercial practices and avoid excessive crime and violence in programs. "Adherence to the code is good business dollarwise in enhancing the prestige, dignity and respect of the industry," he said.

Edward H. Bronson, Tv Code director, reported that nearly three-fourths of all tv code violations are confined to 15% of the stations. He explained the modified rule on multiple-spotting.

Another NAB film production will come out later in the autumn. It will be a series of 10-second animated spots. A $25,000 appropriation has been made available and production will start soon on a test series of 12 spots. The spots will be released during National Television Week Nov. 16-22.

Finally, NAB is producing a 13½-minute public relations film depicting television's role in community and national life. It is to do the same job for television that "Hear and Now" is doing for radio.

Next on NAB Circuit: Okla. City, Sun Valley

NAB's series of Fall Conferences continue this week with meetings Monday-Tuesday (Sept. 22-23) at the Biltmore Hotel, Oklahoma City, and Thursday-Friday at Challenger Inn, Sun Valley, Idaho.

Programs will follow the pattern set at the Biloxi, Miss., opening meeting last week (see coverage, starting page 54). NAB's 10-man headquarters crew will head discussions of management problems and separate radio-tv panels.

NAB President Harold E. Fellows will head the association's group of specialists who take up employment, public relations, government and other management topics. Dr. Melvin S. Hattwick, advertising director of Continental Oil Co., will deliver the closing luncheon talk at Oklahoma City. William Niskanen, general manager of Pacific Trailways Co., Bend, Ore., will be final speaker at Sun Valley.

A radio sales panel at Oklahoma City will include George W. Bolling, of Bolling Co., station representatives; Grover C. Cobb, KVGB Great Bend, Kan.; Frank S. Lane, KRMG Tulsa, Okla., and Pat Murphy, KCRC Enid, Okla. Robert L. Pratt, KGGF Coffeyville, Kan., will speak on news programming. David M. Siegal, KOSI Denver, will speak on music programming trends and William S. Staff and management problems will include a talk on internal efficiency by Charles Okell, of Charles Bruning Co. Sta-

AN AGENCY JUNKS 'AUTOMATIC BUYING'

The methods of buying broadcast time are due for an overhaul, according to William H. Thomas, radio-tv director of Fitzgerald Adv. Agency, New Orleans.

One of the largest agencies in the South, Fitzgerald is developing ways of replacing "automatic time buying," he told the opening NAB Fall Conference at its Sept. 19 luncheon in Biloxi Miss.

The answer to weakness in the use of rating reports can be found in reliance on long-range depth studies of audience composition and habits, with emphasis placed on trends, Mr. Thomas said, outlining the steps taken this year to improve time buying methods.

Fitzgerald first decided to do a depth study on the impact of a weekly strip placed on a southern station. American Research Bureau was asked to re-process its survey figures to show how often people listened to the strip, when they listened and to break down the audience by age groups and sex.

"We wanted to know if the competition was clobbering us at any point," Mr. Thomas said in explaining the technique. As a result of the trend-depth study the agency dropped the weekly strip and replaced it with two half-hours. "The client was impressed," he said. "We had the answer to the circulation figures that print media always throw at an agency in competition to broadcast sales data."

The agency discussed the technique with other stations carrying the account, asking if they would be willing to pay the cost of ARB breakdowns. All stations agreed to absorb the expense and Fitzgerald now has a fund of helpful information to guide it in efficient purchases of time for the account.

Mr. Thomas proposed an overhauling of station merchandising methods, explaining that a lot of station reports on their promotion merely go into the wastebasket. "Why not do actual research on what your advertisers are doing?" he said, "If such activity is handled correctly it will be of such overall value that in certain instances you will get help from us in an advisory and on occasions in a financial capacity."

He contended many stations "are spinning their wheels" by unplanned, sporadic merchandising and promotion. "Agencies and stations should work out merchandising together," he said.

In discussing schedules, he said, "one of our timebuyers who has been in the midst of several campaigns mentioned that it's very common for schedules to be confirmed with agencies having no resemblance to the order placed."

Mr. Thomas traced 1958 radio-tv advertising trends—spot tv is often on a sold-out basis, including daytime and ID's, spot radio should exceed last year; unsold tv network time is diminishing with unprecedented interest in daytime where rates are attractive; network radio's comeback may be slightly over 1957. He described television as "the No. 1 advertising medium."

tion panelists will be Tom Johnson, KTOK Oklahoma City; Joseph B. Kirby, KFBI Wichita, Kan., and Allan Page, KGWA Enid, Okla.

John F. Meagher and Thad H. Brown Jr., respective radio and tv vice presidents of NAB, will preside at the separate sessions. Keith Culverhouse, assistant sales promotion director of Television Bureau of Advertising, will speak on sales. Edward H. Bronson, NAB tv code director, will lead a code discussion and show a film based on code violations.

A tv program and tv tape discussion will include Eugene Thomas, KETV (TV) Omaha, Neb.; J. C. Richdale Jr., KOTV (TV) Tulsa, Okla., and Willard E. Walbridge, KTRK (TV) Houston. Taking part in a tv cost program will be Dale Larsen, KTVH (TV) Hutchinson, Kan., and William Smellage, WFAA-TV Dallas.

At the Sun Valley meeting a radio music programming session will be addressed by Gordon B. McLendon, KLIF Dallas. Members of a radio sales panel will be Lewis H. Avery, of Avery-Knodel; James M. Brady, KIFI Idaho Falls, Idaho; R. W. Burden, KWIK Pocatello, Idaho, and W. Kimball Ward, KLO Ogden, Utah. Henry H. Fletcher, KSEI Pocatello, Idaho, will discuss news and J. Allen Jensen, KSL Salt Lake City, will review music copyright negotiations.

Panel members at a discussion of staff problems will be Ken Kilter, KFXD Nampa, Idaho; Del Leeson, KDYL Salt Lake City, and Ken Nybo, KBMY Billings, Mont. Don L. Heller, of Charles Bruning Co., will speak on internal efficiency.

Discussion leaders at a tv sales-program session will be Joseph L. Floyd, KELO-TV Sioux Falls, S. D.; James D. Russell, KKTU (TV) Colorado Springs, Colo., and A. J. Mosby, KMSO-TV Missoula, Mont. Norman E. Cash, president, will present the TvB sales feature.

Tv station administration will be reviewed. Participants in the program include J. W. Wright, KSL-TV Salt Lake City, and Ralph Radetsky, KOA-TV Denver. Douglas A. Anello, NAB chief attorney, will make his first appearance at the fall series, discussing community antenna developments.

OVERSIGHT COMMITTEE GETS BACK TO FCC'S BROADCAST DECISIONS

- Pittsburgh ch. 4 grant first on tap at hearing Tuesday
- Harris wants more information on eight remanded cases

The House Legislative Oversight Subcommittee will be back in the broadcast business again this week with public hearings beginning tomorrow (Tuesday) on the Pittsburgh ch. 4 comparative tv case.

Originally, five applicants were vying for the coveted facility (Pittsburgh's third commercial vhf). However, by the time the FCC made a final grant, only one applicant remained after a merger between Television City Inc., and the Hearst Corp. [GOVERNMENT, July 29, 1957]. The other three applicants withdrew from the race and were paid $50,000 each by the merged firm for "expenses."

WTAE-TV, which was awarded the channel, went on the air Sept. 14. Affiliated with ABC-TV, the station operates with 100 kw visual and 50 kw aural.

A subcommittee source said the congressional investigators are interested in the role played in the case by former FCC Chairman George C. McConnaughey, both before and after he left the Commission. Mr. McConnaughey left the FCC July 1, 1957, and immediately joined into a law partnership with George Sutton, of counsel for Tv City Inc. Mr. McConnaughey subsequently discontinued his Washington practice to devote full time to his law partnership in Columbus, Ohio.

Rep. Oren Harris (D-Ark.), chairman, said this week he also would look into the problem of several contested cases remanded to the Commission. At the request of the subcommittee the FCC furnished a list of eight such cases remanded since Jan. 1—some of them in effect telling the Commission to investigate itself, a committee spokesman said. He related that a thorough study had failed to reveal a single statute covering such a situation.

The subcommittee will ask the FCC for recommendations on legislation required to cover such remanded cases. The investigators also are interested in determining what the FCC has done and is doing with the returned grants. However, Rep. Harris stressed, no attempt will be made to go into the merits of any of the cases.

The eight cases—all remanded since Jan. 23 of this year—discussed "briefly" by the Commission in its summary to the committee include (1) an am grant in Bradenton, Fla.; (2) the grant of Miami ch. 10 to National Airlines (remand prompted by disclosures made in earlier subcommittee hearings); (3) authority to ch. 20 WJMR-TV New Orleans for experimental operation on New Orleans ch. 12; (4) authorization of a shift in transmitter site by ch. 7 WSPA-TV Spartanburg, S. C. (on the protest of two uhf stations), also

(5) Renewal of license of NBC's WRCV-AM-TV Philadelphia (on a protest raised by Philco Corp.), acquired in a swap of the network's stations in Cleveland for Westinghouse Broadcasting Co.'s Philadelphia outlets; (6) grant of ch. 13 Indianapolis to Crosley Broadcasting Co. (on a protest lodged by losing applicant WIBC Indianapolis); (7) an am grant in Bremen, Ga. (Carroll Case) (in its remand, the court told the FCC it must consider the effect of competition in making a grant), and (8) the grant of ch. 5 Boston to WHDH-Herald Traveler (the subject of brief committee hearings last spring).

Other applicants for Pittsburgh ch. 4 were Matta Enterprises (WLOA Braddock, Pa.), Wespen Television Inc. and Irwin Community Television Co. Subcommittee investigators Oliver Eastland and Baron Shacklette spent several weeks looking into the case last spring.

Mr. Eastland will lead off Tuesday's hearing with a report on his investigation (Mr. Shacklette has resigned as the committee's chief investigator). Rep. Harris said it has not been determined what other witnesses would be asked to testify following Mr. Eastland.

He did not rule out the possibility that some of the principals in the Pittsburgh proceedings would testify. The chairman said there are no plans for additional testimony from Mr. McConnaughey, who left the FCC three weeks prior to the ch. 4 grant.

In testimony before the subcommittee last spring, Mr. McConnaughey told of having lunch with Earl F. Reed, president and 15% owner of Tv City Inc., while the ch. 4 case was before the Commission [GOVERNMENT, April 7]. He said he changed the subject of conversation from the contest "as soon as I could."

When the subcommittee announced its schedule of interim hearings last month, it was not expected to reach FCC matters until November [CLOSED CIRCUIT, Sept. 8]. However, matters concerning the Securities & Exchange Commission were disposed of in hearings last week, leaving this week open for the FCC. The sessions will be held in the Public Works Committee hearing room in Room 1304 of the New House Office Bldg.

New Orleans Ch. 12 Applicants Still Stymied on Antenna Rules

Applicants for ch. 12 New Orleans found themselves stymied last week when the FCC denied a joint petition by Oklahoma Television Corp. and Coastal Television Co. for permission to site their proposed antennas at less than the required maximum distances from co-channel and adjacent channel stations.

The denial leaves the two applicants at the mercy of a ruling by the Washington Airspace Panel objecting to an antenna taller than 308 ft. above mean sea level in a narrow segment southeast of New Orleans, which the applicants say would not deliver a city-grade signal to all of New Orleans, as required by FCC regulations.

The applicants originally had asked Airspace for approval of antennas ranging from 1,300-1,500 ft. above sea level using full powers in the area to which the applicants were confined because of the television separation maximums. Airspace turned down these requests in December 1957, suggesting a 308-ft. height in that sector, or a taller tower in the New Orleans "antenna farm" (east-southeast of New Orleans). The applicants asked the FCC to approve this site with 500-ft. antennas, even though it would be almost 30 miles short of the required 190-mile co-channel separation, and about 4.5 miles short of the required 60-mile adjacent channel separation. It was this request that the Commission denied last week.

Objecting to any waiver of mileage requirements were ch. 12 WTJV (TV) Jackson, Miss., the FCC's Broadcast Bureau and the Assn. of Maximum Service Telecasters.

In other actions in the New Orleans ch. 12 case, the Commission denied a petition by WJMR-TV New Orleans for permission to change from ch. 20 to ch. 12 and a joint petition by WJMR-TV and Oklahoma Television Corp. to defer action on the application of St. Anthony Television Corp. for ch. 11 in Houma, La. The 60-mile adjacent channel separation factor for New Orleans' ch. 12 grantee must be figured from the proposed ch. 11 Houma site.

Amortization of Tv Film Costs Discussed in Talks With IRS

A group representing the Alliance of Independent Tv Film Producers has met with Internal Revenue Service officials to discuss tax problems connected with film making for television. The meeting took place Sept. 9 with Harold T. Swartz, director of the IRS' tax ruling division.

The IRS has already conferred with CBS tax experts, it was understood, and has scheduled a meeting with Screen Gems Inc. officials.

The major question is whether tv film costs should be amortized over a period of years or whether the present practice of cost-recovery should be continued. Under the cost-recovery practice, a film producer reports no income until after the costs of the film are met through rentals. Theatrical film producers use a two-year amortization period.

The meetings have been for the purpose of exploring various facets of the problem and the gathering of information for IRS consideration.

Last July, IRS issued a public notice asking for comments on this question [GOVERNMENT, July 28].

Representing the Alliance at last week's meeting were Maurice Morton, McCadden Productions (who is president of the tv-film organization); Dean F. Johnson, Los Angeles attorney (general counsel to the Alliance); Robert A. Schulman, Washington tax counsel; William Miller, Los Angeles accountant; Julius Lefkowitz, New York accountant, and Adrian W. Dewind, New York attorney.

Which way does the wind blow?

Weather is news in Eastern Iowa, where frost bites bank accounts as well as fingers, and snow clogs feeding troughs as well as roads. "Rain by afternoon" means send the kids to the morning school bus complete with rain gear . . . and make hay in the north forty while the WMT stations shine.

Our recently completed Collins weather radar installation permits WMT-TV camera viewing of storms in the making; in addition, it permits continual monitoring of the weather situation by weather-trained staffers. A direct wire to the Des Moines Weather Bureau serves us and our audiences with complete information on all conditions important to Eastern Iowans. We subscribe to a private weather reporting service whose details are WMTed six times a day, seven days a week. Special news correspondents throughout Iowa (more than a hundred) frequently call in important or unusual weather news. Three wire services and two picture services provide our News Center with complete national and international coverage which of course includes weather.

Weather reporting is one of the reasons for WMT-TV's dominance of three of Iowa's six largest cities, plus coverage of well over half the tv families in Iowa—and one of the reasons that WMT Radio averages more audience than the combined total of all other radio stations located in our Pulse area.

IKE CONSIDERS SPECTRUM STUDY

The thorny problem of frequency spectrum allocations—involving civilian-military use and what to do about divided control—is being given the highest level consideration by the President and his cabinet.

It was ascertained authoritatively last week that President Eisenhower had the allocations issue presented to the cabinet prior to his Newport vacation. It was at this meeting that the decision presumably was reached to appoint a five-man presidential commission to undertake a spectrum analysis, along with recommendations as to a solution of the divided control problem.

Under existing law, the President allocates spectrum space to government services, with the military the preponderant user, while the FCC handles all other allocations. The only coordination between the two is through the Interdepartmental Radio Advisory Committee, made up entirely of government personnel and dominated by the military.

Simultaneously, the board of the Electronic Industries Assn., meeting in San Francisco last week, adopted a resolution affirming its previous position advocating a study of the radio spectrum and the appointment of a commission to do so. The board instructed its Special Spectrum Study Committee to notify all federal agencies of its resolution. This committee is chair-manned by H. Leslie Hoffman, Hoffman Electronics Inc., Los Angeles, and a former EIA president.

It was learned that the spectrum committee had met with representatives of the broadcast industry earlier in the week to exchange views. Representing broadcasters were Thad H. Brown and A. Prose Walker, NAB; William Lodge, CBS; Philip Siling, NBC-RCA, and Harry Jacobs, ABC.

Although EIA made no reference to just how the study should be made, or who should appoint a commission, it feels that a study should be initiated under any auspices, David R. Hull, EIA president said last week. He said the meeting with broadcast representatives had been fruitful, and that both broadcasters and manufacturers now understood their respective positions. Mr. Hull is a vice president of Raytheon Manufacturing Corp.

EIA originally urged a high level spectrum study, but this was sidetracked when the Senate adopted the Potter Resolution (SJ Res 106) prior to adjournment last month. With the adjournment of Congress without taking final action on this resolution, interest in the presidential commission was revived.

While confidence was expressed in certain industry quarters that the presidential commission would be appointed, probably within the next fortnight, there developed last weekend the report that no formal announcement of action would be made. Instead there was the view from usually well-informed quarters that the President would designate a committee of both civilian and military experts to conduct a study and submit recommendations to the President within six months.

Presumably the latter approach would placate Congress, which had manifested interest in an overall spectrum study and which feels that allocations constitute a legislative rather than an executive problem.

The Potter Resolution was killed in the House largely because of protests from television broadcasters after the measure had been radically revised to shift the study from a pure analysis of usage to one going into the administration of the spectrum and with emphasis on use being made by private rather than government agencies. The military had strenuously opposed the Potter Resolution in its original form but offered no objection to the revised measure, amendments to which were suggested by the Office of Civil Defense and Mobilization with the endorsement of President Eisenhower [GOVERNMENT, Aug. 4].

It is expected that the Potter Resolution will be revived at the new session of Congress convening in January. This may be in amended form. Suggestions that the study be undertaken by a joint congressional committee, because of its importance, have been well received by members of both Senate and House identified with communications legislation.

"You Keep Saturday For Sunday?"

... That's a question often asked of Seventh-day Adventists because they observe the seventh day of the week, Saturday, as the Christian Sabbath, or the Lord's Day.

To help you in interpreting this practice to your listeners on occasion, here are some useful facts:

1. Adventists do not observe the Sabbath "in place of Sunday" but rather as "the original," following what they believe to be the example and precept of Christ and the apostles. It is also the specific admonition of the fourth commandment, was instituted in the beginning as a memorial of God's creatorship of this world.
2. Adventists point out that Sunday observance became a church practice only after apostolic times, and thus has the sanction of tradition but not of Scripture.
3. Adventists sincerely respect the right of others to choose to observe Sunday, asking only that this religious practice not be imposed on the general community by law or economic pressures.
4. Observed from sunset Friday to sunset Saturday, the Sabbath involves more than church attendance. All its hours are reserved for Christian devotion and service, laying routine employment aside.
5. Emphasizing obedience to divine law as the result of divine grace in the heart, observance of the Sabbath is a weekly reminder of essential attributes of good citizenship—respect for law and order, dedication to the service of fellow men.

BAKER, PORTER TILT AT HEARING

- Stern bans exchange from ch. 10 rehearing record
- Whiteside set to appear in proceeding's third week

A truculent G. T. Baker, president of National Airlines, traded verbal blows last Thursday with Paul A. Porter, attorney for A. Frank Katzentine (WKAT Miami), one of the losers in the Miami ch. 10 hearing and whose affidavit is acknowledged to have triggered the Miami scandal.

The encounter took place when Mr. Porter was cross-examining Mr. Baker in the second week of the remanded ch. 10 hearing. Mr. Porter was attempting to elicit from Mr. Baker why he went to see Thurman A. Whiteside, Miami attorney, in an attempt to retain him in the tv case although the FCC record was closed.

Bristling at Mr. Porter's questions, Mr. Baker lashed out by stating he went to see Mr. Whiteside because he couldn't get Mr. Porter. He asserted he thought of Mr. Porter because the Washington lawyer and former FCC chairman had solicited National Airlines' business. When Mr. Porter began to demur, Mr. Baker rushed on saying Mr. Porter had taken him to lunch—at the Colony (Washington) and the Little Palm Club (presumably in Miami).

The by now furious Mr. Porter demanded that Mr. Baker's remarks be "expunged" from the record as "gratuitous and false."

Judge Horace Stern, retired Pennsylvania Supreme Court chief justice and presiding at the remanded trial as a special FCC hearing examiner, ordered the remarks stricken from the record.

The flareup occurred within a few minutes after another encounter between the witness and the attorney for WKAT Inc. This was when Mr. Porter read from a statement by Sen. George A. Smathers (D-Fla.) to the House Legislative Oversight Committee. This recounted that Mr. Baker had been so "overbearing" in his office that the senator had ordered him to leave.

"That's a lie," Mr. Baker shouted. The National Airlines' president said Sen. Smathers "put out" the statement after he, Mr. Baker, had said that the senator was afraid to appear before the House committee and should resign because of his "conniving" in the Miami ch. 10 case.

Mr. Porter denounced the statement as "shotgun, blunderbuss dissemination of general rumors." Judge Stern ordered this angry colloquy also stricken from the record.

Mr. Baker was the third of four witnesses for the second week of the Miami ch. 10 rehearing. Earlier in the week Judge Robert H. Anderson and Charles F. Shelden testified.

On Friday, Paul R. Scott, general counsel for National Airlines, was scheduled to testify.

The key witness—Thurman A. Whiteside—was scheduled to appear today (Sept. 22) and tomorrow.

The hearings are being held after the Miami ch. 10 case was remanded by the U.S. Court of Appeals to determine whether former Comr. Richard A. Mack should have voted in the final decision and whether there were improprieties by any applicants in making private representations to FCC commissioners.

Mr. Mack resigned after the House committee disclosed that Mr. Whiteside had made loans to Mr. Mack over the years. It was also developed that Mr. Whiteside had been approached by National Airlines, but had refused to become an attorney of record. He had, it was alleged, offered to help National by seeing his long-time friend, Mr. Mack. It was shown also that Mr. Mack was approached in behalf of Mr. Katzentine.

As the hearings resumed last Tuesday, Judge Stern asked counsel what their feelings were about his relationship to Henry J. Friendly, vice president and general counsel of Pan American World Airways. Pan American and National Airlines announced a stock exchange transaction two weeks ago and the fact that Mr. Friendly was Judge Stern's son-in-law had been formally made part of the record [GOVERNMENT, Sept. 15].

Edgar W. Holtz, associate FCC general counsel, read a statement in behalf of all counsel and parties entreating Judge Stern to continue and expressing the "most complete confidence" in the judge's integrity. Visibly moved, Judge Stern acquiesced.

Judge Anderson testified that he had been asked by his law partner, Mr. Scott, to recommend a Miami lawyer who knew Mr. Mack. Judge Anderson (he is now judge of the Dade County circuit court), said he suggested Mr. Whiteside. Mr. Anderson said Mr. Scott told him that other applicants, notably Mr. Katzentine, were trying to bring political pressures to bear. The Miami judge said he understood that Mr. Whiteside's retainer was to be in the form of a "defensive" move. He said he was informed that Mr. Whiteside declared he could not serve as counsel of record, but that he would be glad to do anything he could out of friendship for Judge Anderson.

Judge Anderson also said he had the impression that it was not improper for a third party to see an administrative agency commissioner.

Mr. Shelden, a Miami insurance executive, told the story as he knew it of Mr. Mack's one-sixth interest in the Stembler-Shelden Insurance Agency. This came about in 1954, Mr. Shelden testified, when the G. C. Stembler agency was merged with Mr. Shelden's firm. The Stembler firm was controlled by Mr. Whiteside, he said—who owned one-third of it outright and was trustee for the other two-thirds. After the merger, the Stembler-Shelden firm was owned by Mr. Shelden, Mr. Whiteside and W. Y. Stembler, son of the deceased G. C. Stembler. However, one-half of W. Y. Stembler's stock was owned by Mr. Mack, Mr. Shelden said.

He also recounted that disbursements amounting to over $10,000 had been paid to Mr. Mack on orders of Mr. Whiteside. Mr. Whiteside controlled certain accounts,

Mr. Shelden said, and instructed that 50% of the commission on these accounts be paid to Mr. Mack.

Later on Andar Inc. was established, with Mr. Mack as sole stockholder. The monies heretofore sent directly to Mr. Mack were transmitted to Andar Inc., Mr. Shelden said.

At one point, when asked what benefit Mr. Mack brought to the firm, Mr. Shelden said he helped bring some accounts in. He also stated that there was talk then of some day running Mr. Mack for governor of Florida.

Mr. Shelden also testified that when Mr. Whiteside entered his firm, Mr. Katzentine threatened to cancel his business insurance with Mr. Shelden on the ground that Mr. Whiteside was intervening on National Airlines' behalf in the Miami ch. 10 case. Mr. Shelden said he told Mr. Whiteside this and Mr. Whiteside told him to "mind your own business." Mr. Katzentine subsequently canceled his insurance with the Shelden firm.

Mr. Shelden said he had a hazy recollection that he had arranged a luncheon for himself, Mr. Whiteside and Mr. Baker at the Miami Club in Miami. He said he had searched the guest list of the club and had failed to find any signatures indicating that the luncheon had taken place.

During cross-examination, Mr. Shelden professed that his company's books were in the hands of the grand jury and impounded by the court. Robert A. Bicks, Dept. of Justice representative at the hearing, informed the presiding officer that Mr. Shelden had made copies of this material. Mr. Shelden acknowledged that this was so.

At the present time the Stembler-Shelden agency carries the National Airlines' tv station insurance, amounting to about $15,000 yearly in premiums. Mr. Shelden explained that he was a close friend of Mr. Baker and that he had bid against and "beaten" other insurance agents for the business.

Mr. Baker, an impatient and brusque witness, testified that Mr. Scott suggested that National Airlines employ a local attorney to lend "local flavor" to its application and so Mr. Mack would know that "we're all right people." Mr. Scott reported that Judge Anderson recommended Mr. Whiteside, Mr. Baker stated, and when Mr. Scott reported that Mr. Whiteside declined to become associated, that he himself went to see the Miami attorney. Mr. Whiteside said he was too busy to take on the case, Mr. Baker said, and that was the end of that as far as he (Mr. Baker) was concerned. He added that he didn't know "Mack from Adam."

Faced with the purported offer of Mr. Whiteside to help, Mr. Baker said he brushed off this offer. "I've been told by thousands of Florida politicians that they'll help, but they never do. They hide behind stumps . . .", Mr. Baker interjected. Anything Mr. Whiteside did, Mr. Baker said, he did on his own, not at National's direction.

Mr. Baker emphatically refused to agree that he had had lunch with Mr. Whiteside and Mr. Shelden at the Miami Club.

Mr. Baker expressed surprise when shown a handwritten note from a Paul Goldsborough, then with Aeronautical Radio Inc., to former Comr. Edward M. Webster, praising Mr. Baker and National and urging consideration for National's application. He said he had not known about this. The letter bore a penciled notation that it had been associated with the public docket in the case.

Another wrangle developed among attorneys when Mr. Porter, A. Harry Becker, representing North Dade Video Inc., and Paul M. Segal, representing L. B. Wilson Inc., urged that a "Fact Sheet" issued by Communications Counselors Inc., a McCann-Erickson public relations subsidiary, be placed in the record and that its distribution be also placed on record. Norman A. Jorgensen, attorney for National Airlines, objected. Mr. Baker said McCann-Erickson handled National Airlines' publicity, but said he knew nothing about the so-called "Fact Sheet." Judge Stern ruled that the matter was not relevant to the issues in the case.

Two Terre Haute Applications Put in Consolidated Hearing

The existing license of an Indiana television station was designated by the FCC last week for consolidated hearing along with a new application for the station's ch. 10 facility.

Both WTHI-TV Terre Haute, Ind., and Livesay Broadcasting Co., the new applicant, waived their rights to object to each other's applications so the hearing may be expedited.

WTHI-TV, although now on ch. 10, is an applicant for Terre Haute ch. 2 in contest with Illiana Telecasting Corp. The FCC several times has continued proceedings in the ch. 2 contest at the joint requests of WTHI-TV and Illiana while the two discussed such things as the possibility of a merger for operation of ch. 2, the effect of the Livesay application for ch. 10 on both ch. 2 contestants and the fact that Illiana, according to the latest request made Sept. 2, is considering amending to specify another channel instead of ch. 2.

J. R. Livesay, president of WLBH-AM-FM Mattoon and WHOW Clinton, both Illinois, and other principals in the stations, are principals in Livesay Broadcasting.

1550 kc Applicant Asks Hearing

Mitchell Melof last Monday asked the FCC to set a comparative hearing for the am frequency for which he is applying at Smyrna, Ga. (1550 kc, 10 kw day), with the pending, uncontested application of Robert A. Corley for 1570 kc, 1 kw, at College Park, Ga.

Mr. Melof said the FCC effective last week (Sept. 15) lifted the ban on Class II stations on 1550 kc after nearly eight years during which it has been considering the Daytime Skywave proceedings. Since interference will result from grants both to him and to Mr. Corley, Mr. Melof said, he feels the FCC's regular cutoff date should not be applied to the Corley application because of the lifting of the FCC ban on Class II stations.

WAKR Akron Denies Rival Outlets' Charge

WAKR Akron last week formerly replied to charges by competitors WCUE and WADC Akron that WAKR used the columns of the Akron Beacon Journal, with which it is affiliated, to circulate "false and misleading information" about its listenership in comparison with other Akron stations [STATIONS, Sept. 15, 8]. Charges made to the FCC by WCUE and WADC "are entirely unfounded and are in no way substantiated by the true facts," WAKR told the Commission.

The WAKR reply followed a third and similar complaint to the FCC by WHKK Akron.

WAKR said the controversial report on WAKR audience in the Beacon Journal was "basically correct" and charges that the station received favorable treatment from the newspaper are "untrue." The story merely reported WAKR's "recently announced lead in share of audience in the nation, also on its popularity in Akron, as shown by the latest Pulse and Hooper surveys," WAKR said.

WAKR said if the complaining stations feel "disparagement," it results from the "leading position of WAKR" as shown by rating service surveys. The station acknowledged that the newspaper writer inadvertently misinterpreted a "small portion" of the survey data and that a Nielsen survey was erroneously included as a statistical source when it should not have been. The Beacon Journal ran a correction two days later, WAKR said.

Charges that the Beacon Journal uses its facilities to promote WAKR are "untrue and unfounded," WAKR said, and though the Beacon Journal owns stock in WAKR, it is a minority holding, and the newspaper in no way controls WAKR, the station said.

WAKR questioned the "good faith" of the WCUE and WADC complaints, saying they were publicized before they were received by the FCC, and said there also is a question of whether the two stations are trying to create doubt about the Hooper and Pulse surveys.

WAKR submitted what it claimed to be transcripts from announcements on WCUE which were "damaging" to WAKR and the survey companies. The station charged WCUE with circulating "falsified" facts to advertisers and listeners on its audience.

WAKR also enclosed reproductions of letters from Pulse stating that the station had the highest share-of-audience for Monday-Friday in the top 50 markets; a higher share of audience from 6 a.m. to midnight than all other Akron stations combined, and the largest adult audience of Akron radio stations. A similar Hooper letter claimed a special June survey showed WAKR with 53% of the audience from 7 a.m.-10:30 p.m. and 80% of the audience during one early morning newscast in the 6:30-7 a.m. Monday-Friday period. The Hooper letter also claimed WAKR had a higher share of audience Monday-Friday from 7 a.m.-noon, noon-6 p.m. and 6-10:30 p.m. than the other three Akron stations combined.

WAKR President S. Bernard Berk also took notice of WHKK's complaint, charging the WHKK letter was written after the newspaper had corrected its story and that WHKK must have known of the corrected article.

WHKK in its complaint said WAKR and the Beacon Journal share equally in promulgating "false and misleading information" and questioned whether WAKR, by thus "derogating" the three other Akron stations, "is operating in the public interest by doing so." WHKK, in a letter to Hooper, pointed out what it felt were "deliberate" falsities of Hooper data and demanded that Hooper "indicate the falsity of the WAKR claims, and their misuse of your service."

FCC Employes Given Awards For Sleuthing Sputnik Hoax

Six FCC employes in the Los Angeles area have received citations and cash from the government for their work in locating a hidden transmitter which three men used to perpetrate a hoax last December.

The transmitter was on the same frequency as that occupied by a Russian sputnik and messages were transmitted which were claimed to be from the satellite. The men spent "every waking hour" during the Christmas holidays monitoring the transmitter and finally located it in nearby Angeles National Forest. Three electronics engineers operating it were arrested and fined.

The FCC men honored: Bernard H. Linden, engineer in charge of the 11th FCC District; Robert J. Stratton, assistant engineer in charge; Walter W. Wallace, John P. Kemper and Harry F. Barnard, electronics engineers, and George E. Dillon, engineering aide at the FCC's Santa Ana monitoring station.

Tv Cancellation Made Final

The FCC last week gave notice that a June 26 initial decision—denying Wrather-Alvarez Broadcasting Inc. (now Marietta Investment Corp.) extension of time to construct KYAT (TV) Yuma, Ariz. (ch. 13)—became effective Aug. 15 under FCC rules. The joint initial decision was issued by FCC Hearing Examiners James D. Cunningham and Herbert Sharfman [GOVERNMENT, July 7].

No exceptions were filed to the initial decision and its effect was not delayed, but the FCC did not issue its notice until last week because of the volume of other business to be handled upon its return from August vacation. The hearing examiners had opined that the permittee (which received its construction permit Jan. 25, 1956) appeared to have been engaged in "holding operations" awaiting the outcome of rule-making to move ch. 13 to El Centro, Calif.

WCIA (TV) Cautioned on Opinion

The FCC wrote WCIA (TV) Champaign, Ill., last week that the station violated the Commission's standards for editorializing in reporting on the subscription tv question last January and February. As the FCC has written other tv stations, however, the station was told that it has not been otherwise remiss and that no action against WCIA is warranted.

Pre-Hearing Findings Questioned by Court

The FCC's post-war policy of determining the financial qualifications of applicants in a comparative case before the hearing is held was shaken last week in a decision by the U. S. Appeals Court for the District of Columbia which remanded the grant of ch. 13 at Biloxi, Miss., to Radio Associates Inc.

The court agreed with an appeal by the losing applicant for ch. 13, WLOX Biloxi, that a minority stockholder (1½%) in Radio Associates actually is a "principal" in the firm because it is dependent on a loan from him for financing construction and first year's operation. Edward Ball, the stockholder, is a principal, the court said, because he agreed to make the necessary loan for maturity in two years and with 55% of the firm's stock as collateral. Mr. Ball, the court said, not only would be able to dictate the manner of operating the proposed station, but also "can and probably will" gain control of Radio Associates because of the large amount of the loan and the shortness of maturity (two years).

In an unsolicited opinion, the court said the FCC erred in finding Radio Associates financially qualified, even though WLOX neither pointed out nor relied on the error.

The court criticized the FCC's finding, before hearing, that both applicants were financially qualified, and said: "We think the issue should have been added, heard, considered and determined, despite the Commission's prehearing finding that each applicant was financially qualified."

The order added that the FCC made no findings of basic fact from which it concluded Radio Associates was financially qualified. The appeals court decided in a case in 1938 that the FCC should make such findings to enable the reviewing court to determine whether its conclusion is supported sufficiently, the court said, adding: "We should not have to comb the record, as we have done here, to attempt to learn the basic facts." Besides setting aside the FCC's August 1957 grant of ch. 13, the court also set aside the FCC's order of January 1954 finding the applicants financially qualified.

The court decision's immediate effect last week was to raise the question of whether the FCC will have to overhaul its policy of deciding beforehand on legal, financial or technical qualifications to expedite the hearing procedure.

Appeals Backs FCC at Norfolk

The U. S. Court of appeals last week upheld the FCC's grant of ch. 10 in Norfolk, Va., to WAVY-TV, denying an appeal by losing applicant Beachview Broadcasting Corp.

Educators Want Savannah Ch. 9

The Georgia Board of Education last week informed the FCC it is applying for reserved educational ch. 9 at Savannah, specifying a transmitter site 30 miles west and slightly north of the city. The board said the proposed site would conflict with

CRUCIAL DATES

The FCC last week announced the dates which will make up the composite week for its program log analyses for renewal applications of all am, fm and tv stations whose licenses expire in 1959. All dates are in 1958 except Sunday, which is in 1957. Licensees also were reminded that they may submit additional program data if they wish or if they feel statistics for the FCC composite week do not fairly reflect program service rendered. The dates: Monday, Jan. 20, 1958; Tuesday, March 18, 1958; Wednesday, April 9, 1958; Thursday, May 15, 1958; Friday, July 25, 1958; Saturday, Sept. 13, 1958; Sunday, Nov. 17, 1957.

the minimum 190-mile separation requirement vis-a-vis proposals by WRBL-TV (ch. 4) and WTVM (TV) (ch. 28) Columbus, Ga., under an FCC rulemaking now being considered, to operate on chs. 3 and 9, respectively, from a common antenna site. The board said it is willing to "sit down and discuss" some plan to keep Columbus from being made an all-uhf city.

FCC Denies WSLA (TV) Changes

The FCC has denied the application of ch. 8 WSLA (TV) Selma, Ala., to modify its construction permit to move its transmitter site, newly specify its main studio site, increase power and height of antenna. An initial decision in late 1956 had looked toward this action; Comr. John Cross did not participate. WSLA had requested to move its transmitter site to a location 50 miles from Selma and 25 miles from Montgomery, and specify the main studio site one-half mile from the city boundary of Selma. The request in antenna height was from 387 feet to 1,993 feet, and the increase in power from 2.51 kw to 316 kw.

U.S.-Mexican Uhf Limits Set

A formal agreement between the U.S. and Mexico on the allocation of uhf channels within 200 miles of the U.S.-Mexican border has been signed and became effective July 16, the FCC said this month. Negotiations were held last November in Washington. The plan was inaugurated to eliminate possibility of interference in the use of uhfs and contains tv channel assignments (chs. 14-83) for 60 Mexican and 83 U.S. communities, but will not affect any existing uhf operation in the U.S. Mexico heretofore has had no specific plan for uhf. The two countries agreed on a vhf allocation plan for the border in 1952.

Keep U Radiation Limit—EIA

Electronics Industries Assn. has asked the FCC to continue indefinitely its present authorized field strength limits for oscillator radiation from uhf tv receivers. Reduction of intensity in uhf sets from 1000 uv/meter at 100 feet to 500 uv/meter is scheduled to go into effect next Jan. 1. EIA

FCBA Says FCC Should Seek Laws Against 'Strike' Filings

The Federal Communications Bar Assn. told the FCC last week that if it really wanted to correct the abuses that have become apparent because of "strike" applications resulting in pay offs it ought to ask Congress to legislate the practice as a felony.

Congress should provide that any applicant who files without a "bona fide intention of building and operating the facility" for which application is made would be liable to prosecution.

The FCC last July issued a notice of proposed rule-making proposing to change its rules to provide that where a case is designated for hearing and one or more applicants drop out after being recompensed for expenses or after a merger agreement is reached all such applications will be dismissed with prejudice.

The FCBA said it was in "complete" accord with objectives of the FCC, but felt that the proposals do not strike at the root of the abuses. They are not sufficiently drastic, FCBA said, and they are not applicable to situations other than adversary proceedings or where private agreements are made before designation of hearing. FCBA also said that they would prevent settlement of litigation involving no abuses. Comments on the FCC's proposal are due Sept. 26.

Examiner Proposes Dismissal Of Insurance Ad Charges

A Federal Trade Commission examiner has issued an initial decision which would dismiss false advertising charges against six health and accident insurance companies. He said that the FTC had no jurisdiction since the U. S. Supreme Court on June 30 ruled that FTC is prohibited from regulating insurance companies within states having statutes for insurance regulation.

Companies involved: United Insurance Co., Evanston, Ill.; Washington National Insurance Co., Evanston, Ill.; Massachusetts Bonding & Insurance Co., Boston, Mass.; Lumberman's Mutual Casualty Co., Chicago, Ill.; American Casualty Co., Reading, Pa., and Mutual Life Insurance Co. of N. Y., New York.

Three More Oppose WU Rate Hike

The FCC was asked last week by NAB, American Newspaper Publishers Assn. and United Press International to suspend increases in rates for leased teleprinter service, scheduled by Western Union and American Telephone & Telegraph Co. to go into effect Oct. 1. Both NAB and ANPA asked for hearings, holding that the rate boosts averaging 25% might cause many small radio stations and small dailies, respectively, to eliminate or curtail their news services.

RADIO-TV REFORM ON BONN AGENDA

The multi-corporate structure of German radio-tv apparently has given way to intra-state battling for federal support, causing many an anxious moment among Bonn parliamentarians, it has been reported in the West German capital.

The trouble, Bonn says, can be traced to the reorganization under Allied Powers of the former Third Reich broadcasting properties. French officials set up in their zone S.W. German Radio in Baden-Baden; the British in Hamburg established N.W. German Radio which later was split up into N. German Radio (Hamburg) and W. German Radio (Cologne); in Bavaria, the American forces set up Radio Bavaria (Munich) and later the Hessian Network (Frankfurt) and S. German Radio (Stuttgart). Still later, the American occupation enclave in Bremen-Bremerhaven turned over Radio Bremen to Bonn; in Berlin, Radio in the American Sector (RIAS) likewise was turned over to German authorities and with the return of the Saar to the W. German government, Radio Saarland went on the air at Saarbrücken.

After the post-war Wave Length Conference in Copenhagen, these groups were more or less forced to engage in costly uhf development, complicated further still by the introduction of television. The 15 million radio sets in West Germany are distributed among coverage areas this way: W. German, 4.2 million; N. German, 2.9 million; Bavaria, 2.4 million; S.W. German, 1.5 million; Hessian, 1.3 million; S. German, 1.2 million; Berlin, 825,000; Saarland, 250,000, and Bremen, 200,000.

Comments a Bonn official: "In view of the different sizes [of broadcasting corporations] it is not to be wondered that the smaller among them have for some time now endeavored to obtain subsidies from the larger ones. Such subsidies were, in fact, granted, but proved inadequate, and this is one of the reasons for a growing criticism of the present kind of collaboration among the nine groups." Not only, says this government spokesman, have the nine organizations failed to integrate radio and tv programming through "adequate coordination and exchange," but they have failed to upgrade programming for "listeners with high quality demands."

The dilemma is that the separate German states claim jurisdiction over both "organizational and cultural aspects of broadcasting." However, the Bonn source notes, there's a growing feeling that reorganization of broadcasting within the Republic will probably have to be achieved by the present federal parliament, in any case before the summer of 1961.

Frenchmen Hungry for Tv News, Dempsey of KPIX (TV) Reports

Television programming in France is more sophisticated than in America, but Frenchmen are being short-changed on news, William Dempsey, program manager of KPIX (TV) San Francisco, reports on his return from Europe. Mr. Dempsey led a three-man team from KPIX participating in a grass-roots cultural exchange with Radiodiffusion Television Francaise.

Mr. Dempsey observed that French television, "equivalent in scope to one of our major networks," is noncommercial, being supported solely by an $11 annual set tax. The tax is based on 800,000 licensed tv sets in France—"fewer than in a city the size of St. Louis." With the tax revenue, RTF telecasts major dramatic shows, panel programs, quizzes, news and sportscasts. Mr. Dempsey found that many French broadcasters believe subscription tv to be the answer to their financial problems. Reporters interviewing him in France were surprised to learn the failure of the Bartlesville wire tv experiment [PROGRAM SERVICES, May 26].

French tv programming tends toward classical drama, Mr. Dempsey reports, resulting in more sophisticated offerings than found on American channels. But a system whereby Frenchmen can dial a telephone number to hear a sponsored news capsule, plus the fact that crowds gather around tv sets in appliance stores showing newscasts, leads Mr. Dempsey to the conclusion that French radio-tv is not adequately supplying the public with news.

A French-dubbed episode of Adventures in Numbers and Space from Westinghouse's public service series featuring Bil Baird's marionettes was presented to the French and Belgian government-owned tv systems by the KPIX staffers.

Mr. Dempsey was accompanied on his tour by Al Baccari Jr., publicity-public relations director; and Pete Abenheim, children's talent director.

Total Radio Homes Almost Doubled In 12 Years—Canadian BAB Study

A study of Canadian radio rate and circulation trends on independent radio stations from 1946 to 1958 shows that the number of radio homes has increased in this period from 2,214,300 to 3,955,000. The number of radio stations has increased from 99 to 174. The average cost of one minute spot announcements on all stations has increased from $7.04 to $10.94.

The study, made by the Broadcast Advertising Bureau of the Canadian Assn. of Radio and Television Broadcasters, has dropped the comparison in rates for one hour (which increased from $60.88 in 1946 to $83.81 in 1957) as an average for all Canadian independent stations. The BAB study now starts with a quarter-hour average for all stations, which this year is $30.14.

Television-Radio Set Output Continues Below 1957—EIA

Production of tv and radio sets at factories continues to run below 1957 figures, according to Electronic Industries Assn.

Total tv production for seven months of 1958 amounted to 2,442,929 receivers compared to 3,082,799 a year ago. July tv output totaled 274,999 sets compared to 360,660 in the same 1957 month.

Of the tv sets produced this year, 232,931 contained uhf tuning circuits compared to 410,250 with uhf in the same seven months a year ago. July's tv output included 23,205 sets with uhf tuners.

Radio production totaled 5,582,834 in the first seven months of 1958 compared to 7,799,882 in the same period last year. Of the 1958 radios, 1,650,898 were auto models. July radio output totaled 621,541 sets of which 186,379 were auto models. Radio production in July 1957 totaled 612,588 sets of which 256,279 were auto models.

DuMont Cuts Picture Tube Line

Allen B. DuMont Labs., Clifton, N. J., has "temporarily" stopped production of tv picture tubes for the original equipment market, it has been announced by Board Chairman Allen B. DuMont. The production line, which can turn out 4,000 tubes daily, could be restored to operation within 30 days, he said. DuMont continues to supply about 600 picture tubes daily for the replacement market. Daily Physics Class Announced by NBC-TV

As part of an effort to improve science education in the country's high schools, NBC-TV will telecast a college course in basic and nuclear physics coast to coast, beginning Oct. 6 (Mon.-Fri., 6:30-7 a.m.), and continuing through June 5.

The course will be offered for credit by more than 300 colleges and universities and is designed primarily to upgrade the knowledge of current teachers of science in the high schools. The project is being jointly sponsored by NBC-TV, the American Assn. of Colleges for Teacher Education, the Ford Foundation and the Fund for the Advancement of Education.

Details of the project were made known at a news conference in New York last Tuesday (Sept. 16). No figures on the overall cost of the project were disclosed. It was revealed that NBC-TV will donate the time; the Ford Foundation and the Fund for the Advancement of Education will underwrite the production costs. Line costs will be defrayed from donations from corporations, including AT&T, International Business Machines Corp., Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co., and United States Steel Corp.

More than 50 NBC-TV stations already have cleared for the program, which is titled Continental Classroom, according to Edward Stanley, NBC director of public service. He estimated that approximately 100 stations will present the program. The telecasts will be taped in NBC's New York studios.

It was estimated that the program will provide college credits in physics to about 15,000 high school teachers. It is anticipated that, in addition to teachers in service, the course will be viewed by college students, high school pupils, engineers and others interested in increasing their knowledge of physics.

Dr. Harvey E. White, professor of physics at the U. of California, in Berkeley, will be the principal teacher. Other internationally-known scientists will participate.

Robert W. Sarnoff, board chairman of NBC, commented that the company "is enlisting the NBC Television Network to meet an emergency in American education, the kind of emergency on which our national security may ultimately hinge." He added:

"To tackle this job through network television on a continental basis is not just a good way to do it, or even an especially ingenious way. It is the only way."

Mr. Stanley is supervising the project. Dorothy Culbertson will be the producer; Robert Rippen, the associate producer and Martin D. Einhorn, the director.

Survival Series by NBC, ETRC

A 10-week tv series, Ten for Survival, which will examine the problem of survival in the nuclear age, will be produced by NBC-TV in association with the Educational Television & Radio Center, Ann Arbor, Mich., and carried on interconnected educational stations (Tuesday, 10:30-11 p.m.), starting Oct. 28.

The program will be telecast live to educational outlets over NBC-TV's regular network facilities, and carried on many of the network's affiliated stations on a delayed basis. The series is a continuation of the NBC-ETRC project first undertaken in 1957.

Two New Educational Outlets Aided by Commercial Brethren

Commercial television is lending a helping hand to two of its educational counterparts—WFPK-TV Louisville, Ky., and WJCT (TV) Jacksonville, Fla.—which began operations this month.

WFPK-TV broadcasts originate from the studios of WAVE-TV Louisville with the help of WAVE-TV production personnel.

WJCT, with a staff of three and only a transmitter and antenna to call its own, utilizes the equipment of WMBR-TV and WFGA-TV, both Jacksonville, even while those commercial stations are on the air. When WMBR-TV is on network or running a film, its studio is available for WJCT. WFGA-TV arranges to operate with only one film chain during the approximately two hours per day WJCT needs its other film equipment.

The Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors Thursday (Sept. 18) rejected the application of Homevision Inc. for a franchise to install a combination closed-circuit pay tv and community antenna system in the Antelope Valley district. The petition was vigorously opposed by representatives of the California Federation of Womens Clubs and the Citizens Committee Against Pay Tv. [PROGRAM SERVICES, Sept. 8]. The supervisors, voting down the petition four to one, indicated that they would be receptive to an application for a community antenna service alone, without the toll tv adjunct.

PERSONNEL RELATIONS

N. Y. IBEW REPORT BURNS STAFF

The report of an evaluation committee of Local 1212 of the International Brotherhood of Electric Workers paints a damning picture of the local's administrative staff, blaming it largely for the costly 11-day strike against CBS, and the local's "deteriorating relationship" with CBS, IBEW's international headquarters and with other unions in the broadcast field [PERSONNEL RELATIONS, Sept. 15].

The report, which was approved by the local's membership, places responsibility for the deteriorating relationship with CBS on the local's administrative staff. At one point the report asserted:

"Unremitting conflict with the local union administration has made all efforts toward understanding appear hopeless. Sincere efforts in this direction (by CBS) have been persistently frustrated or misconstrued by the local. Your committee feels that considerable further study is needed in this area."

The report claimed that so-called "strike issues" raised by the administration were largely non-existent. It insisted there was little substance to the administration's claim that videotape jurisdiction, overtime refusal, dual operations and the status of the laboratory technicians were valid issues. The report stated that "the sole valid issue was a demand for money . . . and this was never clearly expressed."

On the question of the strike vote, the administration also was assailed in the report. It claimed that the decision was made "on a questionable strike vote and before the membership was aware negotiations had broken down." On the course of the strike itself the report, point by point, accused the administration of "falling down" with respect to preparation, planning and strategy, public relations and morale, and execution of activities.

The report supported its contention that Local 1212's relationship with the international IBEW is "deteriorating," offering as evidence:

An atmosphere of distrust fostered by the local union. A whole series of I.O. [international] reps used as whipping boys through constant distortions, to suit momentary conveniences." The report lists four international representatives, assigned to work with Local 1212, but who, it was charged, could not work harmoniously with the administrative staff.

Regarding Local 1212's relationship with other unions, authors of the report could find "no other local union favorably disposed to Local 1212" and counted "Seven other local unions individually critical of Local 1212 in the conduct of its affairs."

The report noted that the evaluation committee sought the cooperation of the administration for the project but claimed that its requests for interviews and other information was ignored.

A spot check from a list of 50 unions holding contracts with CBS shows "their business relations with CBS to be either 'good' or the very best of their experience," the report declares.

The report singles out Charles Calame, business manager of Local 1212, for the bulk of its criticism. It was reported last week that various members of the local are considering filing charges with the international against the local administration but no such action was taken at the week's end.

AFM International Board Starts Hearing on Dual Union Charge

A five-man committee of the international executive board of the American Federation of Musicians is to start hearings tomorrow morning (Sept. 23) concerning approximately 100 members of AFM Local 47, Hollywood, charged with becoming members of Musicians Guild of America. Dual unionism, which is prohibited in the AFM constitution and bylaws, carries a penalty of expulsion from the union.

MGA is filing a complaint asking for an injunction to stop AFM from expelling these musicians and from, in any way, interfering with their employment, Cecil F. Read, MGA board chairman, said Thursday. "The basic issue," he said, "is whether AFM can enforce its dual union ban against a member who was forced to join the guild in order to work in motion pictures under a union contract which is valid according to the Taft-Hartley act. In other words, can one union deny employment opportunities in a field where it has exclusive contracts, as the AFM has in all fields of musical employment except motion pictures, to men who accept employment in another field, in this case motion pictures, under the aegis of another union which has jurisdiction there?"

Thursday (Sept. 18) saw the completion of the NLRB hearing in Los Angeles on the MGA petition for an election to determine bargaining agent for musicians in their employment by independent motion picture producers. AFM, which consented to the election at the major studios won by MGA [AT DEADLINE, July 14], is opposing an election in the independent picture field. Two associations, Society of Independent Motion Picture Producers and Independent Motion Picture Producers Assn., and two individual companies, Goldwyn and RKO, are the employers involved, although SIMPP, which is inactive, has attempted to withdraw.

Record of the hearing now goes to NLRB national headquarters in Washington, D. C. If the board rules that an election is in order, then answers must also be provided to such questions as: Should the election be nationwide or should it be restricted to Los Angeles County as was the election for the major studios? What criteria should be set up to determine which musicians shall be eligible to vote? What employers or employer-groups should be included?

SAG Spurned Merger—AFTRA

American Federation of Television & Radio Artists is releasing today (Sept. 22) the contents of a letter sent to its membership, apprising them the Screen Actors Guild

"has gone on record as being firmly opposed to merger with AFTRA in any form." Signed by Clayton (Bud) Collyer, AFTRA president, the letter said a letter from SAG rejected earlier AFTRA proposals but, in turn, suggested joint negotiation on tape only. SAG and AFTRA have been at loggerheads over videotape commercials. SAG has obtained jurisdiction over VTR at film studios, but AFTRA called on the NLRB several months ago to hold an election among performers so that they could select a single union to represent them in tape (AFTRA holds jurisdiction at networks and stations). A hearing on AFTRA's petition is scheduled before the NLRB in New York Sept. 30.

AFM Allocates $6.2 Million For Free Trust Fund Concerts

An allocation of $6,225,000 for employment of musicians in non-profit performances during the fiscal year ending July 1, 1959, has been made by the American Federation of Musicians' music performance funds. Sources and disbursement of the monies are contained in a report just issued by Samuel R. Rosenbaum, trustee of the fund.

Funds were established in the mid-forties, with makers of recordings contributing to the AFM's Recording and Transcription Fund to compensate for loss of live musician employment that resulted from commercial use of phonograph records. In 1950 and subsequent years, similar agreements were reached covering use of television film, including tv jingles and commercials.

All funds received are re-used to provide live musical services throughout the U. S., its possessions and Canada. This is not restricted to AFM musicians.

As of last June 30, there were 588 television signatories to the tv trust fund agreements. Record and electrical transcription makers totalled 3,214.

For the six month period prior to June 30, recording signatories paid $1,987,085.93 to the funds. Tv signatories paid $507,733.26, bringing the combined total to $2,494,819.19.

The allocation of $6,225,000 for the current fiscal year compares with $4,850,000 set aside for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1958, and $3,900,000 for the year ended June 30, 1957.

Keel Put Up for SAG Presidency

Howard Keel, first vice president of Screen Actors Guild, has been nominated for the SAG presidency by the official nominating committee, to succeed Leon Ames who has declined to run for another term as president. Other official candidates are: for first vice president, Macdonald Carey; second vice president, James Lydon; third vice president, Rosemary DeCamp; recording secretary, Robert Keith; treasurer, George Chandler. Miss DeCamp, Mr. Keith and Mr. Chandler now hold the posts for which they are nominated for another term. Election must be held before the SAG annual meeting, some time in November, according to the Guild's bylaws.

KFGO PREPARES SEC. 315 DEFENSE

KFGO Fargo, N. D., is preparing its answer to a political libel suit asking $2.4 million damages on four counts, expected to be filed within two weeks. The station is the second Fargo outlet to be sued by the North Dakota Educational & Farmers Union as a result of statements broadcast in two different campaigns by candidate A. C. Townley.

The Farmers Union suit against KFGO was filed Aug. 29 in the federal court at Bismarck, N. D. It alleges candidate Townley, in political broadcasts over KFGO in April and June, made libelous statements and asks $600,000 in each instance. KFGO asked for and has been given an extension of time in which to file a reply.

Charles Burke, KFGO general manager, said last week that the station did not give Mr. Townley time until he had demanded it under Sec. 315 of the Communications Act. This section requires broadcasters to give all candidates for the same office equal opportunity to use their stations and prohibits broadcasters from censoring a candidate's speech.

WDAY-TV Fargo was sued by the Farmers Union following alleged libelous statements made over the station in the 1956 campaign by Mr. Townley. The North Dakota Supreme Court last April ruled that the station is not liable for statements made over its facilities by the candidate [GOVERNMENT, April 7]. Last month, the union asked the U.S. Supreme Court to review this decision [GOVERNMENT, Aug. 11].

FCC, Justice Want to Know

The FCC and Justice Dept. also have asked the high court to grant a review because "a definitive determination by this court of the meaning and significance of Sec. 315 of the Communications Act . . . insofar as it relates to the broadcast of possibly defamatory material by legally qualified candidates for public office will be of great value. . . ."

The Justice request for a review continued: "This case squarely presents the questions of whether the statutory prohibition against censorship of uses of radio and television broadcast facilities by legally qualified candidates extends to libelous and slanderous language or language which might reasonably be thought to be defamatory and, if so, whether the licensee is thereby rendered immune from liability under applicable state law. Resolution by this court of these questions would dispel the uncertainties which have existed as the result of different interpretations by various state and lower federal courts."

If licensee control over a candidate's statements is not permitted, the pleading stated, "there undoubtedly will be cases such as the instant one in which third parties as well as opposing candidates will suffer from the effects of libelous or slanderous remarks by candidates. . . ."

The union's suit against WDAY-TV went through state courts, while the suit against KFGO was filed in federal court. In both the union claimed that it had been libeled as a third party. The NAB took part in the proceedings before the North Dakota Supreme Court as a friend of the court [TRADE ASSNS., Oct. 7, 1957].

North Dakota has a state law giving stations immunity from libelous or defamatory statements by other than station personnel.

Station Image, Vitality Measured in New Study

John Blair & Co. last week described what it referred to as a new approach to radio station research—exploring people's attitudes toward stations.

A practical application of the approach has been made in Dallas, where Blair has a client station, Gordon McLendon's KLIF.

To obtain a knowledge of the "station image" in people's minds, researchers asked this question: "Here is a list of radio stations and here is another list of people from all walks of life. Would you please match the type of person you think is most likely to listen to each of these stations?" The station list contained the calls of all major Dallas radio stations. The list of "people from all walks of life" contained these descriptions: high school and college students, young housewives, older women, business executives, male workers, female workers.

To obtain a measurement of "station vitality" researchers asked this question: "Here is a list of descriptive terms. Which best fits the following stations?" The terms were: "modern," "lively," "interesting" and "old-fashioned."

To obtain a measurement of the "believability" of stations, the researchers asked: "If you heard conflicting accounts of the same news story on different stations, which of the stations would you believe?"

The Dallas survey was conducted by the Eugene Gilbert research organization which employed college professors and postgraduate college students to do the field work.

A total of 498 personal interviews was completed. Results were tabulated by sex and age groups. The results, as released last week, showed KLIF outscoring other stations in appeal to virtually all age groups.

Blair officials saw the results as a refutation of charges that "modern radio" stations appeal primarily to the teen-age audience.

"News can break fast, and KTLA is geared to speed. We've started telecasting from the scene of an event in as little as five minutes from the time our mobile unit reached the spot.

"The microwave antenna of our mobile units takes only 15 seconds to elevate. KTLA's picture goes on the air in minutes after we brake to a stop. We couldn't do a fast, sure TV news job like that—many times a day, every day—without reliable camera tubes.

"Besides the fact we can count on them, G-E camera tubes are designed to handle changeable and difficult light conditions. We like the assurance they give us that our viewers are seeing clear pictures with good detail and contrast.

resentation firm, explained that the study was undertaken to document the company's previously-reached deductions that "extremely successful radio stations must have created for themselves a well-defined personality, or an image that had some meaning for the audience.

"It also seemed reasonable to us," said Mr. Blair, "that a radio station which did create an image would have virtually universal appeal."

Arthur McCoy, head of the Blair radio company, said research of the Dallas type should prove valuable to media buyers. He recommended that stations make such studies every year.

Ward Dorrell, Blair vice president and research director, reported that the Blair company would encourage all its stations to go into qualitative studies.

WMGM Quiz Complaint Dropped

New York State Supreme Court Judge James C. Crane granted a WMGM New York motion to strike the complaint of Brooklyn quiz contestants seeking $1,000 special damages for "alleged physical and emotional despair and frustration" in a dispute with WMGM over the winner, WMGM has confirmed. Judge Crane, however, granted plaintiffs Mr. & Mrs. Donald Reid permission to inspect postcard returns to WMGM Name It & Claim It contest. The Reids contend they are the winner of the $1,300 prize instead of announced "woman in Jersey" [AT DEADLINE, Sept. 1]. WMGM explained it did not tell the Reids it had not received their entry, rather "to the best of our knowledge" it did not receive the entry. WMGM also corrected earlier reports it had made $600 compromise with the Reids last year in another contest dispute. WMGM said the Reids and the announced winner at that time made compromise between themselves to split prize money of $1,300.

Tv Classes Scheduled to Start On Three Little Rock Stations

Classes for Little Rock, Ark., high school students, whose schools were closed by Gov. Orval E. Faubus, are expected to begin today (Monday) on the three Little Rock commercial television stations—KARK-TV, KATV (TV) and KTHV (TV).

As was planned last week in meetings between the stations and the Little Rock School Board, each station is assigned to handle the instruction of one of the three senior high school grades. Regular classroom teachers or department heads will conduct daily a total of two hours of classes from their assigned station studios. The time is divided into four 30-minute class periods. Only the basic subjects, such as English, history, mathematics and science (minus laboratory instruction), will be offered.

The plan was outlined by Douglas Romine, vice president and general manager of KARK-TV, who told BROADCASTING, "The students are getting very restless and are afraid of getting too far behind in their

VOICE FOR THE SILENT

Historic Liberty Bell received a voice for the first time in 123 years as CBS-TV did a special program from Independence Hall marking the turnover of WCAU-TV Philadelphia ownership to CBS.

A three minute narration by Edward R. Murrow, telling the meaning and the role of the bell, was presented to the National Park Service and the City of Philadelphia for permanent installation near the historic site.

The bell has not been rung since it cracked in 1835. Now all who visit the symbol of freedom may hear the Murrow narration by merely pushing a button which activates the recording.

work. Especially concerned are those who planned to graduate this school year. The televised classes will help the students to catch up when the schools reopen." The tv classes are expected to continue at least until Sept. 27 when a city election will determine the basis for opening the schools.

Station directors of the emergency program, working directly with the school board and School Superintendent Virgil Blossom, are Fred Schmutz for KARK-TV, Joe Myers of KATV and Jack Bomar at KHTV.

DATELINES Newsworthy News Coverage by Radio and Tv

NEWARK—Special news coverage of the Jersey Central commuter train accident last Monday (Sept. 15), which took estimated 40 lives, was provided by WNTA Newark to more than 40 radio stations throughout the country. Raymond E. Nelson, president and general manager of the station, reported that minutes after the disaster became known, telephone requests for on-the-scene coverage came from independent stations, ranging from Massachusetts to California and from Canada to Texas. WNTA provided reports up to two minutes by beep phones several times a day to many of the stations, Mr. Nelson said.

PHILADELPHIA—Two widely separated news stories last Monday (Sept. 15) received film coverage by WFIL-TV Philadelphia. Newsreel cameraman Harry Krause was flown 90 miles to film the crash of the New Jersey Central train into Newark Bay after the first report came on the news wire about 10 a.m. His films of the rescue work were flown back to WFIL-TV where Gunnar Back interrupted the local portion of Dick Clark's American Bandstand at 3:40 p.m. to show the films. At approximately the same time, films made that morning by cameraman Harold Hodgeman, 1,600 miles away in Little Rock, Ark., arrived for use on the RCA Television Newsreel at 7 and 10:30 p.m. These films included interviews by WFIL-TV newscaster Allen Stone with officials involved in school integration proceedings.

MIAMI—Planning to get the fastest possible county results of the Sept. 9 primary elections in Florida, WTVJ (TV) Miami arranged with the Miami Junior Chamber of Commerce to station one Jaycee at each of the county's 145 precincts to telephone precinct totals to the WTVJ studios. The figures were put into the station's IBM machines, and totals were announced immediately on the air. Because of the fast reporting, a half-hour run-down planned for 10 p.m. instead was started at 9:30 p.m.

PITTSBURGH—Detectives working on the case of accused wife killer Chester Mauchline received unexpected assistance from news director Bill Burns, KDKA-TV Pittsburgh. Mr. Burns obtained permission to interview the accused man in his county jail cell where the previously reticent man divulged and explained murder details from beginning to end, and further, asked Mr. Burns to accompany him to the murder scene to take pictures. Following the interview telecast. Mauchline, who watched the newscast, cooperated with police and approved the use of the newsfilm as evidence for the prosecution.

KNXT (TV) Opposes Death Penalty In Its First, Lauded Editorial

The response to the first editorial broadcast of KNXT (TV) Los Angeles gives at least a partial answer to the controversial question of whether editorializing is a proper function of a tv station. Only 25% of the more than 500 U.S. tv stations now broadcast editorials, a BROADCASTING survey revealed [TRADE ASSNS. Sept. 15].

An editorial in the Los Angeles Times, normally a severe critic of electronic journalism, found the program to be "an achievement of which any journalist could be proud." In a letter to Bill Stout, the program's narrator, Los Angeles Times Chief Editorial Writer Irving Ramsdell called it "the most impressive performance in electronic journalism I have ever seen."

Entitled "Thou Shalt Not Kill" the broadcast took place on Sept. 10 (10:30-11 p.m.). Written by Irwin Rosten and narrated by KNXT newsman Bill Stout, the special documentary examined capital punishment and concluded that capital punishment should be abolished in California.

By phone and by mail the KNXT audience has responded in the hundreds, and the verdict was overwhelmingly in favor of the broadcast. Among those who expressed approval: Norman Corwin, writer of radio documentaries 15-20 years ago; Robert Guthrie, director of delinquency control at the U. of Southern Calif., and Byron M. Light, associate minister of the First Congregational Church of Riverside, Calif.

WIP Releases 'Search for Peace' As Public Service to Stations

WIP Philadelphia, which has been programming since January a public service series entitled Search for Peace, has announced the availability of 30 programs in the series for use by other radio stations.

The objective of the programming service, according to Benedict Gimbel Jr., president and general manager of WIP, is to start a freer interchange of programs between stations. "There are many great programs being created on a local level by outstanding radio stations. These programs must not be confined to the coverage limits of the stations producing them," Mr. Gimbel said.

Search for Peace is a WIP project to further interest in world peace, with a view toward seeking possible solutions. The series has included magazine articles, such as Look magazine's series, "Three Roads to Peace". WIP invited leading thinkers to contribute to its series, as well as accepting articles and suggestions from listeners. Speakers have included Arnold Toynbee, Rev. Martin Niemoeller, George Fielding Eliot, Pearl Buck and Eugene Lyons. The series has aired the audio portion of Marian Anderson's Asian tour which was shown on Edward R. Murrow's See It Now.

To aid distribution of the programs to other stations WIP received the support of the Junior League of Philadelphia, which has written other Junior Leagues in the U. S. to suggest to their local radio stations that they carry the WIP series. Promotion and publicity kits, and program run-down sheets are sent to each league chapter and to stations requesting information. A new series will be available in the spring, WIP reports.

WIP has received inquiries from Voice of America, WHEL Chicago, WVOB Liberty, N. Y., WRTI Philadelphia and a Melbourne, Australia, independent station inquiring in behalf of 110 stations in that country.

To celebrate its change in ownership WHOO Orlando, Fla., attracted listeners' attention by playing Sheb Wooley's "Monkey Jive" record for 24 hours. Listeners were lured by girls who distributed free orchids in downtown Orlando. The station's changes were heralded through newspaper ads, billboards, taxi placards and airplane balloon drops. More than $4,000 in cash prizes was awarded during WHOO's celebration week.

Entitled "The Valley of the Shadow," the documentary was filmed on location in Jefferson County, Georgia, by the WSPA-TV news staff. Scenes included views of the bush under which the murderer left his torn levis, the roads he traveled with his companion before and after the crime and the river where the weapon was thrown. The film featured an interview with the confessed slayer, Charles (Rocky) Rothschild. What do the people think ABOUT THE RAILROADS?

Editorial comment in the nation's press serves a dual purpose. It reflects public interest and it stimulates public thinking. On this basis, it can be said Americans are taking a healthy interest in the welfare of the railroads — still the most efficient, economical and dependable form of transportation. From March to June, 1958, 4,537 newspaper editorials discussed various phases of the railroad situation. Here is what they said:

Are railroads overregulated? Are today's regulations outmoded?

Of 1,448 editorials on this subject, 1,434, or 99% — said, "Yes!"
14 editorials, or 1%, said, "No."

Does subsidized competition place an unfair burden on the railroads?

Of 522 editorials on this subject, 509, or 98% — said, "Yes!"
13 editorials, or 2%, said, "No."

Are the railroads unfairly taxed?

3 editorials said, "No." 2 editorials said, "Don't know."

Should the railroads be free to dispense with deficit operations?

Of 1,301 editorials on this subject, 1,151, or 89% — said, "Yes!"

KDKA-AM-TV Race at County Fair

As a wrap-up stunt for their summer promotion campaigns, KDKA-AM-TV Pittsburgh featured their personalities in a "race between Texas and Alaska" before the grandstand crowds at the Allegheny County Fair on Labor Day.

Dressed in the legendary costumes of the Old West, Ed Schaughency and Jim Williams, KDKA newscaster and disc jockey, respectively, represented Texas in a pony-drawn cart. The Alaskan team included Hank Stohl and Carl Ide of KDKA-TV in a sled-with-wheels, pulled by six Alaskan huskies. Before reaching the starting line the rivalry was marked with a "ripe tomato and pie-throwing fight. The Alaskans then pulled the KDKA-TV team off to victory.

KOLN-TV Hosts N. Y. Timebuyers

Some 400 Madison Ave. timebuyers lunched in New York Sept. 12 as guests of KOLN-TV Lincoln, Neb. They were greeted at the door by appropriately-garbed models who handed them cards reading "Don't be half-covered, call Judson 6-5536." Those who did call were greeted by KOLN-TV's representative, Avery-Knodel, with the latest basic information on the "best buy of Lincolnland." At the lunch presentation, station vice president-general manager A. James Ebel and sales manager Les Rau showed kinescope clips of KOLN-TV personalities in selling episodes.

HOOZY SAPPERTICKER—FUN SYMBOL

Hooty Sapperticker was born at KFWB Los Angeles in the imagination of d.j. Al Jarvis. Hooty's fame skyrocketed under the care and guidance of the KFWB disc jockeys. The legend of Hooty Sapperticker grew through various station promotions, and currently, he is encouraging a get-out-the-vote campaign by saying "It's Fun to Vote." The name of Hooty Sapperticker became a real person to millions of Southern Californians when Mr. Jarvis suggested during his Make-Believe Ballroom show that everyone write Hooty's name in the lower right hand corner of any writing surface in California to honor Hooty as founder of "No Special Day." Mr. Jarvis then designated the following Monday as "No-Special Day." Many businesses and schools since then have been celebrating such a day each month. Hooty became immortalized in song and in the phrase "Howdy, Hooty, Cutie."

Hooty became interested in politics through the urging of Bob Purcell, president and general manager of KFWB.

Hooty became disturbed that when it came time to vote many people would stay away from the polls. KFWB decided to render an all out effort to get out the vote in the most literal sense through the element of fun. Hooty became the symbol for that element.

To fulfill his new position on the political horizon, Hooty filed as a candidate for the office of governor and senator. He selected Barbara Wilson, 21-year-old starlet to represent KFWB as "Miss It's Fun to Vote." Hooty has 18-year-old twins, Barbara and Beatrice Blatchford, to assist his campaign. Hooty, Miss Wilson and the twins will make personal appearances in Southern California to stimulate voting. KFWB plans special contests, parades and recently featured the promotion in the station's booth at the Los Angeles County Fair.

Hooty's campaign has picked up speed through the distribution of "Howdy-Hooty-Vote" lapel pins and Howdy Hooty bumper strips, which will be used in a KFWB cash bonus contest. A number of executives in the radio-tv industry have been appointed to Hooty's cabinet. Sol Taishoff, editor and publisher of BROADCASTING, received a certificate appointing him as "Lieutenant Governor of Occupied Los Angeles and is hereby designated a member of Cabinet of Hooty Sapperticker dedicated to the promulgation of the platform 'It's Fun to Vote.'"

WORD Launches Promotion Drive

WORD Spartanburg, S. C., launched a station promotion campaign before Labor Day with a mystery "Walking Man" contest. The person who correctly addressed the mystery man with the phrase—"Have you heard the 910 WORD?"—was awarded $100.

During the Labor Day weekend, WORD aired remote broadcasts from a Sears, Roebuck & Co. parking lot, with various sponsors. An automobile dealer credited the broadcasts for the sale of five new cars and seven used cars. In cooperation with the Royal Crown Bottling Co., WORD served more than 10,000 soft drinks from the station's booth on the parking lot.

Another segment of WORD's campaign included three models, wearing swimsuits and sandwich signs which read—"I have nothing on but the 910 WORD." In a beauty contest in which more than 7,000 persons cast votes with numbered tickets, lucky numbers holders were awarded record albums or transistor radios. As a continuing promotion WORD has distributed in the city more than $5,000 in new one-dollar bills, with consecutive serial numbers. "Lucky numbers" are aired twice each hour. TELLING THE MISSILE WHERE TO GO ... and how to get there!

The button is pushed. The missile rises from the launching pad—slowly—then roars into space.

But the problem has just begun! Now the "brain" inside the missile takes over. This is the crucial part of missile warfare.

The target must be found—or met head-on—or overtaken. The missile must be steered. It must change course, double back if necessary. It must "think" its way to the enemy.

What ITT is doing about it

Since 1949, top scientists in ITT laboratories have been deeply engaged in missile guidance and control. They are deeply engaged now—playing a big role in national defense—working with the Navy, the Air Force, the Army, universities and associated laboratories, and other manufacturers.

They developed the complete air-borne guidance for TALOS, the Navy's deadly "flying fish" launched from guided-missile cruisers. They developed the complete guidance for the Army's LACROSSE, including ground, air, tracking, and computing equipment. They helped with RASCAL, an Air Force air-to-surface missile. They developed the launching and firing controls and test equipment for the Air Force's BOMARC missile. They are designing and building communication networks for the ATLAS intercontinental ballistic missile.

Experience—where it counts

ITT is especially qualified for missile guidance development—because of long experience and special skills in air navigation and radar.

Other skills count heavily too—in infrared detection and homing, direction finders, inertial systems, computers, semi-conductors. ITT is also rich in these skills, and has the research laboratories and expanding manufacturing plants to carry the work forward.

Depend upon it—when the missile is launched, it will know where to go ... and how to get there.

Mr. Yancey conducted broadcasts from the pool bottom, and KNUZ newscasters kept listeners advised of his endurance progress. A compressor hose attached to the bubble replenished Mr. Yancey's air supply. He emerged at 12:02 a.m. Sept. 2, and checked into a hospital for rest and a physical check-up.

In all satellite counties covered . . .
WFBM-TV sells to widest audience potential!

First by a good margin, WFBM-TV dominates all other stations in Mid-Indiana both in total coverage and market penetration — map shows county percentages measured by Nielsen Coverage Study No. 3, Spring 1958.

where else . . .

- will you find satellite markets that are 33% richer and 50% bigger than the metropolitan trading zone itself?
- does a central market exert such an economic pull on so many specific areas that are retail trading centers in their own right?
- do you find such a widespread marketing area covered from one central point . . . and by WFBM-TV!
- can you buy just one station with no overlapping penetration by basic affiliates of the same network?

only here — where WFBM-TV is first in Mid-Indiana — can you buy more honest market penetration, more consumer influence, for fewer dollars expended than anywhere else. Now it will pay you to take another longer, better look! We are proud of our current ARB.

The Nation's 13th Television Market

. . . with the only basic NBC coverage of 760,000 TV set owning families.

Indianapolis itself — Major retail area for 18 richer-than-average counties. 1,000,000 population — 350,600 families with 90% television ownership!

11 Satellites — Each a recognized marketing area — and well within WFBM-TV's basic area of influence. Includes Marion • Anderson • Muncie • Bloomington • Vincennes • Terre Haute • Danville, Illinois • Lafayette • Peru • Logansport • Kokomo.

Represented Nationally by the KATZ Agency

from RICHARD LOCKMAN, vice president-general manager, Emil Mogul Co., New York

Why go for broke on television shows when tape trial runs can cut the risk?

Will the yawn of today spawn the deep sleep of tomorrow for the tv viewer?

Put another way, will today's play-it-safe tv programming drive tomorrow's viewers away from their sets in ever-increasing numbers?

If these queries reflect alarm, they're so intended. I am alarmed. As a principal in an agency whose clients spend millions yearly in what has been a superbly powerful selling medium, I am deeply concerned lest run-away audiences convert tv into a second-stringer for advertisers.

There's undoubtedly more than one reason why freshness and originality are so rare in tv programming these days, but I think the most decisive one is the unwillingness of broadcasters to take chances. They're playing it safe, sticking to what they think are sure-fire formulas. But in the process of betting on sure things, aren't they taking the biggest gamble of all—the risk that, in insuring today's program sponsorship, they'll lose tomorrow's?

In raising this question, I am not unmindful of the conservatism forced upon the broadcasting industry by operational economics. It doesn't take much unsold choice time to put a network in a financial hole. And the tv networks can point to a whole series of ventures into new and original programming which became costly flops.

But what puzzles me is why tv broadcasters, year after year, keep going all out with untested shows—that is, untested as far as actual viewing conditions are concerned. Why don't they emulate other industries in the kind of pre-testing that drastically cuts down on the financial gamble?

What I have in mind is the type of full-scale testing of new products in selected markets which many industries, such as toilet goods, conduct all the time.

Just as tv has to maintain a continuous flow of interesting programs, the drug, cosmetics and toilet goods field has to keep coming up with new products, new styles, new colors and new merchandising ideas. You get some idea of the importance of this facet of the business when you realize that, according to a recent analysis, 40% of today's toiletry sales in drug stores are made up of products that weren't on the market five years ago.

You can be sure that toilet goods makers are going to go after the new markets with their historic zeal. But you can also be sure, on the basis of past performance, that they won't engage in a spree of reckless plunging.

What does the successful toiletry manufacturer do, in planning a new product, to cut down the risks? First, of course, there's research to determine if there's a potential market for it and, if there is, its possible size. Second, there's laboratory research—and plenty of it—to make sure the product is right. If a similar product is already on the market, the aim is to avoid making an outright copy and to find a new use, a new method of application, a significant differential. Then come packaging and endless consumer tests to develop the final product and the supporting advertising program.

Does the manufacturer then "shoot the works" and launch his product across the country—as the networks do with a new program? Far from it!

Before a manufacturer starts marketing a new product nationally it is sent into selected markets for thorough-going tests under actual marketing conditions. Every factor that could contribute to the product's success or failure is studied carefully—the advertising copy, media, displays, etc.

Two good examples are new Revlon products we've been working on for almost three years—Top Brass hair dressing for men and Hi and Dri roll-on deodorant. Both were launched nationally this summer with multi-million dollar advertising campaigns.

But national marketing, in each case, was preceded by carefully controlled tests in selected cities under actual selling conditions. These tests enabled Revlon to gauge the national market potential, to guide them in finalizing product features and packaging, distribution, promotions and advertising. Nothing was left to hunches, to "ivory tower" planning. Every element had to stand up in the field. As a result, both products are well on their way to being top Revlon successes.

There may be obstacles that I don't know about, but from where I sit I can see no valid reason why program tryouts can't be made regularly.

Good reasons for not subjecting new programs to advance, full-scale tests may have existed in the past. As live shows they were expensive. On film they were unsatisfactory.

But the advent of videotape, I believe, has removed these major hurdles. With videotape, networks can put on live-quality programs in a representative group of test cities—telecast on pre-empted choice time. The viewing public wouldn't even be aware that a test was going on. Just as toiletry makers do with new products, the programs could be examined from every angle under real broadcasting conditions. "Bugs" could be removed, improvements made, formats changed—or the whole program scrapped. Imagine how valuable such testing would have been for ESP!

With videotape, trial runs have become economically feasible, too. No need to send costly casts and producing teams on the road. Tape new shows in New York or Hollywood—possibly during auditions—and do three or four at a time for further economy so that the test can "run" a few successive weeks.

Tryouts in test cities may be no programming panacea for tv. But aren't they worth considering? If trial runs can work for toiletry makers, why not for tv broadcasters?

Richard Lockman, b. Jan. 21, 1921, Brooklyn. B.A., New York U., 1945. First job with Ferry-Hanly Adv. Agency in 1940 as office boy-production assistant. From 1945-50 was multiple brand advertising manager of Mennen Co., where he developed baby-in-rose advertising theme for Baby Magic product and pioneered men's deodorant field. Served next five years with Bourjois and Barbara Gould affiliates of Chanel Inc., becoming v.p. Joined Emil Mogul Co. as v.p. in April 1955, becoming a principal stockholder in December that year. Named agency general manager last January but also retains supervision of Revlon account.

Not for Dollars Alone

THE multi-million-dollar sales and mergers in basic branches of the radio-tv business during the last few weeks call attention to the vitality and also the room for growth that the broadcast media possess. The same deals also raise a point that should not be overlooked.

Jack Wrather's new Independent Television Corp. buys the properties of Television Programs of America for $11.35 million (see story this issue). An elaborate industrial complex pays more than $2 million for the Mutual network, which a year ago brought one-fourth that amount [LEAD STORY, Sept. 15]. Merger of National Telefilm Assoc., itself a wide-ranging operation, with National Theatres Inc. awaits approval by the stockholders (and also, apparently, by certain government agencies).

Clearly, new faces are appearing on the broadcast scene and old hands are taking firmer grips on bigger chunks. This can be all to the good.

Mutual's new management says it will upgrade programming and also get into radio and tv station ownership—plus film network operation—on a full-scale basis. The new ITC acquires valuable properties to sell while it proceeds with its ambitious program of creating new series for television. Both NTA and NTI should be strengthened by their merger. So far, great.

It is obvious that broadcasting is getting to be a big business which more and more is attracting speculative investors. There is nothing wrong in this; to the contrary, broadcasting would be weak indeed if investors considered it unworthy of their interest.

But broadcasting is more than a way of making money. It is an art, not a factory. It is an instrument to inform as well as entertain the people, to broaden their knowledge and their interests as well as to amuse them. It must be operated creatively as well as realistically, and it should take a position of leadership among those whom it serves.

Over the years the investors who have come into broadcasting have, for the most part, recognized this responsibility and respected it. They have made important contributions to the art. Investors coming now and in the future must act with equal sincerity if broadcasting is to continue to prosper. It is in their own self-interest to do so, for it's a proven fact that broadcasting will not for long make money—if its operators make money their sole goal.

Non-Partisan Politics

POLITICS isn't our dish of tea, particularly the partisan kind. But politics is in the air, what with the Maine upsets and the upcoming bi-elections that will see all of the House and one-third of the Senate up for grabs, as the pundits say.

Politically, we're independent. It doesn't matter to us whether a candidate rides the GOP elephant or the Democratic donkey. We're interested in where he stands on this business of broadcasting, and whether his approach to things radio and television is healthy or simply headline-hunting.

So here goes:

We'd like to see Sen. Charles Potter of Michigan returned to the world's greatest deliberative body. We know where he stands, and that's for good broadcasting. We would like to see Arizona's governor and former Senator Ernest McFarland (he for whom the McFarland letters are named) returned to the Senate after a six-year lapse.

On the House side, we'll miss Reps. Wolverton of New Jersey and O'Hara of Minnesota, who have decided not to run. They're both members of the Legislative Oversight Committee. The defeat of Rep. Hale in the Maine elections last week (he's also an Oversight Committee member) isn't a loss we particularly mourn.

There are one or two other members of the Oversight Committee who, in our book, might just as well not return. As a matter of fact, we would relish seeing the Oversight Committee drop out of sight next Congress. It hasn't yet even hit close to the target we understood it was supposed to be shooting at.

We could go on, but, as we started to say, we don't like partisan politics anyway. And maybe that's the reason we neglected to identify the party affiliations of any of those legislators previously mentioned.

“They had a sore loser last night.”

Crash Program for Color?

THE newspaper boys are whooping it up for ROP (run-of-paper) color. The slick paper magazines are running handsome color schedules. Both are selling color, despite the vastly increased costs to the advertiser over black-and-white.

This is the answer of the print media to the inroads of black-and-white television. Magazines have had color for years, but newspaper color is a comparatively recent innovation. Only in the past few years have newspapers stepped up their color activity—generated largely by the competition of television.

Tv has had color, too, for a number of years. The quality is infinitely superior to that of newspaper color. But tv color is hardly off the ground. Only a few hundred thousand sets are in use, and only one network—NBC—today is aggressively promoting color.

Advertisers are interested in tv color. It is not only better, but cheaper than print media color. But advertisers also must have circulation. Tv circulation is reflected in the number of sets in use. Except for RCA, NBC's parent, there has been no concerted drive for color set sales.

It's a pity to see the color parade passing tv. More than half of the tv stations on the air (some 330) are equipped to carry network color. Some 100 are equipped for local color film or slides. And about half that number are equipped for local live color.

Color tv is not solely a station problem. It is perhaps primarily a question of what the manufacturers will do. Set manufacturers, after a rough business siege, are doing better. We think they could do lots better if they got behind color. This would stimulate more network color programming. And that, in turn, would develop more set sales. The circulation thus engendered would attract more advertisers. Both tv manufacturers and broadcasters should prosper.

Mass production of color sets in a competitive market most certainly would bring improvements in design and performance and reductions in prices. Servicing bugs would be reduced. That was the pattern in black and white only a decade ago. Inevitably it will be the pattern in color.

Given the circulation, color tv should move swiftly. If newspaper color can increase readership seven or eight times, as is claimed, what will faithfully-reproduced full color do for the tv advertiser? Think of the potential, not only through network color, but in national spot and in local. Retail and department stores would have working for them an unsurpassed merchandising and sales tool—the full color action commercial.

What is needed is a crash program for color tv. Newspaper color, lackluster and lifeless as it is, couldn't get going until the manufacturers produced color presses. Color tv can't get off the ground until the manufacturers produce and merchandise sets to pick up the miraculous color programs that will be available in increasing abundance—in tempo with increased “circulation”.
