THE YEAR IN REVIEW

TELEVISION, CABLE, VIDEO AND NEW TECHNOLOGIES

The year 1997 saw the introduction and adaptation of a voluntary ratings system for television programs. The plan, although not without flaws and beset by almost immediate criticism, was for the most part accepted by programmers.

In a surprise move in early May, FCC commissioner Reed Hundt announced his resignation as chairman, ending his three and a half year tenure. In his period as chairman of the FCC, Hundt oversaw some of the most dramatic changes in the history of the U.S. communications industry.

The stage for the introduction of High Definition Television (HDTV) and digital television (DTV) has been set, with commercial broadcasts expected to commence in 1998. Although much of the detailed planning (and difficult compromising between interested parties) has yet to take place, the FCC is pushing for a 1998 debut in major markets.

The cable industry faced increased competition from new satellite and direct broadcast services, but remained the vehicle of choice for the majority of Americans.

The video industry found itself in the doldrums after a decade of unparalleled growth, with industry leader Blockbuster Video's financial difficulties affecting parent Viacom's status.

Deaths of notable individuals in the television industry included CBS newsmen Charles Kuralt, former NBC president Brandon Tartikoff and comedian Red Skelton.

The introduction of new technologies and proliferation of options on the consumer level over the past three decades has caused a shift in the way the industry perceives itself and delivers advertising and product. In recent years, the growth of cable and cable-only programming services and "superstations", the debut of three new broadcast networks, direct satellite broadcasting, and the astounding success of the video cassette have diluted the market for providers while expanding consumer horizons. Looking toward the future, further development of the Internet and the rapid introduction of brand new technologies (most notably HDTV, DTV, video games and the Digital Videodisc) will force issues that should be addressed before the industry enters the 21st century.

Which will broadcasters favor, HDTV or multi-band standard definition TV (SDTV)? If multiband digital broadcasts are chosen, will broadcasts remain free, or will premiums be charged for more popular programming? Will traditional broadcasters be forced into the role of content providers, with retransmission handled by a plethora of signal delivery options? Will the broadcast industry be able to climb the steep financial and technical upgrade path that the new digital television standards require? What kind of regulation will the government attempt to impose? And, above all, if the new digital television infrastructure is built, will consumers willingly replace their old analog sets with more expensive digital sets—not to mention their VCRs, home theatre systems, laserdisc players and more?

TELEVISION RATINGS SYSTEM

In late December of 1996, Jack Valenti and a broadcast task force announced the creation of a voluntary ratings system for television programming. This ratings plan closely parallels the MPAA's CARA ratings for the movie industry. The ratings are as follows:

TV-Y—Suitable for children of all ages.

TV-Y7—Suitable for children over age 7.

General Audience—Mainly suitable for all ages.

TV-PG—May contain some material unsuitable for young children.

TV-14—May contain material unsuitable for children under 14.

TV-M—Specifically designed for adults and unsuitable for children under 17.

News programming was exempted from any rating.

The first appearance of the ratings was in the form of "bugs"—small semi-transparent video icons similar to the station and network identification logos placed in the corner of screens during programming. In most cases, the rating was only shown at the beginning of programs or after station breaks. Not all distributors rated their programming, the most notable examples being PBS and BET.

Legislators immediately attacked the lack of provisions for ratings based on content. In late February, the Senate Commerce Committee under the leadership of Chairman John McCain, began hearings regarding the alleged inadequacy of the new system. By June the broadcasting industry seemed resigned to accepting these additional ratings (with the exception of NBC) in spite of the fact that such ratings were to be delayed until two years after V-chip equipped television sets are available. The National Association of Broadcasters, the National Cable Television Association and the Motion Picture Association of America called off talks in Washington after Vice President Al Gore released a statement calling for a "V" label, for violence, to be instituted on children's action shows and cartoons as well as other program material.

In mid-September the networks announced plans to expand the size of the "bugs" to at least 10% of the screen area for at least 15 seconds prior to the beginning of most shows. By the end of September and with the start of the new television season, most major programmers had accepted and begun using the content-based ratings, except NBC. McCain immediately assailed NBC and its corporate owner General Electric over their position, and vowed that a price would be paid if NBC did not accept these "voluntary" ratings.

These content-based ratings are:

V—for violence.

D—for rough dialogue.

S—for sex or sexual situations.

L—for objectionable language.

FV—for fantasy violence (for children's cartoons).

The above designations are appended to the basic program ratings for further clarification (for example, "TV-M-SLV" for an adult night time drama or "TV-Y7-FV" for an action cartoon series). Not determined immediately was how these ratings systems would trigger the V-chip or how the V-chip would be programmed. The first television sets to feature the V-chip are not scheduled to be released until 1998.

One of the major objections to a content-based ratings structure is that it will impose a de facto censorship standard. Broadcasters feel that advertisers will be less likely to spend portions of their budgets on potentially risky programming. A case in point was the episode of ABC comedy "Ellen" in which the lead character, played by Ellen Degeneres, announced that she was gay. In anticipation of that episode, several advertisers pulled their support from the program. Boycotts by consumer groups have also effected other television programs, most notably "NYPD Blue" and "Married With Children".

DIGITAL TELEVISION

The schedule for the introduction of DTV was announced by broadcasters to the FCC in March. Los Angeles will launch the first four stations within six years, New York one in the next two years, and nine of the top ten markets are scheduled to be serviced by digital broadcasts in the next two years.

In April, the FCC assigned over 1,900 digital channel slots for the transition from analog broadcasting to digital broadcasting. No public auction of the new frequencies was held. Plans include reserving channels 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6 as a "core spectrum", which will allow the "packing" of local digital channels after transition. The rest of the spectrum can then be reclaimed for other purposes, with broadcasters required to return their analog frequencies to the FCC by 2006. Some broadcasters complained the new digital frequencies will not adequately cover the market they currently serve and that the 2006 deadline was unrealistic.

The FCC also approved a standard for digital television broadcasts, and by definition, the standards that television manufacturers will need to produce the next generation of television sets. The FCC's guidelines will allow both HDTV and SDTV. They do not include specific requirements regarding the scanning methods by which image is delivered to the television screen: interlaced which is the method currently used in broadcasting and progressive, which is the home computer standard. Nor do the guidelines address the aspect ratio of the picture (HDTV requires a 16 by 9 aspect ratio, DTV 4 by 3) or the number of lines of resolution. This open ended protocol satisfied complaints made by the computer manufacturing industry that the new standard froze them out of the market. The alternative proposed by the computer industry, a 3-tiered progressive standard which would not support HDTV, met with skepticism from broadcasters.

Initial broadcasts are expected to be in the HDTV format. But in a speech given in late August, Preston Padden, president of the ABC Television Network, specifically included remarks regarding the network's consideration of multi-channel SDTV broadcasts, rather than the single channel of HDTV broadcasting expected but not required by lawmakers. Padden also suggested that the additional channels could be considered for premium services, which although not specifically ruled out by the FCC, would violate the spirit of the FCC's assignment of the additional spectrum to broadcasters free of charge. Sinclair Broadcasting, for one, has abandoned the HDTV model in favor of multi-channel SDTV with premium material on some of the channels and CBS suggested that SDTV programming was on the network's agenda, although HDTV still figured in their plans.

The major networks are concerned that the substantial investment required to provide programming in HDTV will not be profitable for them or their affiliates. Contrastly, the multiplexed digital platform is an attractive one for broadcasters, as one or more popular pay channels can be bundled with the complementary number of core broadcast channels at a very low fee to consumers. This would allow broadcasters to compete for the first time with cable and satellite providers. In addition, SDTV multiplexing allows transmission on four to five times as many channels as HDTV. In the case of the ABC Station Group, the stations' channel count would go from the ten HDTV channels expected to 40 or 50 SDTV channels.

Key lawmakers promised a major battle if the networks do not broadcast in HDTV or begin charging for programming. Indeed, if they charge for programming, the FCC will require a share in the revenue and is expected to demand substantial public service commitments. Angered by the mere suggestion of abandoning HDTV, legislators discussed the possibility of auctioning any "excess" spectrum, i.e., the three to four additional channels SDTV broadcasting would free up. Another option on the table is the use of prime time blocks in HDTV, with SDTV multiplexed broadcasting filling the balance of "air time".

In any case, the first digital television sets will become available in late 1998, with initial retail prices estimated to be in the $8,000 to $10,000 range, and only available in 60 inch or greater monitor sizes. The first Zenith set will reportedly feature no cable connection, forcing consumers to rely on over-the-air broadcasts and antennae. (Tests have shown that one of the best antennas to receive DTV signals is the old-fashioned and inexpensive "rabbit ears" set top array.) Zenith announced additional plans to market a converter that will receive digital broadcasts. Mitsubishi also plans a line of high-priced digital monitors.

The question of SDTV or HDTV broadcasting should pose no problem to hardware manufacturers, as the format change can be handled by software. HDTV broadcasting will require a different sized picture tube than the current standard, so HDTV accommodation will most likely be primary. Other manufacturers are planning sets that will be able to handle standard analog NTSC broadcasts until digital delivery is available.

However, in a survey conducted in April of 1997 by A. T. Kearney, over 75% of the consumers interviewed were not likely to buy a digital set if the cost was more than current analog televisions. The prices noted above, although extremely preliminary and aimed at the wealthiest consumers, tend to be higher by several orders of magnitude than the lowest end of the standard NTSC color sets. Congress was studying a plan to force manufacturers of analog television and video devices to label their products with an "obsolescence" notice, informing consumers that any equipment that they buy will not necessarily be compatible with the new digital broadcasts.

The price that broadcasters will be required to pay for upgrading to DTV will be even more costly. In a National Association of Broadcasters report, it was estimated that 75% of all broadcast tower antennas will need to be replaced or upgraded at a cost of $750,000 to $1,000,000 each. As a whole, this will cost the industry billions of dollars. The first commercial HDTV encoders cost in the realm of $600,000, with a 4-channel multiplex SDTV encoder costing less than half that.

NETWORKS

Nielsen Media Research reported that in television homes, prime-time viewership of the Big Three networks (ABC, CBS and NBC) fell to a record low of 62% in the September 1996 to April 1997 season, down 3.2% from the year before. During the 1997 Independence Day holiday weekend, network viewing fell to an all-time low of 48%. By comparison, in 1980 the networks' prime-time viewership was close to 90%.

NBC was the top-rated network (yet again), garnering a 10.5 rating and an 18% share. CBS came in second with a 9.6 rating and a 16% share, ABC third with 9.2/15 and FOX earning a respectable 7.7/13. UPN increased to a 3.2 rating and 5% share, and WB rounded out the broadcast networks with 2.6/4. For the full 1996-97 Nielsen ratings for the top 100 network series, see the Nielsen table in the Statistics Section of this Almanac.

The cost of licensing hit shows by the networks reached an all-time high with NBC agreeing to pay $3 million per episode for the situation comedy "Frasier". NBC's top comedy "Seinfeld" is expected to cost the network $4 million or more per episode largely due to contractual negotiations with three of the long-time principals who settled for $600,000 per episode apiece. The producers of ABC's "Home Improvement" sued the program's distributor, Walt Disney (who also owns ABC), alleging that a $3 million per episode renewal was in essence a sweetheart deal. Tim Allen, the star of "Home Improvement", later negotiated a contract giving him a reported $1 million per episode.

Another factor driving up costs for programmers was the rising competition for professional sports events and the resulting increase in costs. While advertisers reportedly spent $4.7 billion on national sports advertising in 1996, current baseball, basketball and football contracts for the Big Three networks, Fox and ESPN, total more than $7 billion. This does not include contracts for other sports events or the Olympics. CBS has reportedly paid $715 million for the broadcast rights to the Summer 2000 Olympic Games alone.

In a related sports development, Tiger Woods' victory in the PGA Masters golf tournament brought in a 14.1 Nielsen rating and a 31% audience share—a 53% increase over the 1996 Masters and the highest rated golf tournament since 1976. So much for "a good walk spoiled".

In a chilling decision, a lawsuit against the ABC news program Prime Time Live by the regional supermarket chain Food Lion for trespass, fraud and breach of fiduciary duty was decided in favor of the supermarket by a North Carolina jury. Producers went undercover for the evening news magazine and were hired as clerks for the chain in order to expose the sales of spoiled food and unsanitary food handling practices by the supermarket. Food Lion did not dispute the findings of the investigative report, but instead claimed that the practice of sending in undercover reporters constituted fraud. ABC immediately appealed the $5.5 million award.

Ted Harbert resigned as entertainment chairman of ABC after 20 years with the network. In June, Stuart Bloomberg was brought in as chairman of the ABC Entertainment Group, overseeing Jamie Tarses who arrived amid much fanfare in 1996. CBS station group president Peter Lund was replaced by CBS radio president, Mel Karmazin. Lucy Sahlany, president and CEO of the fledgling UPN network, announced that she would not renew her contract when it expired in September of 1997. Her replacement is Dean Valentine, formerly president of Walt Disney Television.

LEGISLATION

Newspaper publishers asked the FCC to relax or eliminate the rule prohibiting the ownership by a single company of both a newspaper and a television station in the same metropolitan market. The publishers point to the fact that ownership rules have been eased for broadcasters by the Telecommunications Act of 1996.

FCC chairman Reed Hundt introduced a plan to require broadcasters to provide at least three hours of educational programming per week. Hundt also proposed that networks allot 60 seconds each night for Public Service Announcements and asked that broadcasters be required to set aside an additional 5% of their broadcast schedule for public interest programming.

Hundt announced his resignation as chairman of the FCC in early May. With commissioner Rachelle Chong leaving in October and James Quello scheduled to leave in November, the FCC's only holdover will be commissioner Susan Ness. The nominees approved by the Senate in early October 1997 were William Kennard as chairman and Harold Furchgott-Ross, Gloria Tristani, and Michael Powell (son of General Colin Powell) as commissioners. No obstacles are anticipated in the final confirmation process.

Satellite broadcasters, most notably AskyB and EchoStar, pushed for a congressional revision of the Satellite Home Viewer Act. The legislation prohibits retransmission of network signals in markets where a local broadcast affiliate provides service and satellite transmission of local channels in other markets. A federal court upheld the FCC's requirement that DBS companies relegate at least 4% of their time to public access broadcasting.

CABLE

Much of the decline in the networks dominance of the Niensens can be directly attributed to the rise in popularity of basic cable networks. Basic cable viewing percentages were up by almost 10% in the 1996-97 season. Cable systems serviced approximately 60 million American households in 1997, with TCI maintaining dominance as the number one provider, boasting 17.5 million subscribers. The cable industry has developed sex and violence ratings similar to those in use by the networks.

Many of the major cable operating systems complained that the higher cost of purchasing programming (primarily sports content) was cutting drastically into their bottom line. These increases and the crop of new basic cable channels offered by programmers (ESPNews, CNN SI, CBS's Eye on People and MTV's new 24-hour music channel M2, among others) have forced the cable companies to choose to drop popular standard services or hike rates. TCI, did indeed raise its rates by an average of 6.8% in many of its markets.

In addition, the cable industry is increasingly threatened by competition from satellite and DBS services in many markets. The systems offer more programming choices and an alternative to consumers, while carrying many of the standard cable channels viewers expect. TCI is reported to have lost as many as 70,000 subscribers in 1996 and has reorganized into six regional operating divisions to better serve consumers whose needs vary by region.

In order to be able to retransmit broadcast DTV and HDTV programs, cable companies will need to upgrade the set-top cable boxes to accommodate the new video signals. An option that cable carriers may consider is developing and supplying digital to analog decoder boxes, which will allow those consumers who have not upgraded to digital television sets to receive programming.

The top-rated programs on standard cable are professional sports events including wrestling, and children's programming, most notably Nickelodeon's cartoon "Rugrats". Children's programming is one of the biggest growth industries in entertainment, with both Viacom-owned Nickelodeon and Time-Warner's The Cartoon Channel committing substantial amounts of time to original shows.

Many other cable networks have become major providers of original programming. Although much material on cable is still Hollywood movies and reruns of network programs, more and more content is produced exclusively for cable. For example, HBO is now the largest purchaser and producer of independent documentaries. "Politically Incorrect with Bill Maher", originally developed for Comedy Central, is now following ABC's "Nightline" and is a major stop for authors on book tours. Viacom is producing a feature film based on the Nickelodeon cartoon series "Rugrats", after the success of the feature film debut of "Beavis and Butthead", which was originally developed for MTV.

The most successful PPV programs are sports events. While movies remain the staple of PPV viewing, sports with a relatively high PPV price can earn a lot of money. The first Mike Tyson-Evander Holyfield boxing match in November of 1996 drew 1.65 million PPV buys. The July 1997 rematch, sold on PPV as a Pay-Per-Round, brought in approximately 1.9 million PPV buys and a reported $95 million in revenue.

Viacom sold its stake in the USA network to partner Seagram Corp. The USA joint ownership agreement between Viacom and Seagram-owned Universal has resulted in litigation between the two companies.

Seagram claims that Viacom's new Nickelodeon spin-off network, TV Land, violated the original agreement stipulating that neither entity could develop new cable services without the consent of the other. In October, a majority interest in the USA Network was bought by Barry Diller.

Turner planned to transform itself from a "superstation" into a basic cable channel, and asked new fees from carriers. Fox News Channel ended its suit against Time Warner Cable of New York when Time Warner agreed to carry the news channel. Fox bought International Family Entertainment, parent company of The Family Channel. Discovery Communications purchased The Travel Channel.

Congress began investigations into cable networks exclusive programming deals with major MSOs. Rival cable companies claim such deals are anti-competitive.

SATELLITE AND DBS

The top five DBS providers are expected to provide programming services to over 6 million homes by the end of 1997. Revenue per subscriber increased to an average of $40.00. Satellite hardware prices are expected to come down even further in the future yielding a larger pool of potential subscribers.

However, customer turnover is becoming a wider problem in the industry, as competition increases. PrimeStar reported a 40% turnover rate in 1996. In a related development, PrimeStar subscriber counts needed to be revised due to substantial overcounting dating back to January 1997.

One of the drawbacks for the burgeoning satellite broadcast industry is its inability to provide consumers with local channel access, forcing subscribers to either rely on over the air broadcasts or maintain a cable account to supplement satellite service. EchoStar has announced plans to provide subscribers with network and local programming. This plan, however would depend on a congressional revision of the Satellite Home Viewer Act, which prohibits retransmission on network signals in markets where a local broadcast affiliate provides service.

The News Corporation's ASkyB service was scheduled to begin providing programming to consumers late in 1997 or early in 1998. ASkyB's planned use of MCI subsidiary EchoStar's DBS license was shelved when financial negotiations between the two companies broke down. ASkyB then agreed to be carried on PrimeStar as an auxiliary service but was a dead issue by October, when News Corp. chairman Rupert Murdoch claiming the service was "five years too late".

DBS operator DirecTV raised package prices by as much as 13% in 1997. In June, Pegasus Communications announced that it would buy 5 independent DirecTV systems. PPV was also a lucrative source of income for satellite operators.

DIGITAL TELEVISION WORLD

With the development of digital DTH and new Internet technologies, borders are blurring almost overnight. If a country is located in a broadcast satellite's signal "footprint", citizens of that country will be able to pick up transmissions from that satellite—whether or not their government allows them to. The price of satellite signal reception equipment is rapidly coming down, and in some cases is being subsidized by private broadcasters.

This will pose enormous political, social and economic problems for governments, private corporations, broadcasters and individuals all over the world—and provide undreamed of opportunities for others.

State-run broadcasters, long accustomed to monopolistic dominance of the state airwaves, will find themselves losing viewers to start-up private companies. Governments that run their broadcasting units as propaganda machines will be undermined by "non-sanctioned" satellite transmissions. Broadcasters who have allowed themselves to become complacent without competition will need to evolve new strategies to match their rivals.

Intellectual copyright and property rights will need to be protected more than ever—if such protection can ever be complete. "Hacker" technology is evolving as fast or even faster than the technologies of copy protection. Governments will not be able to stifle the growth of so-called "strong" encryption software for long, given the needs of the private sector in protecting intellectual property rights.

On the bright side, more channel slots will require more programming—a lot more programming. Pay TV services are proving themselves to be increasingly popular worldwide. From movies and sporting events to documentaries and children's programming, quality products have never been more in demand. Start-up channels like Animal Planet, CBS's Eye on People and the Love Channel should be able to find carriers without having to battle established networks for scarce channel space. "Must-carry" rules may become a moot issue.

Although the growth of cable and DBS services has caused an erosion in viewership for the major networks in the U. S., more people are watching more television than ever before. Advertising rates for start-up basic digital services should become more economical. And prices for consumers will come down.

VIDEO

The videocassette rental business may have reached maturity, but still accounts for estimated retail sales and rentals of $16.2 billion annually. Video rentals declined over the past two years, while sell-through continued with a respectable growth rate. Some industry insiders consider the main competition to be coming from Pay-Per-View (PPV) films and satellite broadcasts while others cite the growth of the Internet as the decline of all television related activities.

87% of American homes with television now have videocassette recorders or players. Revenues from sales and rentals of videocassettes were estimated to be $16.2 billion in 1996, and supplied nearly 57% of all domestic film income. Average rental cost is $2.75. The average period of time between theatrical release and video release in the U.S. is six months, but with some theatrical underachievers appearing on video as little as 4 months after theatrical release.

In 1995, U.S. home video rentals dropped an estimated 2.5%—4.7% compared to 1994, but rebounded in 1996 an average of 4.5% to an estimated $8.7 billion. Sell-through, however, continued to gain market share, with a 9.5% gain expected in 1996 to $7.5 billion. By the 1997 Summer VSDA conference in Las Vegas, video rental revenues had fallen a reported 7% for the first six months of 1997. By the end of September, rental revenues had passed the $5 billion mark, almost 8% lower than 1996 figures. Similar declines were noted worldwide.

Similar to their counterparts in the theatrical exhibition industry who are concerned over the window of time between a film's theatrical release and its video release, video retailers are concerned with the window of time between video release and availability on PPV cable or satellite broadcast. Traditionally, the PPV window has been 45 days, but with cable advertising in place weeks in advance, video stores feel that any advantage of time is lost. They believe that consumers, rather than going to the video store to rent a movie and watch it once, will wait until it appears on PPV and tape it for unlimited future viewing.

Blockbuster Video, the leader of the video rental and sell-through industry, reported a 15% loss in earnings in 1996, and is expected to report further losses in 1997.

Rentals at Blockbuster were off 2% to 4% in the first two quarters of 1997. New Blockbuster CEO, Bill Fields, hired in 1996, resigned in April of 1997 and was replaced in mid-June by former Taco Bell executive John Antiooco. Blockbuster has been the most visible example of the video industry's doldrums, and caused a good deal of parent company Viacom's stock market woes. Viacom announced plans to offer a minority stake in the company with a public stock offering in 1998.

Another piece of technology also may soon threaten traditional video retailers. A new company, Zoom TV, has been established to market a line of Digital VideoDiscs (DVDs) that are encoded for one time viewing in a Zoom TV DVD player, but can be decrypted for an additional fee for consumer ownership. For more information on this, see the following Divx section.

A number of top music retailers in the United States (prime outlets for videotapes) have gone out of business in recent years resulting in over 1,000 locations closing their doors. Most notable among the survivors, Musicland received concessions from many of its creditors in order to allow the chain to keep some of its outlets open.

DVD

The current standard for the DVD calls for a single-sided disk that is able to store nearly 4.7 gigabytes of information (the equivalent of one 133 minute movie) with two layers of information storage material and a playback rate of 11 million bits of information per second. The two-layer (two-substrate) process will allow a much denser packing of data onto the disks, and improved blue lasers (or in industryspeak "booroo") with smaller wavelengths will allow the encoding of data into smaller physical areas on the substrates. The data compression standard is the variable-rate compression system called MPEG2 (the acronym stands for Motion Picture Engineering Group). This system allows the playback of the film at different rates of data density according to the complexity of the scene without any degradation of the image. Dolby AC-3 has been chosen as the sound standard for the DVD and allows CD-quality audio playback.

Sony, Warner and Polygram released films for the new DVD (Digital Video Disc) platform in the early Spring of 1997. However, some of the other major studios adopted a more cautious approach to the new consumer hardware, notably Universal (which is partly owned by Japanese DVD manufacturer Matsushita), Paramount and Walt Disney. Although copyright issues are of importance to the studios, one of the major reasons for the delay was determine if the DVD platform gained wide enough consumer acceptance to justify the expense of making the jump to a new software format. The obvious paradox is that a shortage of available films on DVD could limit widespread adoption of the new platform.

In July, Universal announced plans to begin releasing a limited number of films on DVD, as did small studio Republic. Buena Vista Home Video (Disney's video arm) claimed that it would release films in the DVD format for the 1997 holiday season.

By September, the electronics industry reported that between 50,000 and 144,000 DVD players had been sold to consumers, and entry level prices for hardware had dropped to as low as $500.

The DVD format, which boasts superior sound and picture quality, might just be the new product that the video industry needs to get consumers into the video stores again. DVDs are aimed exclusively at the sell-through market with an average retail price of $25.00.

DIVX

The new Zoom TV technology, also known as Divx, is being developed by Digital Video Express LP, a partnership of Circuit City and Hollywood interest. Divx can be considered either a disposable DVD, an in-home Pay-Per-View platform, or the replacement for the video store as sell-through outlet. Consumers can go to an outlet (whether traditional video store, mass merchandiser or other), purchase a Divx movie on disc and play it on a specially equipped DVD player that will allow the movie to be viewed only once. This Divx DVD player will be equipped with a modem, and basic software and hardware functions, to allow additional viewings that can be authorized electronically via modem with charges billed directly to consumers by the studio or studio's agency, bypassing the video store entirely. Should the consumer choose to keep the film, an additional fee would be collected and full-play capabilities would be unlocked. Otherwise, the consumer can simply dispose of the disc, without returning it to the video store.

This new technology would allow studios to share more fully in the revenues of multiple rentals and sales of films, freezing video stores out of the process. Panasonic, Zenith and Thomson Consumer Electronics all plan to introduce Divx systems in 1998. Disney, Paramount, Universal and Dreamworks SKG have signed on to release titles, with Sony, Warner Bros., MGM and Fox withholding judgement.

DVD supporters in the home video industry were highly critical of this new development, citing likely consumer confusion over the two platforms. These critics also wondered at the timing of the announcement of Divx at the beginning of the holiday shopping season. The DVD platform, being fairly new, has not gained wide acceptance, and any substantial new developments to the current specification would render present machines obsolete.

THE INTERNET

Telephone companies continued to push for a "connection fee" to be collected from Internet service providers. In defense of their position, they cite the increased network traffic volume at switching stations due to the large number and length of telephone connections from consumers accessing the Internet.

In early September, Comuserve was purchased by Jackson, Mississippi based Worldcom, which planned to spin off Comuserve's consumer subscribers to AOL. This deal would add 2.5 million subscribers to AOL's current membership of 9 million and make AOL the dominant Internet service provider in the world.

Microsoft purchased television set-top Internet connection manufacturer WebTV. The Seattle-based software giant sees the need to expand delivery options. As if to illustrate the growth of Internet delivery alternatives, DirecTV began offering an Internet access option with its satellite broadcast system. Independent developers continued to push the envelope in terms of real-time video broadcasting for the Internet. At this point, the bandwidth limitations of traditional telephone lines seem to be an insurmountable obstacle for the transmission of high quality video, even with compression. As more and more local telephone companies move to local ISDN connections, this may ease.

If full, high-quality television broadcasts ever make it onto the Internet, the possibilities would be astounding. Rather than having access to several hundred channels of programming, consumers will be able to receive thousands of broadcasts from all over the world on demand or participate in multi-user interactive television programs (much like today's multi-user Internet games).

CORPORATE HISTORIES OF THE NETWORKS

ABC, INC.

ABC's predecessor, the Radio Corporation of America (RCA) owned two radio networks, the Blue and the Red. In 1941, the FCC decreed that the same company could not own two networks, so RCA incorporated the Blue under the name of American Broadcasting System and established it as an independent subsidiary. RCA then sold this network to Edward J. Noble, and in 1944, the name was changed to the American Broadcasting Company. ABC's first television broadcast was on April 19, 1948 with "On the Corner". Later in the year, ABC scored two "firsts": the live broadcast of an opera (Verdi's "Otello") from the Metropolitan Opera House in New York and a TV documentary, "The Marshall Plan." ABC merged with United Paramount Theatres in 1952. This merger was engineered by Leonard H. Goldensohn, then the president of UPT. The new company was called American Broadcasting-Paramount Theatres, Inc. During the 1950's, ABC began to operate at a profit although it had to struggle fiercely to acquire new affiliates. In 1954, ABC made a deal with Walt Disney to acquire a 35% interest in Disneyland and all TV programs produced by Disney. The following year, ABC signed an exclusive rights contract with Warner Bros. for TV programming.

In the Fall of 1962, ABC introduced color programming for the fall season which was expanded in 1966 to include full color broadcasting. In 1965, AB-PT's name was changed to American Broadcasting Companies, Inc. The 1960's also introduced blockbuster theatrical movies to TV with spectacular rating results when "The Bridge on the River Kwai" was viewed (in 1966) by 60 million Americans. In 1967, the ABC evening news was expanded from 15 minutes to a half-hour, and Joey Bishop inaugurated ABC's late-night talk show programming.

In 1972, ABC was able to operate at a profit for the first time in ten years. In the 1976-77 season, ABC took first place in the ratings race for the first time. In 1976, Barbara Walters joined ABC, becoming the first anchorwoman in television history. The miniseries "Roots" appeared on ABC in 1977 and became the highest-rated program of all time. This helped immensely in the ratings race, and credit must go in large part to Fred Silverman who, two years before, had joined the company as president of ABC International. He left in 1978 to go to NBC.

The decade of the Eighties was a turbulent one for the networks as cable and home video began whittling away their audiences. In 1985, ABC agreed to be purchased by Capital Cities Communications. The merged company's name was changed to Capital Cities/ABC, Inc. ABC held second place in the ratings from 1979 to 1983 when it dropped to third position. It was unable to rise from third until 1987-88 when it displaced CBS in second place, primarily because of the World Series and the Superbowl. It remained second in 1988-89 and 1989-90. In the latter season, ABC had the distinction of broadcasting the most talked-about new series of the period, "Twin Peaks," and the highest-rated new series, "America's Funniest Home Videos." Daniel B. Burke replaced Frederick J. Pierce as president and chief operating officer. There were also sweeping reductions in personnel in the interests of economy and streamlining. Budget cuts notwithstanding, Capital Cities/ABC chairman Thomas Murphy pledged ABC would not scrimp on programming.

Profits at the end of 1990 rose about $70 million. Of the three networks, ABC won the ratings battle in news coverage of the war in the Persian Gulf. For two seasons in a row the network could boast having the only new series in the top ten: "America's Funniest People" (1990-91) and "Home Improvement" (1991-92). Capital Cities/ABC is a partner in ESPN, the highly successful cable TV sports channel and two other cable TV services—Arts & Entertainment and Lifetime. ABC was the only network in the 1992-93 season to gain ground, moving into second place behind CBS, from its previous third place standing. During the season, Robert A. Iger became the new network president. The network was the first to sign a deal with a cable operator (in this case Continental Cablevision) allowing its stations to be carried on cable without paying a fee. In 1994, the company signed an affiliation deal with E.W. Scripps Company to switch several of their stations over to ABC.

The big event of 1995 was the $19 billion acquisition of Capital Cities/ABC by the Walt Disney Company, said to be the second largest corporate takeover in history. In 1997, Ted Harbert resigned as entertainment chairman of ABC after 20 years with the network. At the end of the 1996-97 season, "Roseanne", one of ABC's sitcom staples, was discontinued after nine years on the air. The producers of ABC's "Home Improvement" sued the program's distributor, Walt Disney, alleging that a $3 million per episode renewal was in essence a sweetheart deal benefiting Disney. A lawsuit against the ABC news program Prime Time Live by the supermarket chain Food Lion for trespass, fraud and breach of fiduciary duty was decided in favor of the supermarket by a North Carolina jury. Producers for the evening news magazine were hired undercover as clerks by the chain in order to expose the sales of spoiled food and unsanitary food handling practices by Food Lion, which did not dispute the findings of the investigative report, but instead claimed that the practice of sending in undercover reporters constituted fraud.

CBS (COLUMBIA BROADCASTING SYSTEM, INC.)

CBS began in 1927 as a radio network with 16 stations, United Independent Broadcasters, Inc., founded by Arthur Judson, a concert tour manager and backed by Louis Sterling, president of the Columbia Phonograph Company. Later other investors were invited in, the most prominent of whom was William S. Paley. On September 26, 1928, at the age of 27, Paley became president of the firm whose name was changed to the Columbia Broadcasting System. Paley introduced many innovations to radio broadcasting, the most significant of which was the signing of an agreement in 1931 with Paramount Pictures whereby film stars were heard on radio for the first time. This laid the groundwork for the CBS policy in television from the outset to feature shows built around stars (Ed Sullivan, Lucille Ball, Arthur Godfrey, Jack Benny, Burns & Allen, Garry Moore, etc.).

CBS was in TV as early as 1931 when it began regularly scheduled TV programming over experimental station W2XAB in New York City. In 1941, CBS began weekly broadcasts of black-and-white TV programming over WCBS-TV in New York. By 1948, it had 30 affiliated stations.

In 1951, CBS broadcast the first live coast-to-coast TV transmission between New York and San Francisco. 1951 was also the year that Bill Gordon designed the CBS Eye which was destined to become one of the most famous logos in the world.

In 1952, CBS opened Television City in Hollywood—the industry's first self-contained TV production facility. "Playhouse 90" made its debut in 1956, but the big event of the decade was the 1951 debut of "I Love Lucy", a series regarded as the progenitor of the situation-comedy. In the field of soap operas, CBS was both leader and winner, virtually monopolizing that market from 1951 to 1956. In 1951, it introduced "Search for Tomorrow," which was to become the longest-running show in that genre. This was followed by "Love of Life" (1951) and "The Guiding Light" (1952), both overnight hits.

In the late '50s and through the 60's and 70's, CBS reigned as king of prime time ratings, maintaining its long-running lead with such successes as "Gunsmoke" (1957), "The Defenders" (1961), "The Beverly Hillbillies" (1962), "All in the Family" (1972) and "Dallas" (1978). Also helping was "60 Minutes" the news-oriented show which, by 1995, had remained in the Top Ten prime time shows for 18 consecutive seasons.

CBS began the turbulent Eighties with a new president, Thomas Wyman (replacing John D. Backe). In 1985, Ted Turner made an unfriendly bid for CBS, forcing the network to buy up 21% of its own stock to thwart the takeover. Laurence A. Tisch, a former theatre chain executive, had become the major stockholder in CBS when, in 1986, he instigated sweeping changes in the interests of cost-cutting and efficiency. 700 jobs were eliminated at the CBS Broadcast Group. Tisch also removed Wyman as president, named himself chief executive officer and induced founder William Paley to return to active duty as acting chairman of the board. It was quite a jolt to the company when, in 1985-86, it slipped to second place and stayed there through the following season. In 1987-88, CBS came in third for the first time in TV history. In 1988, Tisch shuffled executive ranks again, naming Howard Stringer, previously president of CBS News, president of the Broadcasting Group. The network's new management team sought to devise a strategy to pull the network out of its decline in the prime-time ratings. Jeff Sagansky, former head of Tri-Star Pictures, was brought in as president of the entertainment division in 1990.

Starting in 1991-92, CBS became the number one network for three years in a row based on the success of such shows as "60 Minutes" (the number one show for both '91-'92 and '92-'93), "Murphy Brown," "Murder She Wrote," and "Northern Exposure." CBS was hit hard by Fox's 1994 purchase of twelve stations from New World Communications, losing eight affiliates.

However, the following summer, Westinghouse Electric Corp. acquired the final independent network for $5.4 billion creating the largest collection of tv and radio stations in America. The 1994-95 season was a low point for the network as it plunged from number one to number three. By season's end, CBS had the dubious distinction of being the first of the three majors to fall into 4th place, coming in below Fox for the last week before the debut of the 1995-96 season. In late 1995, the venerable news program "60 Minutes" and CBS came under fire for refusing to air a controversial segment on the tobacco industry. Critics of CBS alleged that the network capitulated to the threat of legal action, rather than actual litigation. During this season the network placed third again. In 1997 CBS station group president Peter Lund was replaced by CBS radio president, Mel Karmazin.

FOX BROADCASTING COMPANY

Fox Broadcasting, a subsidiary of Rupert Murdoch's News Company and owner of Twentieth Century-Fox, began broadcasting with the late night "Late Show with Joan Rivers" on October 9, 1986. The next year, on April 5, 1987, the fledgling network began prime-time broadcasts on Sunday nights only. The initial line-up consisted of "Married With Children" and "The Tracey Ullman Show", which featured animated interludes of a dysfunctional cartoon family named the Simpsons. Three new shows were added in the following weeks, including "21 Jump Street", which helped launch the career of actor Johnny Depp. In July of that year, Fox launched a Saturday night prime time line up. From 1989 to 1993, the network steadily added programming and expanded its prime time coverage to a full seven nights a week. Originally the network aimed its programming at a young urban demographic. Particular attention was given to African-American oriented programming, with comedy series such as "Roc", "Martin", "Living Single" and "In Living Color" (a weekly comedy-variety show which showcased not only the talents of Keenan Ivory Wayans and his brother Damon Wayans, but also comedian Jim Carrey). The youth market was provided with its first soap opera with

"Beverly Hills 90210", and its succesful spin-off "Melrose Place". Fox consistently programmed "risky" shows, even in the face of boycotts, most notably aimed at "Married With Children" and "Beverly Hills 90210". The network, feeling strong about its programming, slotted "The Simpsons" against NBC's top-rated sitcom "The Cosby Show" in 1991.

The network was also actively pursuing sports programming. In 1993, Fox won the rights to NFL football for four years, including the rights to 1997's Super Bowl XXXI. In 1994, Fox acquired the rights to broadcast NHL hockey and in 1995, Fox signed an agreement with Major League Baseball to broadcast weekly games, the 1996, 1998 and 2000 World Series, and 1997 and 1999 All Star Games.

1994 saw the creation of FX Networks. In June, FX, a general entertainment basic cable network was launched, featuring marquee sports events, series and films. In October, fXM (Movies From Fox) was initiated to show Twentieth Century Fox films unedited and commercial free.

Also in 1994, Fox premiered "The X-Files", a fiction series dedicated to exploring the bizarre, the unusual and the paranormal, all with a slant aimed at conspiracy buffs. It took a season to achieve ratings success, but "The X-Files" has become one of the most popular series on Fox and is fast becoming the most imitated series on television. All of these programming decisions and experiments have paid off. In the 1994-95 broadcast season Nielsen ratings, Fox finished ahead of pioneer network CBS. Fox beat CBS yet again in November 1995. On October 7, 1996, Fox launched the new Fox News Channel on cable.

NBC (NATIONAL BROADCASTING COMPANY)

NBC was an outgrowth of Radio Corp. of America, General Electric and Westinghouse. These three companies jointly launched a network in 1926 with 31 stations; 25 in a network called Red and 6 in a network called Blue. A year later, it was forced to sell the Blue network to ABC, keeping for itself the one known as Red. Television began for NBC in 1928, when on April 4, it acquired from the Federal Communications Commission a permit to operate an experimental station, W2XBS. Actual transmission from the Empire State Building did not begin until October 30, 1931. Eight years later, the network began broadcasting on a regular basis, beginning with the opening of the New York World's Fair on April 30, 1939.

NBC became a TV network on January 12, 1940, when two stations, WNBC-TV, New York, and WRGB-TV, Schenectady, New York, carried the first network programming. In June, 1941, the FCC granted NBC the first commercial TV license and a month later it had four advertisers signed up. After World War II, NBC scored two big "firsts." On June 19, 1946, Gillette became the first advertiser to sponsor a TV network show, the Joe Louis-Billy Conn boxing match. That same year, Bristol-Myers became the first sponsor of a network TV series, "Geographically Speaking." NBC can also claim to be the first to introduce coast-to-coast network TV coverage. On September 4, 1951, when the U.S.—Japanese peace treaty was signed in San Francisco, NBC cameras were on hand. In 1952, NBC pioneered early morning programming when it introduced "The Today Show." NBC can also claim the first regularly scheduled network color series "The Marriage," launched in 1954. That same year it achieved the first west-to-east TV transmission with the telecast of the Tournament of Roses Parade in color.

At the start of the 1965-66 season, NBC declared it was the "only all-color network." In 1968, NBC introduced new forms of TV programming with "The Name of the Game," a series that incorporated feature-film elements into a 90-minute show. This then spawned the "NBC Mystery Movie."

In 1972, NBC broke new ground again when it introduced "The Tomorrow Show" shown from 1:00 a.m. to 2:00 a.m. This was a talk program and it demonstrated that in the early hours of the morning something more than re-runs and old movies could be shown. In 1974, another late-night show called "Weekend" was begun. The 1976 NBC telecast of "Gone with the Wind" drew the largest audience to that date for an entertainment program. In 1978, "Holocaust" attracted 107 million viewers and won 21 major awards. Such programs helped NBC in the ratings, but in 1976-77 it fell to third place, where it stayed until 1983-84.

Along with the other networks, NBC moved into a period of turmoil during the decade of the Eighties, fighting off rising costs and competition from cable TV and home video. In 1986, General Electric Corporation purchased RCA (NBC's parent) for $6.28 billion; GE, it will be remembered, helped launch the radio network in 1926 which led to the development of NBC-TV. This brought personnel changes led by the replacement of Grant A. Tinker as NBC chief executive officer by Robert Wright, although Wright was not given Tinker's chairman title, that being taken by John F. Welch of GE. Instead, Wright was named president as well as chief executive officer. Along with its competition, NBC started cutting staff and budgets in 1986. In 1984-85, NBC edged up to second place, and the following year it was ranked number one in prime-time viewing for the first time in the three decades of Nielsen ratings.

NBC held on to its first place standing for the following five seasons, through 1990-91. Long-time hit series in the five-year period included "The Golden Girls," "Cheers," and "The Cosby Show." Despite the network's number one standing, figures showed a steady decline in viewers. In May of 1991, Brandon Tartikoff, credited with pulling the network up from third place 11 years earlier, departed from NBC to become head of Paramount Pictures. When "The Cosby Show" ran its final first run episode on April 30, 1992, it became NBC's highest-rated series finale episode ever. The 1992 Summer Olympics also gave the network its widest ratings margin of all time. The 1994-95 season found NBC on top with its popular sitcom "Seinfeld" and the two most highly rated new series, "ER" and "Friends", both placing in the top ten. During the 1995-96 season, NBC was again ranked the number one network, with four of its Thursday night shows ranking in the overall top five. In the summer of 1996, NBC, in association with software giant Microsoft, launched a 24 hour cable and Internet news channel. In 1997, NBC was the only holdout among the 4 major networks in the controversial content-based rating system.

PUBLIC BROADCASTING SERVICE

In 1948, the FCC stopped issuing new television station licenses. American educators, fearful of the impact of unrestricted commercial broadcasting, pushed for the Commission to hold open channel slots for non-commercial, educational television broadcasts. In 1952, when the FCC freeze was lifted, 242 channels were reserved for educational television. America's first non-commercial educational television station was KUHT in Houston, started in 1953. By 1962, 75 educational stations were broadcasting around the country. As these stations shared roughly the same programming interests, a loose distribution network evolved, allowing locally-produced programs like "Children's Corner" to be circulated among these stations. Most of the programming was produced on a shoestring budget. In 1962, the federal government authorized $32 million in matching funds for the construction of new educational television broadcasting facilities. In 1967, a blue ribbon panel urged local and state governments to increase their financial support of "public television" and recommended that the federal government participate in the production of programming. To this end, the first Public Broadcasting Act was enacted. This law also created the Corporation for Public Broadcasting, a non-profit "steward" of the public funds committed to public broadcasting, and, not incidentally, a barrier against government interference in programming decisions. In 1969, the Public Broadcasting Service's charter was signed, with its main intent the establishment of a nation-wide program distribution service. 1969 saw the premiere of an hour long, daily children's variety show, named "Sesame Street", which targeted pre-schoolers with fast-paced educational programming and featured live performers, cartoons and Muppets developed exclusively for the show by Jim Henson.

In 1970, PBS' first year as a "network", its programming included series as widely varied as

"Washington Week in Review", "Civilisation", "The French Chef" and "Soul". By 1973, PBS had more than 1 million individual subscribers. PBS and its member stations were responsible for bringing to U.S. audiences critically acclaimed BBC programming under the flag of "Masterpiece Theatre", which included such classics of television as "Upstairs Downstairs" and "I, Claudius". In 1976, PBS began broadcasting closed-captioned programming for the hearing impaired. In 1978, PBS became the first American network to distribute its programs by satellite.

Although some portion of PBS and its member stations' budgets are provided by federal and state government funding and corporate gifts, PBS and its member stations have continued to rely upon the contributions of individual viewers to stay afloat. In the late 1980's and early 1990's, PBS and the CPB suffered an enormous amount of criticism by government officials for an alleged "liberal" bias, and later in the 90's, for not being "self sufficient". Although a notable few PBS series have achieved some financial success in other areas (primarily children's programming in the home video and product licensing fields), it is important to note that the production of most of the all-important local educational and public affairs programming never breaks even. In the face of continuing cuts in government funding, PBS programmers have accepted what may have been inevitable, the inclusion of commercial sponsorship (and actual commercials) in programming.

UPN (UNITED PARAMOUNT NETWORKS)

UPN began broadcasting on January 16, 1995 as a joint venture between United Television/Chris Craft Industries, Inc. and Paramount Television/Viacom Inc. The fledgling network's first official hit was the newest entry in the long-lived Star Trek franchise, "Star Trek: Voyager." Paramount TV executive Lucy Sathany was named president of the network. UPN currently broadcasts two nights of prime-time programming weekly, a Saturday afternoon movie, and plans to add an afternoon children's programming block. In the 1995-96 season, UPN debuted 8 new prime time series. Lucy Sathany, president and CEO of the fledgling UPN network, announced that she would not renew her contract when it expired in September of 1997.

BRITISH TELEVISION & VIDEO YEAR IN REVIEW

ITV remains the most popular channel in the UK. Total revenue for this commercial TV sector in 1996 amounted to £4,164 million, an increase of 14% compared to the previous year. Advertising remained the principal source of revenue, accounting for 58% of the total—still dominated by Channel 3. Regarding licensees, including those under common ownership, the Carlton companies (Carlton and Central) were the largest in terms of advertising revenue, Channel 4 was the next largest and the Granada companies (LWT and Granada) were third. In the cable and satellite sector, the largest collectively were the 11 BSkyB licensees, achieving more advertising revenue than HTV, a middle-sized Channel licensee. UK Gold was the only other satellite company of any significant size in the market.

BSkyB was the largest earner of subscription income with 84% of the market and just 11% from advertising. Most of the other cable and satellite programme licensees were relatively small in comparison with only 19 licensees (9%) reporting subscription income in excess of £2 million each.

Programme sales are predominantly a Channel 3 and Channel 4 activity and include the sale of both their own and commissioned productions. Sales for the terrestrial sector in 1996 were £445 million, 11% of the total industry income.

The BBC is the public broadcaster funded by a government imposed license fee on owners of TV sets. BBC income has shown modest growth with sales of licenses having risen to over 21 million with each owner of a TV receiver paying nearly £100 annually. Plans are in hand to launch BBC's first Pay-TV channels in 1998. The BBC is finding that the license fees alone are not sufficient to buy and create all the programming necessary. Commenting on the proposed deal with Discovery Communications of the USA and Flextech, its sister company in the UK, Richard Emery the Managing Director of BBC Worldwide TV said "We believe this deal will greatly increase our ability not only to augment the license fee, but also to maximize in future the commercial value of BBC programmes." BBC Worldwide will not invest any of its own funds into the new channels, rather it will sell programming to the channels and take equity stakes in them. Negotiations are under way to determine profit-sharing agreements with Flextech and Discovery who expect to invest some $500 million to develop, market and transmit the channels in the USA and other international markets.

The majority of overseas material on British networks still originates in the USA although in recent years, there has been a fall-off in series which used to attract audiences of 15 million. By contrast, the number and popularity of Australian series and films continues to grow.

In addition to the fierce rivalry between the five channels and BSkyB, British TV as a whole faces increasing competition from not only cinemas, but the highly successful home video business. 690 million people watched videos in their homes in 1996 compared with 123 million who went to the cinema. Total rental and retail revenues from video were more than those for cinema and Pay-TV combined.

Most movies are available on video some six months after the cinema release. Pay-TV availability is usually 12 months after video and free TV a further 12 months after Pay-TV. For example, the £4.6 million box office revenue of "The Madness of King George" was augmented by a further £2.8 million from video. The BBC's £6.5 million production costs for "Pride and Prejudice" were easily recouped by the subsequent sales of over a half million videos.

While Britain remains a nation of television addicts, the industry should be wary of the expanding video business. With another lucrative year of trading for both renting and sales of pre-recorded video cassettes, the estimated total value of the market is now £1.3 billion. The most significant increase was in the rental market which had seen some decline since its peak in 1989. 1996 brought a 6% increase marking the second consecutive year of growth bringing the total rental market to £491 million with 230 million transactions. The retail sector grew by 8%, continuing the upward trend. It has now reached a value of £803 million.

More than 82% of British households now own at least one video recorder and 13.5 million households rented or bought videos last year.

79 million videos were sold last year. Children's titles took 23.2% and music took 9%—with a significant contribution from "Lord of the Dance" which sold one million copies. Sport and fitness accounted for 7.3% and television, boosted by the BBC's "They Think It's All Over" and "Pride and Prejudice" had 15%. As usual, the largest genre was film with 38.8% of the market. "Toy Story" topped the charts with sales of 2.7 million.

Of the rental market which is dominated by films, action/adventure was the most rented genre taking 27.2% of transactions while drama took 18.5%. Comedy took 10.3% of rentals while horror movies only accounted for 1.9%.

The best selling video, "Toy Story" gives Buena Vista number one status for the sixth consecutive year (see the chart below). All the releases in the Top Twenty sold at least 300,000 units with the top five all passing the million mark.

A survey produced by the British Board of Film Classification indicated that due to stricter standards, there had been a significant rise in the number of cuts in the '18' age category. Cuts were required in 7.1% of the titles, an increase over the previous year. The Board's strictness on violence in all categories was a significant factor. The consumer advice system has now been implemented by all British Video Association members.

The Rank Organisation, a leading supplier of products and services, has long-term contracts with several major Hollywood studios for which they process newly originated film and provide video duplication services. The company acquired Duplico, Europe's third largest duplicator. As a result, the overall number of videos duplicated grew by 16%, helped by the release of "Independence Day" and "Mission Impossible". In Arkansas, the expansion of Rank's North Little Rock facility came fully on stream and in Chicago, investment has been made in high speed packaging and distribution systems. There are also plans to produce DVD's.

Commenting on future trends in the UK, Phil Jackson, the Chairman of the British Video Association says

The strongest competition to our business will probably be our own product shown by Pay Per View. There are some in the media who argue that PPV will significantly harm our video business. However, after cinema release, the vast majority are available on video, to rent or buy before being shown on Pay-TV and then terrestrial TV. As a consequence, with PPV there will simply be another window.

He is confident that BVA members can maintain the popularity of video for years to come.

INDEPENDENT TELEVISION COMMISSION (ITC)

33 Foley Street, London, W1P 7LB. Tel: (0171) 255 3000. FAX: (0171) 306 7800.

Founded in 1991, the ITC was created by Parliament under the terms of the Broadcasting Act 1990 to license and regulate all commercially-funded television in the United Kingdom, whether delivered terrestrially (i.e. ITV, Channel 4 and Channel 5) or by cable or satellite, public teletext and certain other text and data services. The ITC regulates these services through license conditions and through its various codes on program content, advertising, sponsorship and technical standards.

TV, CABLE, SATELLITE & VIDEO WORLD MARKET

AFRICA

Among the nations of Sub-Saharan Africa there are the financially poorest countries on earth, with refugee populations estimated to number over 5 million, and 19 million cases of AIDS. Television service for most countries is feasible only for the wealthiest members of these societies. Most of the continent's stations are state-owned, and commercial programming is scarce. It may be assumed that commercial broadcasts are received via satellite or re-broadcast. M-Net, a subsidiary of NetHold and based in South Africa, is the leading provider of commercial television programming.

African satellite television is primarily broadcast via the Arabsat 1 & II, Gorizont and the Intelsat network satellites.

ASIA AND THE PACIFIC RIM

Asia is expected to see major growth in Direct-To-Home (DTH) satellite broadcasts in the next decade. Asia's sheer area (14.7 million square miles—18 million including Oceania) will be best served by broadcast platforms that do not require cables or local broadcast towers. Asia's population of 3.428 billion people is a market that just cannot be served by the old paradigm of terrestrial regional broadcasting.

While Australia remains the corporate center of the growing satellite industry, new developments may shift the equation. In Malaysia, the government has begun to create a multimedia tax haven and information industry hub, and in China, the re-possession of Hong Kong has made it the second largest exporter of entertainment productions.

StarTV, a subsidiary of the News Corporation, now reaches 61 million television households in Asia and has seen major growth in China, India and Pakistan. The MTV Networks reach 12 million Asian homes.

Asia's satellite television is primarily carried by Apstar, Asiasat 1 & 2, BS3A & B, Gorizont, Insat 1D & 2A, Intelsat network, JCSat, Measat, Optus, Palapa, Panamsat network, Rimsat, Superbird and Thaicom.

The video business was up 15% in southeast Asia, but intellectual property piracy is still a major problem, particularly in China and Hong Kong.

EUROPE

Two of the world's largest pay-TV companies, France's Canal Plus and Swiss NetHold have agreed to merge, resulting in the largest European television supplier, with major holdings in France, Belgium, Luxembourg, Spain, Italy, Scandinavia, the Netherlands, in most of the new democracies in Europe and across the globe. This new mega-corporation, as yet unnamed when the final agreement was reached in early September, was expected to have 8.5 million subscribers worldwide. When digital television broadcasts become the norm in Europe, this new company will be in an unrivaled position.

The European Union's "Television Without Frontiers" commission recommended that all pan-European sport programming be carried throughout the Union via free broadcasts, citing the policy of making programs of "major importance to society" available free of charge. The proposition has angered many private broadcasters and pay-TV companies, who have paid out billions for the rights to broadcast sports, most notably soccer.

Although restricted by quotas and challenged by nationalized broadcast interests, U. S. programmers continue to gain ground in Europe.

Most European countries have one or more startup direct digital satellite broadcasting services in place, with media giants like Bertelsmann, the News Company and Canal Plus readying multi-channel digital pay services. However, this looks to be a major battleground over the next couple of years, with established and state-owned services trying to block pan-European corporations from setting up rival services. This is most apparent in Spain, in the dispute between Spanish-owned Via Digital and Canal Plus-backed CSD.

MAJOR EUROPEAN UNION MEDIA COMPANIES

BBC—The state-owned broadcaster of Britain

CLT-UFA—CLT-UFA's major European networks include RTL 4, Veronica, and RTL 5, all in the Netherlands, Belgium's RTL TVI, France's M6 and Germany's RTL. CLT-UFA is a consortium whose prime movers are Bertelsmann and Audiolina.

The Kirch Group—Major broadcast holdings are in Italy's Telepiu and Mediaset, Germany's SAT Eins, Premiere, DSF Sports Network, Spain's Gestevisión and Switzerland's Teleclub. Video companies include TaurusVideo, MedienPlus, MCM and VideoTrade.

Canal Plus/NetHold—Owns Canal Plus in France, Spain Belgium and Poland, Ellipse Cable, Groupe Havas and the PSG sports cable. Satellite broadcasters include France's Canalsatellite, Spain's CSD and M-Net. Canal Plus controls or has investments in film and television producers worldwide.

The News Corporation—Owner of 20th Century Fox and the Fox Networks, and BSKyB in Britain.

Scandinavian Broadcast System

Central European Media Enterprises—Backed by U.S. cosmetic heir, Ronald Lauder, developing private broadcast companies in Romania, Hungary and other former Soviet bloc countries.

European satellite broadcasts are primarily carried by the Astra 1A, 1B, 1C, 1D, 1E & 1F, Kopernikus, Eutelsat I & II, Express, Hispasat I & II, Intelsat K, Orion, Panamsat network, TDF, TDRSS, Tele X, Telecom, Thor, TV-Sat and Turksat satellites.

Video sell-through was up an average of 5% throughout Europe, though the rate of increase has slowed. The Digital Video Disc (DVD) is expected to be commercially launched in Europe in the spring of 1998.

LATIN AMERICA

Latin America's television market is reportedly 83 million TV homes, with Brazil and Mexico being the largest markets. Over 10 million Latin Americans subscribe to cable or pay-TV services. Over 4.5 million satellite dishes are in place all over Latin America. However, a good number of them are probably receiving and distributing programming illegally. With a population of over 280 million Spanish-speakers in Latin America (this excludes the 140 million Portuguese-speaking Brazilians), almost 40 million in Spain and an estimated 23 million in the U. S. Latino community, Spanish language programming will be one of the largest growth industries of the next decade.

Galaxy Latin America, a subsidiary of DirecTV is expected to reach 200,000 satellite viewers in Latin America in 1997. The 18 channel service, based in Fort Lauderdale, Florida serves 12 markets in Latin America. Through various satellite broadcasters, viewers have access to over 61 channels, not including PPV.

Latin America's satellite broadcast industry is primarily served by BrasilSat, Galaxy 3, 4, 6, 7, Hispasat I & II, Intelsat network, Panamsat network, and Spacenet.

THE MIDDLE EAST

The Middle East has an enormous intellectual property piracy industry, with losses to legitimate interests estimated in the billion. This does not include losses from illegal satellite broadcast reception. One of the problems may be that strict Islamic censorship laws in some countries preclude the legal distribution of films, music and computer software deemed morally objectionable. Those consumers who want the product are thereby forced into the underground pirate economy.

The Middle East's satellite television industry is primarily served by Arabsat 1 & II, Gorizont, Intelsat network, Panamsat network and Turksat

NORTH AMERICA

North America is covered in the sections on the United States and Canada. Satellite service is provided by the Anik, Galaxy 3, 4, 6, 7, GStar I, II & III, Intelsat network, Orion, Panamsat network, Satcom, SBS, Spacenet and Telstar satellite platforms.

Australian public broadcaster ABC has seen its funding cut in recent years. Commercial networks like Seven and Nine have begun to carry more English productions, particularly BBC programs, competing with ABC for first-run rights. Southern Star has agreed to develop and co-produce programming with China's CCTV.

Although Warner Bros., MGM and The Movie Network have started up new channels, competition in Australia is so fierce that Foxtel and Australis Media Galaxy have agreed to merge. Pay-TV losses were expected to hit $1.2 billion by the end of 1997.

Video sales and rentals declined, with the sell-through market estimated at nearly $200 million, over half of which is children's video titles. In September, Roadshow Entertainment debuted the first DVD title for sale in Australia, a PAL version of "Evita".

(All following figures in Canadian dollars.)

The total revenue of the broadcasting industry (television and radio) in 1995, including the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation (CBC), was $2.67 billion. The television operating revenues of the CBC were $363.3 million in 1995, and its program expenses increased by 1.8% from $968.5 million in 1994 to $985.8 million in 1995. These figures represent 276.5% and 270.2% of total CBC revenue. The net cost of CBC operations decreased 0.8% from $1,122 million in 1994 to $1,112 million in 1995. CBC expenses increased 2.3% in 1995, and were 417.8% of its revenue for 1995 compared to 425.5% in 1994.

For the year ended August 31, 1995, total operating revenue of $2.31 billion was received by the private broadcasters, up 2.2% from the $2.26 billion for the same period in 1994. In 1995, total program expenses of private television broadcasters totalled $825 million. Total expenses for private stations which include departmental expenses, depreciation and interest expense increased 0.6% from $2.19 billion in 1994 to $2.20 billion in 1995, and represented 95.3% of total 1995 revenue compared to 97.0% in 1994. Net profit after tax for private stations increased with a profit of $39.9 million in 1995 compared to $7.1 million in 1994.

Excluding the CBC, there were 100 licensed TV stations, with 99 in operation in 1995.

In 1996 colour televisions were in 11,246 million households. 5,873 million homes had two or more colour sets - 51.5%, a big jump from 23.8% a decade ago. In 1996 the province of Ontario again led with estimates of 1,978 million households owning one television and 2,169 million owning two or more (compared to 2,023 million with one and 2,060 million with two or more in 1995). The province of Québec followed with estimates of 1,419 million owning one television and 1,540 million with two or more (compared to 1,398 million owning one television and 1,505 million with two or more in 1995).

Recent television viewing data showed that, while average viewing time increased 30 mins. per week between 1994 and 1995, it was still an hour less than a decade ago. This increase in 1995 viewing time was attributed to the introduction of cable specialty channels.

CABLE

In 1995 revenues for the entire cable television industry totalled $2,532.3 million, an 8.7% increase over 1994. Basic tier cable revenues were $1,759.1 million, up 4.9% from 1994. Discretionary and other services earned revenue of $686.2 million, an increase of 20.3% from 1994. Expenses for the industry were $2,352.3 million in 1995, a 17.6% increase over 1994. Net profit after income taxes for the entire cable television industry was $325.9 million in 1995, an increase of 25.6% over 1994. In 1996, out of an estimated 11,412 million households, there were 8,450 million cable subscribers compared to 7,791 million in 1995. 74.0% of households have cablevision (up from 65.4% a decade ago) and it is most prevalent in British Columbia with 84.2%.

In 1997 there were 2,076 cable television systems licensed by the Canadian Radio-Television and Telecommunications Commission (CRTC) broken down by province as follows: Alberta 199, British Columbia 159, Manitoba 103, New Brunswick 118, Newfoundland 276, Nova Scotia 81, North West Territories 43, Ontario 376, Prince Edward Island 17, Québec 435, Saskatchewan 263, Yukon Territory 6

Out of an estimated total of 9,534 million responding households sampled in 1996, 7,407 million owned one VCR, and 2,127 million owned two or more. The province of Ontario led with an estimated 2,764 million households owning one VCR and 840,000 households with two or more, out of 4,193 million responding. Québec followed with an estimated 1,862 million households owning one VCR and 488,000 households with two or more, out of 2,995 million responding. VCRs are found in 83.5% of homes, up from 82.1% in 1995 and 35.2% a decade ago. In 1996, close to one in five (18.6%) households had two or more VCRs.

The 1994-95 revenue from the home entertainment distribution market was $132.9 million. Videocassette wholesalers recorded $717.0 million in videocassette sales in 1994-95, a 39% increase from 1993-94 and the highest level of sales ever recorded by this group. The Canadian content share of the home entertainment market was estimated to be minimal.

The mainland government re-affirmed its promises not to interfere with Hong Kong's independence after the July 1, 1997 hand-over. Television programming was not affected by the transfer of power, and Hong Kong's status as the pre-eminent supplier of Chinese language entertainment products will probably remain unchanged. However, the mainland Chinese government is likely to demand accreditation of journalists and self-censorship by the media will probably become de rigueur. Allegedly, StarTV's removal of the BBC's World Service Channel was an effort to appease the Chinese government.

Star-TV subsidiary Sky-TV is ready to move into the Indian market, but has not yet received a license from the Indian government. CNN International, based in Hong Kong, will separate into regional programming units.

The Chinese government has backed a continued cabling of 10,000 rural cities to provide an estimated 10 million citizens with better television service. A number of foreign interests, including HBO Asia, Singapore Telcomm and Star-TV, have expressed interest in entering the Chinese cable market. Reportedly, China now has some 1,000 cable operators. However, it is also reported that some of these illegally re-transmit pirated satellite signals.

Warner Bros. and MGM have licensed the Shnezhzen Advanced Science Enterprise Group to produce videos for the Chinese market. The Chinese government continued to crack down on video pirates in Hong Kong. In 1996 over 1 million illegally produced CDs, videodiscs and CD-ROMs were seized.

The Czech currency experienced a major devaluation in 1997, affecting acquisitions of new television programming. Local productions have moved to fill the gap. Nova swept the competition with a 54% share of the Czech audience. Start-up Prima TV was expected to continue to lose money.

Video sales were expected to top $5 million in 1997. The average video price was $10.00.

The Egyptian Radio & Television Union was planning to launch satellite Nilesat in November, giving ERTU its own transponder for the Egyptian Space Channel, rather than relying on Arabsat. ERTU's other major project, a new production center outside of Cairo, is expected to be completed by 2010.

Egypt is the largest producer of Arabic programming. EFTU is the only legal provider of broadcast programming to Egypt. Add to this strict Islamic censorship laws, and access to the Egyptian airwave becomes tough to get for outsiders.

Two more Egyptian channels are scheduled for ESC after Nilesat is in position. Under a protocol of cooperation between ERTU and Canal France International, ERTU receives six hours of CFI programs per day for satellite broadcasts. Items are subject to censorship. The Egyptian News Company (C.N.E.) is an Egyptian joint-stock company with CNN and is available to dish owners by subscription only.

Broadcaster TF1 was the most watched French network with a 35% share of its market. France 2 is in second place with 24%, France 3 in third with 18% and newcomer M6 in fourth place and growing with 12.5% of the country's audience.

Newly appointed minister of culture and communication Catherine Trautman announced a 5% hike in television license fees.

France's commission on television ratings has rejected the introduction of the V-chip. Instead, French television programs will be rated with a green triangle indicating 'suitable for children', a yellow triangle signifying 'suitable for those age 12 and over', and a red square indicating 'adult content' (eroticism and/or violence.)

NBC and CNBC were scheduled to provide programming for Canalsatellite by the end of 1997. Television Par Satellite predicted 320,000 subscribers for the same period.

Video sell-through, although slowing in its rate of increase is still a $216 million industry. Laserdisc sales are also good, with $14.5 million in sales. Rental income accounts for only 13% of France's video business—about $34 million.

Germany has 20 commercial channels. There is a 12 minute per hour limit on advertising. The German television market is expected to be worth $12 billion by the end of 1997 and commercial broadcasters generated $3.9 billion in ad revenues in 1996.

RTL 1 and 2 were the top rated broadcast services in 1996-1997, with 21% viewership. ARD and ZDF tied for second place with a 14% share. Germany's top rated television shows are ARD's "Wetten Dass?", "Aktenzeichen XY" from ZDF, "Musikanten-stadt" (ARD), game show "Geld oder Liebe" and "Linden-strasse", both also on ZDF. Some of the German networks also reported good results from variety broadcasts featuring traditional German Volksmusik. German television grew at a slower rate in 1996 and 1997 than in previous years. Both ARD and ZDF are experiencing major financial problems, and staff at both networks is being cut.

Kirch-backed pay-TV service DF-1, launched in 1996, was just not destined to last. Although backed by Germany's largest media conglomerate, the service was blocked by Deutsche Telekom from access to Telekom's cable system, which services 17 million homes. DF-1 service was restricted to satellite dish owners and was able to enroll only 30,000 subscribers by the Spring of 1997. Its decoder was expensive to purchase ($700) and the cable service countered by slashing its price. In the end nothing was effective. DF-1 was to be merged with Premiere. Kirch and Bertelsman have finally agreed to make their direct digital satellite systems compatible, clearing the way for widespread consumer acceptance of the technology. Both ARD and ZDF planned to begin broadcasting digital signals by the end of the year. Premiere was expected to begin broadcasting digital signals in early 1998.

The German video industry brought in $634 million in sales and $402 million in rental income in 1996, but is in decline. Video sell-through prices average $9.00.

The number of TV viewers dropped again by 25% in 1997 due to the low quality of the local serials, films, talk shows and the great number of commercial spots. The National Audio Visual Council levied heavy fines amounting to $2.2 million to ten channels for violation of lawful time for commercials, and/or showing shocking crime, rape and pornographic scenes. Though half of these fines are still overdue, almost all channels are in the red in spite of the fact that their income from commercial spots has increased considerably.

Though the battle against piracy continues, its level is still high. It is estimated that the American film companies are losing a significant amount of revenue, as much as $70 million annually from illegal distribution of videocassettes. Many TV regional channels are prosecuted every year by the Society of Protection of Audiovisual works to no avail.

Besides the state channels of Helleniki Teleorassi (ET1, ET2 and E3) there are more than 220 other private channels operating all over the country.

India's state controlled television known as Doordarshan is among the premier TV organizations in the world, with 34 programme production centres and as many as 656 TV transmitters of varying power covering over 85 percent of the population. Viewership surveys have shown that feature films, film based programmes and sponsored serials are popular all over the country, cutting across regional and linguistic barriers. India is the most desired satellite 'footprint' among international media moguls. The result of so many contenders in the Indian television industry has been the cutting into each others profit margin.

RAI 1, 2 & 3 controlled 48% of the Italian television market, with Canale 5 placing second with a 22% share. Mediaset, Italy's largest television producer increased its domestic television production budget to a reported $121 million, while cutting its acquisition budget by a reported 10%. With protectionist quota laws in the works, RAI may be required to invest more of its license fee revenues in domestic television production. Legislation will require RAI and Fininvest to give one each of the channels they currently own.

Video piracy is rampant in Italy, out-performing legal videos in the marketplace.

In 1996, Japan's television advertising market was worth $15.8 billion, up almost 10% over 1995. Although NHK maintains foreign programming at approximately 5%, most Japanese networks use 1% or less non-domestic product.

Almost all Japanese television ventures are preparing for direct digital satellite broadcasts. By the end of the summer, NHK, the largest broadcaster in Japan, agreed to support the digital TV standard. Digital satellite-based PerfectTV has been in operation for more than one year and boasts over 230,000 subscribers, while News Co./Fuji TV/Softbank joint venture JSkyB will not begin broadcasting until early 1998 (however, JSkyB has agreed to use the same receiver technology as PerfectTV). American company DirecTV's Japanese subsidiary expects to start broadcasting in early 1998 as well. By 1998, Japanese DTH customers can expect 300 channels of digital television.

All of the five centers of Pakistan Television Corporation Ltd. (PTV) produce and transmit color programs, including foreign films around the clock. Three centers of Shalimar Television Co., (which is a state-controlled network) are leased out to a private company, NTM, for five hours from 7 to 12 pm. The remaining time is fed by CNN live. One more channel had started but disappeared after some time. PTV also exports a good number of its programs to other countries, particularly to those where large numbers of Pakistanis and Indians live.

The main source of income for PTV are commercials and license fees of Rs.250 per year for domestic and Rs.500 per year for commercial sets. Due to heavy losses during the last three years, PTV now sells play time to private parties. All PTV programs are now telecast via satellite in 38 neighboring countries. The second channel, described as ETC or PTV2, went on the air in 1995 and is likely to be leased out to private parties. There are two studios for PTV2 at Islamabad for recording purposes, and an Academy for the training of artists and technicians.

Dish antennas have strongly affected the VCR/VCP business, as the prices of dish technology have gone down considerably—Rs. 3,000 to Rs.8,000 (the more expensive dishes cover a much larger area). A registration fee of Rs.1,000 and Rs.2,000 is imposed annually on dish antennae, but few pay. Cable operators charge between Rs. 30 and Rs. 100 per month.

There are two kinds of video shops—one deals in sales, the other in rentals only. The number of video distributors is countless, but there are about a dozen big ones, who 'import' video films from all countries except India. Their main business is Indian films and sexy pictures. Video viewers love to see films full of sex, violence and thrills. Because of strict censorship, moviegoers cannot see such films in cinemas and pirated uncensored videos are popular.

Currency fluctuations have seriously impacted the Philippine television industry, with falling ad revenues affecting the ability of the networks to acquire foreign programming. Top television shows were "TV Patrol", "Kaya ni Mr., Kaya ni Mrs.", and "Cine Fiesta", all on ABS-CBN.

The Philippines will get its own satellite broadcast service, Mabuhay Philippine Satellite by 1998.

S. Blagovolin, director general of state-owned ORT, resigned his post in September and was replaced by career journalist Kseniya Ponomarva. ORT maintains dominance in the Russian market with a 46% share. Channel 5 is to be reorganized and substantially privatized, with its new headquarters located in Moscow. It will be renamed The Culture Channel. New private broadcaster TV Center, incorporating both MTK and 2X2, began broadcasting in the summer of 1997. Private broadcaster REN-TV now claims 46 million viewers in 46 cities.

Start-up satellite broadcaster NTV-Plus claims 87,000 subscribers.

Russia has officially begun to crack down on pirate videos with anti-piracy legislation and enforcement agency RAPO. Video piracy is an estimated $300-400 million business annually, and is approximately 80% of Russia's video market.

The publicly-owned South African Broadcasting Corporation, running SABC1, SABC2 and SABC3, attempted to prosper commercially while maintaining its commitment to public broadcasting. It also received substantial aid through a government grant. Purchasing the rights to foreign shows is currently cheaper than starting up domestic production, so American television is popular with programmers. However, a government mandate requires SABC to broadcast 50% domestically produced material and SABC's new channel to broadcast 20% domestic material.

The average number of viewers was highest for SABC1 (formerly CCV), with an average of 4.25 million viewers of both sexes, and with most viewers primarily Nguni speakers. SABC2 (TV1) comes in second, with 3 million female viewers and 2.75 million male viewers, with most viewers Sotho speakers. SABC3 (NNTV) came in a distant third with less than one quarter of a million viewers, mostly English-speaking. Afrikaans language broadcasts are represented far less.

M-Net, founded in 1986 as a private subscription broadcaster and partly owned by the Dutch NetHold conglomerate, currently is available via satellite and rebroadcast to most of the African continent, including Lesotho, Swaziland, Namibia, Botswana, Malawi, Zimbabwe, Zambia, Uganda, Tanzania, Cameroon, Kenya, the Ivory Coast, Ghana, Nigeria and Egypt. Programming is basically movies. However, sports programming is available on SuperSport and children's programming on K-TV. M-Net's Community Services Network programs for the diverse ethnic and religious communities throughout Africa.

TVE1 held down a quarter of Spain's television market, Antena 3 boasted 23% and Tele 5 came in third with a 22% share. Top television shows were "Family Doctor" from Tele 5, TVE1's "Los Morancos Special", "Royal Manzanares Hospital" and "Heaven Isn't a Color", and "National Parody" from Antena 3. TVE broadcasts Spanish programming to over 10 million viewers in Europe and over 7 million viewers in Latin America. In July of 1997, the Spanish telephone company Telefonica bought Antena 3.

The conservative Populist Party government of Spain was accused by the Socialist Party of favoring the Via Digital digital satellite over its competitor CSD. CSD, a subsidiary of Sogocable, reported 125,000 subscribers by September of 1997. Via Digital was scheduled to start broadcasting in September of 1997. The government initially attempted to ban CSD's decoder, claiming its non-compatibility with the forthcoming Via Digital decoder. The government also reportedly attempted to restrict CSD executives' travel out of the country. In addition, the government levied a massive 16% VAT tax on pay-TV services. By October 1997, the government had ruled that all satellite broadcasters must use the Via Digital decryption standard, forcing CSD to replace existing decoder boxes for its customers.

The video market in Spain has recovered from its bruising competition with illegal broadcasters, with an estimated $250 million in video rental spending and $381 million in sell-through.
