THE NETWORKS

Reality. Not a word one usually associates with the entertainment industry, but this was the year in which Reality TV made its mark. Not that close observers didn't see it coming. Years of afternoon talk-shows, "Cops" and car chases certainly signalled the public's appetite for something other than sitcoms and glitzy dramas, and CBS was first out of the gate with its blockbuster, "Survivor." Tiki torches and tribal meetings were the source of endless chatter around the water-cooler during the usually arid summer re-run season as "Survivor" brought down the house from its 15 million viewer debut to its 51.7 million viewer finale. Gambling on not one but two reality shows, CBS also introduced "Big Brother" in mid-summer. Although its ratings were half those of "Survivor," the "Big Brother" website extended its reach far beyond the television audience. AOL reported spikes in online activity after each Wednesday night episode as people logged on to watch the 24 hour streaming-video from the "Big Brother" house. CBS plans "Survivor 2: The Australian Outback" for 2001. The first episode will air after the Superbowl in what is sure to be a season winning combination for CBS.

Thanks to "Survivor" and "Big Brother," CBS' median primetime age has dropped three years. Amid concerns that CBS would alienate its older, core audience with reality programming, CBS President & CEO Leslie Moonves was quick to point out that reality is only a small portion of the network's fare, with programs like "60 Minutes," "JAG," "Judging Amy" and "Diagnosis Murder" anchoring the lineup.

ABC came out on top for the year thanks to its smash hit, "Who Wants to Be a Millionaire." The game-show's Tuesday, Thursday and Sunday episodes pulled in 29, 26 and 25 shares respectively taking the top three Nielsen spots for the season. Based on the success of "Millionaire," ABC introduced just four new shows for the fall season, its smallest number to date. ABC has also scheduled a fourth night of "Millionaire" either complementing or killing the other three nights, depending on whom you ask. Many analysts believe that "Millionaire" only has one good season left. In line with that thinking, ABC and Disney might as well take as much profit as they can from the series, betting that one extra night will not bring down the curtain any faster. ABC is already seeing ratings erosion with "Millionaire" dropping 21% in October, and has replacement programs starring Damon Wayans and Dennis Leary ready should "Millionaire" fall apart. Keeping CBS' "Survivor" in mind, ABC has jumped on the bandwagon with the Stone-Stanley produced "The Mole." This latest twist on the reality genre has contestants competing against each other and an unknown traitor in their midst.

NBC had a less welcome dose of reality in late summer. The Sydney Olympics—which cost NBC almost a billion dollars for TV rights, personnel and equipment—were projected to receive an average 18-19 primetime rating. The actual average proved to be 13.8 with a 24 share, 36% lower than the Atlanta games and a disappointment for advertisers who spent $600,000 for a prime-time spot. Various reasons for the poor viewership were cited, including the tape-delay that made it possible to get real-time Olympic results everywhere but NBC. In an effort to boost ratings, NBC executives demanded that Nielsen exclude the first half-hour of the Olympics' primetime broadcast (7:00-7:30) from its calculations. That gambit did bring up numbers somewhat, but the whole event proved to be costly and, at times, embarrassing. NBC has four more Olympics in its $3.6 billion dollar rights contract that runs through 2008.

Coming in third for the year, NBC's problems did not begin or end with the Olympics. Since NBC lost its fabled Thursday night line-up with the departure of "Seinfeld" two years ago, things just haven't been the same. Must-see TV took on an air of desperation as NBC's viewers defected to other networks. In May, several of the shows from NBC's fall 2000 lineup were panned by critics. After some retooling and a much needed boost from the Emmy Awards, NBC looked like it was on the road to recovery, even planning a future bid for reality ratings with "Destination: Mir." The show, slated for 2001-02, planned to follow contestants as they underwent intensive cosmonaut training in the hope of winning the chance to visit the orbiting space station. There is little doubt that a reality show in space would have put NBC back on top, however the Russian cabinet had concerns other than TV ratings when it announced that Mir would be ditched into the Pacific Ocean in February, 2001. Ever the best laid plans.

Then there's the XFL. A made for television football league created by NBC and World Wrestling Federation Entertainment, XFL executives describe the rougher, tougher game as "smash-mouth football." Set to kick-off on February 3rd, 2001, the XFL has told advertisers it expects to average a 5.5 rating for NBC Saturday night games. The Paramount Network will carry the Sunday night games and the restyled Viacom-owned TNN will offer Sunday afternoon games. NBC and the WWF are hoping that the XFL will pick up where the NFL leaves off each year, filling the gridiron void for 18-49 year old men.

In spite of NBC's ratings woes, its retooled fall lineup was winning the November sweeps when the Presidential election became the hottest show in town. On election night, in what was already one of the closest races in history, ABC, CBS, NBC, FOX and CNN gave Florida to Gore, later withdrawing it and putting it in the Bush column signalling a win for the Texas Governor. Then, realizing that the polls in the Western Panhandle region of the state were still open—accounting for 5% percent of the vote in a race measured in tenths—the networks retracted their second announcement, declaring Florida "too close to call."

The networks were all using data tabulated by Voter News Service, a consortium funded by the news networks and the Associated Press. While no one has yet constructed a scenario that fully explains what went wrong, the most likely culprit was competition as the networks vied to offer viewers the most compelling story. As the election itself dragged on into the middle of December, one thing was clear: the credibility of network news was seriously damaged when accuracy took a backseat to the scramble for ratings.

Over at Fox, executives were licking their wounds in 2000. New series "Action" and "Ryan Caulfield" were high profile failures while old-faithful "Beverly Hills 90210" finally creaked to a halt before its formerly youthful stars were eligible for social security. Programming head Doug Herzog left the network and ratings slid 16% for the prized 18-49 demographic, Fox's bread and butter. With new entertainment president Gail Berman at the helm, Fox brought in "Titus" and "Malcolm in the Middle" which showed promise late in the season. The 2000-01 lineup is chock-full of starpower, including David E. Kelley's "Boston Public," James Cameron's "Dark Angel" and Darren Star's "The Street" all of which have tough timeslot competition from the other networks.

The news wasn't good at the WB in 2000 as the network lost WGN-TV's cable distribution and saw viewership decline. The 2000-01 season may signal a rebound with six new programs including ABC's "Sabrina, The Teenage Witch" and Fox's "The PJs" as the WB continues to focus on comedies rather than reality as a way to differentiate itself. Returning shows include "Felicity," "Buffy the Vampire Slayer," and "Dawson's Creek." The WB is relying heavily on these returning programs and any decline in their ratings could hurt the network's chances at making a full recovery. As it is, the anticipated date for the network to break even has been pushed back one year to the 2001-02 season.

UPN's brush with reality came when, as a result of its merger with CBS, Viacom was required to sell its UPN stations. News Corp. is buying Chris-Craft, whose UPN affiliates will likely be turned into either a second Fox network or absorbed into the existing Fox family. In the meantime, UPN has changed its name to The Paramount Network to reflect its new, sole ownership (the "U" being from Chris-Craft/United). The uncertainty and struggle over ownership couldn't come at a worse time. The network had a strong ratings season with a 43% increase in viewers. For 2000-01, The Paramount Network has added new action and comedy series including ABC's "The Hughleys" and is still making ratings with Vince McMahon's "WWF Smackdown."

The last of the networks, Pax, has a new strategy for the 2000-01 season. In the past, Pax has only aired off-network dramas like "Touched By An Angel" and "Dr. Quinn, Medicine Woman" in primetime, but is now spending over $100 million on programming for original dramas and series for the nightly 8 p.m. timeslot. With 81% coverage, Pax is just over the 1.0 national-rating hurdle and is hoping that their new original programs as well as repurposed NBC content will help them to grow.

CABLE, DBS & WIRELESS

1999-2000 proved to be a time of growth for cable with increased subscriber penetration, higher advertising revenues and channel expansion. In 1999, the entire sector, including MSOs, DBS providers, premium, basic and pay-per-view companies, rose 11.9% to $57 billion in revenues. Cable providers accounted for 75% of the total, with DBS providers the fastest growing area, showing growth of 16% in 1999. Cable companies made substantial investments in facilities and infrastructure totalling almost $11 billion in 1999. Estimates now show that 82% of cable homes are now passed by at least 550MHz systems and 65% of cable homes passed by 750MHz or higher, positioning cable to compete with satellite providers offering more than 100 channels. There has also been an increase in two-way systems, currently 68% of all cable homes, which allow for telephony and interactive online services. Digital cable has made significant inroads, with the number of digital service customers expected to exceed 10 million homes by the end of 2000.

Cable programming reached new highs in the past year with the cable networks investing over $8 billion in 2000. HBO's "The Sopranos" received 16 Emmy nominations and the network won more Emmy awards than any broadcast network.

The continuing investments in infrastructure and programming have also yielded more cable networks, 215 in all, devoted to specific interests and demographics. This trend is likely to continue as cable system operators upgrade their systems and subscribers increasingly turn to digital or DBS, allowing them access to more channels and programming. Whether or not this is too much of a good thing remains to be seen, as bass-fishermen, sous-chefs and astrophysicists line up for their own channels.

Mergers and their aftermath were key issues in 2000. As the year came to a close, the AOL-Time Warner saga continued. Corporate rivals and industry groups tried to convince regulators to apply conditions to the merger that would prevent the AOL-Time Warner's ability to favor their own TV programming and Internet content on their high-speed cable systems. The NAB specifically asked the FCC to demand that Time Warner carry all free over-the-air signals of local stations and that Time Warner not block electronic program guides and other supplemental services that broadcasters offer without cost. SBC demanded that Time Warner rid itself of its 45% stake in Road Runner. The Media Access Project wanted AOL-Time Warner to carry all Internet Service Providers on the same financial terms. Disney, one of the most vehement critics of the merger, stated concerns about discrimination against Disney content with some precedent: in May of 2000, Time Warner's cable systems imposed a 36-hour blackout of the Disney-owned ABC network when the two sides were temporarily unable to reach a deal for continued carriage. And then there's AOL's investment in DirecTV... The merger is a test-case for the marriage of entertainment with the web, and it's off to a rocky start.

AT&T, which owns 25% of Time Warner Entertainment, had merger woes of its own. When AT&T acquired TCI in 1998 and MediaOne in 1999, it set up AT&T Broadband, the largest cable provider in the U.S. with 15 million subscribers. C. Michael Armstrong, the CEO of AT&T, had a plan to create a one-stop shop for cable, wireless, internet and long-distance that has cost the company a fortune and slowly gone awry. After pressure from Liberty Media's John Malone (who owns a .86% stake in the company) and shareholders, Armstrong announced that AT&T would break up into four separate companies: AT&T Consumer, AT&T Broadband, AT&T Wireless and AT&T Business. Two weeks after the break-up, Armstrong announced that Liberty Media would be spun off completely, severing all ties to parent AT&T. Whether the move was designed to meet the 30% limit in cable holdings imposed by the FCC to finalize its MediaOne acquisition or the recent and rather public lack of support by John Malone, it seems that Liberty will certainly profit from the arrangement. Due to receive $800 million in cash, Liberty's greatest boost will be in separating itself from the ailing phone giant. In recent months, Liberty had, in essence, aligned itself with News Corp. by agreeing to a stock and asset swap in which Liberty will swap its Gemstar-TV Guide International stake for an 18% interest in News Corp. and a 4.76% pre-IPO interest in Sky Global Networks.

VIDEO

In the much less complicated world of video, Blockbuster retains its status as the top retail chain. Blockbuster has about 5,000 company owned or franchised outlets in the U.S. and another 2,300 in 25 foreign countries. The company rents more than a billion DVDs, videos and games at its retail stores annually, operates Blockbuster.com and has marketing partnerships with AOL and DirecTV. Viacom, Blockbuster's owner, had planned to spin-off its 82% share of the company to its stockholders but their efforts have been thwarted by a stock price that just won't hit $20. Hollywood Entertainment, with 1,800 national outlets, is the nation's second largest video chain. In 2000, Hollywood closed down its online movie outlet, Reel.com, which was unable to obtain outside financing to keep it afloat during the e-commerce shake-out. Hollywood was losing $5 million per month trying to maintain the ailing online business, and with its retail operation profits up 40%, closing Reel.com made more financial sense. The nation's third video retailer, Video Gallery, has some catching up to do with 960 stores, mostly in rural and secondary markets in the Eastern U.S. Regardless of rank or location, the sector as a whole has been hurt by mass merchants (WalMart, K-Mart) and online competition.

DIGITAL TV

Will the revolution be televised? Digital Television and its future is looking murkier every day. The FCC expects the majority of the 1700 TV stations in the U.S. to transmit digital signals by 2002 and to return their analog spectrum by 2006. There is little doubt that broadcasters will eventually have to comply with the FCC's mandate for a transition to digital, but a survey of station owners showed that 70% favor a delay in the rollout schedule. Digital signals currently reach about 62% of U.S. TV households, with only 126 digital stations on the air. Of those 126 stations, 90% are in the top 50 markets. FCC Chairman William Kennard is bewildered by the resistance to DTV, stating, "Industries that compete against broadcasting are charging ahead and starting to deploy digital products—the satellite and cable industries are there. I don't want...to leave the broadcast industry in the digital dark ages."

In spite of Kennard's enthusiasm, the broadcast industry is unnerved by still unresolved issues. The principal sticking point continues to be the 8-VSB standard created by the Advanced Television Standards Committee. In June, 2000, ABC joined NBC in filing a complaint with the FCC in which they warn that the 8-VSB system provides poor indoor reception. The Advanced Television Standards Committee and the FCC are counting on DTV receiver manufacturers, particularly Zenith, the patent holder for the 8-VSB system, to correct the reception problem. ABC and NBC are testing the European COFDM modulation standard as an alternative.

In addition to the technical issues, many stations have neither the capitol nor the means to repay borrowed funds needed to build DTV transmission facilities. One way to recoup the expenses would be datacasting. The 1997 law that granted stations a second channel to launch DTV also permits them to earn revenue from datacasting or other ancillary services. However, this too is now in doubt. Commerce Committee Chairman Thomas Bliley suggested that broadcasters be required to buy their non-HDTV spectrum at prices comparable to those fetched at auction. He went on to say that it would be unfair for broadcasters to use the part of the digital spectrum that they obtained for free to compete with wireless communications companies that paid for theirs. As if this weren't enough, the right of broadcasters to demand that cable carry digital signals during the transition from analog is still unresolved.

The government delayed the first planned auction of returned spectrum in June 2000, stating that assigning a value to the spectrum would, at this point, be arbitrary as its full value is not yet known. When the auction does occur, it is likely that the bidders will be large telecommunications companies like Verizon and GTE. The final hitch in the DTV plan seems to be the Hollywood connection. Motion picture studios are reluctant to allow their films to be broadcast in high definition as the current sets do not have adequate protection safeguards against piracy. The long and the short of the DTV dilemma is that everyone—the FCC, the broadcasters, electronics manufacturers and Hollywood—is trying to protect their investments. The DTV revolution is big business; no one knows yet just how big that business is or when and how they will profit.

TELEVISION STATIONS

Stations are presented alphabetically by state, city and call letters. Stations are listed in the state and city in which they are licensed to broadcast. While most broadcasters maintain offices in the market they service, many stations are operated by corporations headquartered in other locales. In such cases, broadcast markets are indicated within the parentheses. Satellite stations' listings will refer the reader to the parent station's listing. Where applicable, station managers' names can be found at the end of each entry.

CORPORATE HISTORIES OF THE NETWORKS

ABC, INC. (AMERICAN BROADCASTING SYSTEM, INC.)

ABC's predecessor, the Radio Corporation of America (RCA) owned two radio networks, the Blue and the Red. In 1941, the FCC decreed that the same company could not own two networks, so RCA incorporated the Blue under the name of American Broadcasting System and established it as an independent subsidiary. RCA then sold this network to Edward J. Noble, and in 1944, the name was changed to the American Broadcasting Company. ABC's first television broadcast was on April 19, 1948 with "On the Corner". Later in the year, ABC scored two "firsts": the live broadcast of an opera (Verdi's "Otello") from the Metropolitan Opera House in New York and a TV documentary, "The Marshall Plan." ABC merged with United Paramount Theatres in 1952. This merger was engineered by Leonard H. Goldenson, then the president of UPT. The new company was called American Broadcasting-Paramount Theatres, Inc. During the 1950's, ABC began to operate at a profit although it had to struggle fiercely to acquire new affiliates. In 1954, ABC made a deal with Walt Disney to acquire a 35% interest in Disneyland and all TV programs produced by Disney. The following year, ABC signed an exclusive rights contract with Warner Bros. for TV programming.

In the Fall of 1962, ABC introduced color programming for the fall season which was expanded in 1966 to include full color broadcasting. In 1965, AB-PT's name was changed to American Broadcasting Companies, Inc. The 1960's also introduced blockbuster theatrical movies to TV with spectacular rating results when "The Bridge on the River Kwai" was viewed (in 1966) by 60 million Americans. In 1967, the ABC evening news was expanded from 15 minutes to a half-hour, and Joey Bishop inaugurated ABC's late-night talk show programming.

In 1972, ABC was able to operate at a profit for the first time in ten years. In the 1976-77 season, ABC took first place in the ratings race for the first time. In 1976, Barbara Walters joined ABC, becoming the first anchorwoman in television history. The mini-series "Roots" appeared on ABC in 1977 and became the highest-rated program of all time. This helped immensely in the ratings race, and credit must go in large part to Fred Silverman who, two years before, had joined the company as president of ABC International. He left in 1978 to go to NBC.

The decade of the Eighties was a turbulent one for the networks as cable and home video began whittling away their audiences. In 1985, ABC agreed to be purchased by Capital Cities Communications. The merged company's name was changed to Capital Cities/ABC, Inc. ABC held second place in the ratings from 1979 to 1983 when it dropped to third position. It was unable to rise from third until 1987-88 when it displaced CBS in second place, primarily because of the World Series and the Superbowl. It remained second in 1988-89 and 1989-90. In the latter season, ABC had the distinction of broadcasting the most talked-about new series of the period, "Twin Peaks," and the highest-rated new series, "America's Funniest Home Videos."

Daniel B. Burke replaced Frederick J. Pierce as president and chief operating officer. There were also sweeping reductions in personnel in the interests of economy and streamlining. Budget cuts notwithstanding, Capital Cities/ABC chairman Thomas Murphy pledged ABC would not scrimp on programming.

Profits at the end of 1990 rose about $70 million. Of the three networks, ABC won the ratings battle in news coverage of the war in the Persian Gulf. For two seasons in a row the network could boast having the only new series in the top ten: "America's Funniest People" (1990-91) and "Home Improvement" (1991-92). Capital Cities/ABC is a partner in ESPN, the highly successful cable TV sports channel and two other cable TV services—Arts & Entertainment and Lifetime. ABC was the only network in the 1992-93 season to gain ground, moving into second place behind CBS, from its previous third place standing. During the season, Robert A. Iger became the new network president. The network was the first to sign a deal with a cable operator (in this case Continental Cablevision) allowing its stations to be carried on cable without paying a fee. In 1994, the company signed an affiliation deal with E.W. Scripps Company to switch several of their stations over to ABC.

The big event of 1995 was the $19 billion acquisition of Capital Cities/ABC by the Walt Disney Company, said to be the second largest corporate takeover in history. In 1997, Ted Harbert resigned as entertainment chairman of ABC after 20 years with the network. At the end of the 1996-97 season, "Roseanne", one of ABC's sitcom staples, was discontinued after nine years on the air. The producers of ABC's "Home Improvement" sued the program's distributor, Walt Disney, alleging that a $3 million per episode renewal was in essence a sweetheart deal benefitting Disney. A lawsuit against the ABC news program Prime Time Live by the supermarket chain Food Lion for trespass, fraud and breach of fiduciary duty was decided in favor of the supermarket by a North Carolina jury. Producers for the evening news magazine were hired undercover as clerks by the chain in order to expose the sales of spoiled food and unsanitary food handling practices by Food Lion, which did not dispute the findings of the investigative report, but instead claimed that the practice of sending in undercover reporters constituted fraud.

ABC's ratings soared when it broke the news in January 1998, that sex-allegations were made by intern Monica Lewinsky involving President Clinton. Apparently continuing a trend started by the O.J. Simpson trial & elevated by the death of Princess Diana in September 1997, news proved very successful in attracting viewers. Despite its brief victory in the ratings war, the network was scheduled to go through a complete transformation for the 1998-99 season, after losing its number two slot among 18-49 year olds, to Fox. For the new season, the network was to introduce remakes of old shows such as "The Mary Tyler Moore Show" and "Fantasy Island," have "Sports Night" for male viewers, and air about 20 made for tv movies and miniseries.

ABC finished third in the 1998-1999 ratings war, in spite of their relentless self-promotion and critical acclaim for new shows like "Sports Night." With the 1999 departure of the embattled Jamie Tarses, it remains to be seen whether ABC's next programmer is able to resurrect the network's ratings. ABC's only blue-chip program is Monday Night Football for which Disney paid the NFL $9.2 billion through the year 2005. In July, 1999, in an effort to reduce programming expenses, Disney combined ABC with Disney's television-production studio in order to slot more shows made by Disney onto ABC's prime-time schedule.

In the 1999-2000 season, ABC hit the jackpot with its American spinoff of the British "Who Wants to Be A Millionaire." For the season ending May 24, "Millionaire" took the top three spots in the ratings with its Tuesday, Thursday and Sunday programs, garnering a 29, 26 and 25 share respectively.

Although the 2000-2001 season is just getting underway, it seems the "Millionaire's" popularity has waned somewhat. Through November 5th, 2000, the show is averaging a 20 share, a significant drop. ABC is depending on the show to anchor its programming and generate revenue. With spring upfront ad sales estimated at $1.2 billion, about half of ABC's revenue, it's a sure bet that ABC executives and advertisers have their fingers crossed.

CBS

(COLUMBIA BROADCASTING SYSTEM, INC.)

CBS began in 1927 as a radio network with 16 stations, United Independent Broadcasters, Inc., founded by Arthur Judson, a concert tour manager and backed by Louis Sterling, president of the Columbia Phonograph Company. Later other investors were invited in, the most prominent of whom was William S. Paley. On September 26, 1928, at the age of 27, Paley became president of the firm whose name was changed to the Columbia Broadcasting System. Paley introduced many innovations to radio broadcasting, the most significant of which was the signing of an agreement in 1931 with Paramount Pictures whereby film stars were heard on radio for the first time. This laid the groundwork for the CBS policy in television from the outset to feature shows built around stars (Ed Sullivan, Lucille Ball, Arthur Godfrey, Jack Benny, Burns & Allen, Garry Moore, etc.).

CBS was in TV as early as 1931 when it began regularly scheduled TV programming over experimental station W2XAB in New York City. In 1941, CBS began weekly broadcasts of black-and-white TV programming over WCBS-TV in New York. By 1948, it had 30 affiliated stations.

In 1951, CBS broadcast the first live coast-to-coast TV transmission between New York and San Francisco. 1951 was also the year that Bill Gordon designed the CBS Eye which was destined to become one of the most famous logos in the world.

In 1952, CBS opened Television City in Hollywood—the industry's first self-contained TV production facility. "Playhouse 90" made its debut in 1956, but the big event of the decade was the 1951 debut of "I Love Lucy", a series regarded as the progenitor of the situation-comedy. In the field of soap operas, CBS was both leader and winner, virtually monopolizing that market from 1951 to 1956. In 1951, it introduced "Search for Tomorrow," which was to become the longest-running show in that genre. This was followed by "Love of Life" (1951) and "The Guiding Light" (1952), both overnight hits.

In the late '50s and through the 60's and 70's, CBS reigned as king of prime time ratings, maintaining its long-running lead with such successes as "Gunsmoke" (1957), "The Defenders" (1961), "The Beverly Hillbillies" (1962), "All in the Family" (1972) and "Dallas" (1978). Also helping was "60 Minutes" the news-oriented show which, by 1995, had remained in the Top Ten prime time shows for 18 consecutive seasons.

CBS began the turbulent Eighties with a new president, Thomas Wyman (replacing John D. Backe).

In 1985, Ted Turner made an unfriendly bid for CBS, forcing the network to buy up 21% of its own stock to thwart the takeover. Laurence A. Tisch, a former theatre chain executive, had become the major stockholder in CBS when, in 1986, he instigated sweeping changes in the interests of cost-cutting and efficiency. 700 jobs were eliminated at the CBS Broadcast Group. Tisch also removed Wyman as president, named himself chief executive officer and induced founder William Paley to return to active duty as acting chairman of the board. It was quite a jolt to the company when, in 1985-86, it slipped to second place and stayed there through the following season. In 1987-88, CBS came in third for the first time in TV history. In 1988, Tisch shuffled executive ranks again, naming Howard Stringer, previously president of CBS News, president of the Broadcasting Group. The network's new management team sought to devise a strategy to pull the network out of its decline in the prime-time ratings. Jeff Sagansky, former head of Tri-Star Pictures, was brought in as president of the entertainment division in 1990.

Starting in 1991-92, CBS became the number one network for three years in a row based on the success of such shows as "60 Minutes" (the number one show for both '91-'92 and '92-'93), "Murphy Brown," "Murder She Wrote," and "Northern Exposure." CBS was hit hard by Fox's 1994 purchase of twelve stations from New World Communications, losing eight affiliates.

However, the following summer, Westinghouse Electric Corp. acquired the final independent network for $5.4 billion creating the largest collection of tv and radio stations in America. The 1994-95 season was a low point for the network as it plunged from number one to number three. By season's end, CBS had the dubious distinction of being the first of the three majors to fall into 4th place, coming in below Fox for the last week before the debut of the 1995-96 season. In late 1995, the venerable news program "60 Minutes" and CBS came under fire for refusing to air a controversial segment on the tobacco industry. Critics of CBS alleged that the network capitulated to the threat of legal action, rather than actual litigation. During this season the network placed third again. In 1997 CBS station group president Peter Lund was replaced by CBS radio president, Mel Karmazin.

Continuing the unpleasant trend of the last several years, CBS continued to lose viewers in all the age groups but the 60+. In the middle of 1998, Mel Karmazin made public the restructuring of CBS. Because of the network's failure to turn a profit, the radio and billboard companies which account for 60% of CBS' profits, were to be transferred into Infinity, thereby making the TV operations easier to sell, if need be. Infinity Broadcasting was sold by Karmazin to CBS in 1996 after trying to buy the Eye's radio stations himself. Two years later, the company is several times its former size, and it will have the cash to grow even more as a result of the CBS deal. Although the CBS president denied considering a TV sale, others have admitted that the sale has not been ruled out. Because of the network's questionable future, president & CEO of CBS TV, Leslie Moonves, was pressured to deliver successful primetime programming for the 1998-99 season. With the end of expensive shows such as "Cybill" and "Murphy Brown," Karmazin announced that the fall's lineup was considerably less costly than the previous year's. And, with shows such as "King of Queens" and "L.A. Docs" scheduled for the fall, analysts foresaw the possible resurrection of CBS.

In 1999, CBS merged with Viacom. Viacom paid $37 billion in stock for the network, making the combined company the third largest media group in the U.S. Mel Karmazin will become the President & COO of Viacom under Chairman, Sumner Redstone.

CBS came in first in the 1998-99 ratings war, but still has a viewing demographic older than the 18-49 year old group prized by advertisers. Many of its new shows, however, should attract a younger audience. CBS renewed its contract for men's NCAA basketball, securing the lucrative franchise through 2013.

In the 1999-2000 season, CBS edged out NBC for second place in the ratings war. Attracting younger viewers with programs like overnight sensation Survivor and the somewhat less popular Big Brother.

FOX BROADCASTING COMPANY

Fox Broadcasting, a subsidiary of Rupert Murdoch's News Company and owner of Twentieth Century-Fox, began broadcasting with the late night "Late Show with Joan Rivers" on October 9, 1986. The next year, on April 5, 1987, the fledgling network began primetime broadcasts on Sunday nights only. The initial lineup consisted of "Married With Children" and "The Tracey Ullman Show", which featured animated interludes of a dysfunctional cartoon family named the Simpsons. Three new shows were added in the following weeks, including "21 Jump Street", which helped launch the career of actor Johnny Depp. In July of that year, Fox launched a Saturday night prime time line up. From 1989 to 1993, the network steadily added programming and expanded its prime time coverage to a full seven nights a week. Originally the network aimed its programming at a young urban demographic. Particular attention was given to African-American oriented programming, with comedy series such as "Roc", "Martin", "Living Single" and "In Living Color" (a weekly comedy-variety show which showcased not only the talents of Keenan Ivory Wayans and his brother Damon Wayans, but also comedian Jim Carrey). The youth market was provided with its first soap opera with "Beverly Hills 90210", and its successful spin-off "Melrose Place". Fox consistently programmed "risky" shows, even in the face of boycotts, most notably aimed at "Married With Children" and "Beverly Hills 90210". The network, feeling strong about its programming, slotted "The Simpsons" against NBC's top-rated sitcom "The Cosby Show" in 1991.

The network was also actively pursuing sports programming. In 1993, Fox won the rights to NFL football for four years, including the rights to 1997's Super Bowl XXXI. In 1994, Fox acquired the rights to broadcast NHL hockey and in 1995, Fox signed an agreement with Major League Baseball to broadcast weekly games, the 1996, 1998 and 2000 World Series, and 1997 and 1999 All Star Games.

1994 saw the creation of FX Networks. In June, FX, a general entertainment basic cable network was launched, featuring marquee sports events, series and films. In October, fXM (Movies From Fox) was initiated to show Twentieth Century Fox films unedited and commercial free.

Also in 1994, Fox premiered "The X-Files", a fiction series dedicated to exploring the bizarre, the unusual and the paranormal, all with a slant aimed at conspiracy buffs. It took a season to achieve ratings success, but "The X-Files" has become one of the most popular series on Fox and is fast becoming the most imitated series on television. All of these programming decisions and experiments have paid off. In the 1994-95 broadcast season Nielsen ratings, Fox finished ahead of pioneer network CBS. Fox beat CBS yet again in November 1995. On October 7, 1996, Fox launched the new Fox News Channel on cable.

With the appointment of Richard Cronin as president and CEO of the Fox Kids Broadcast network and Fox Family Channel, Fox will be targeting young viewers with "quirky" programs. In its effort to increase its viewership by attracting young people, Fox hopes to also increase the number of older adults, watching along with the children. For the 1998-99 season, Fox moved up its primetime slot on the Fox Family channel, to begin at 6:00 p.m. instead of 8:00 p.m., and introduced four new dramas and two comedies, catering to the age group Fox is relying on to push its ratings up.

Fox continues to be the only network showing any real growth and continued its youth oriented programming—the recipe for its past success—in the 1999-2000 season. But with the X-Files in its last season and several shows being dropped from its primetime lineup, the mid-season replacement will have to be attractive in order for Fox to hold at fourth place.

In 2000, Doug Herzog resigned as Fox entertainment president and his duties were assumed by Sandy Grushnow. Fox cancelled the aging show "Beverly Hills 90210" for the 2000-2001 season, and is relying on David E. Kelley's "Boston Public" and a slate of new shows aimed at the key 18-35 demographic and a lock on Major League baseball for $2.5 billion, starting with the 2001 season.

News Corp. agreed to buy the Chris-Craft station group squeezing out UPN, and Rupert Murdoch has said that a Fox 2 network is under consideration. Whether or not a Fox 2 Network is unveiled, it is certain that there will be no more "Who Wants to Marry A Millionaire" specials after the Darva Conger and Rick Rockwell debacle that left the network shame-faced and reeling.

NBC, INC.

(NATIONAL BROADCASTING COMPANY, INC.)

NBC was an outgrowth of Radio Corp. of America, General Electric and Westinghouse. These three companies jointly launched a network in 1926 with 31 stations; 25 in a network called Red and 6 in a network called Blue. A year later, it was forced to sell the Blue network to ABC, keeping for itself the one known as Red. Television began for NBC in 1928, when on April 4, it acquired from the FCC a permit to operate an experimental station, W2XBS. Actual transmission from the Empire State Building did not begin until October 30, 1931. Eight years later, the network began broadcasting on a regular basis, beginning with the opening of the New York World's Fair on April 30, 1939.

NBC became a TV network on January 12, 1940, when two stations, WNBC-TV, New York, and WRGB-TV, Schenectady, New York, carried the first network programming. In June, 1941, the FCC granted NBC the first commercial TV license and a month later it had four advertisers signed up. After World War II, NBC scored two big "firsts." On June 19, 1946, Gillette became the first advertiser to sponsor a TV network show, the Joe Louis-Billy Conn boxing match. That same year, Bristol-Myers became the first sponsor of a network TV series, "Geographically Speaking." NBC can also claim to be the first to introduce coast-to-coast network TV coverage. On September 4, 1951, when the U.S.—Japanese peace treaty was signed in San Francisco, NBC cameras were on hand. In 1952, NBC pioneered early morning programming when it introduced "The Today Show." NBC can also claim the first regularly scheduled network color series "The Marriage," launched in 1954. That same year it achieved the first west-to-east TV transmission with the telecast of the Tournament of Roses Parade in color.

At the start of the 1965-66 season, NBC declared it was the "only all-color network." In 1968, NBC introduced new forms of TV programming with "The Name of the Game," a series that incorporated feature-film elements into a 90-minute show. This then spawned the "NBC Mystery Movie."

In 1972, NBC broke new ground again when it introduced "The Tomorrow Show" shown from 1:00 a.m. to 2:00 a.m. This was a talk program and it demonstrated that in the early hours of the morning something more than re-runs and old movies could be shown. In 1974, another late-night show called "Weekend" was begun. The 1976 NBC telecast of "Gone with the Wind" drew the largest audience to that date for an entertainment program. In 1978, "Holocaust" attracted 107 million viewers and won 21 major awards. Such programs helped NBC in the ratings, but in 1976-77 it fell to third place, where it stayed until 1983-84.

Along with the other networks, NBC moved into a period of turmoil during the decade of the Eighties, fighting off rising costs and competition from cable TV and home video. In 1986, General Electric Corporation purchased RCA (NBC's parent) for $6.28 billion; GE, it will be remembered, helped launch the radio network in 1926 which led to the development of NBC-TV. This brought personnel changes led by the replacement of Grant A. Tinker as NBC chief executive officer by Robert Wright, although Wright was not given Tinker's chairman title, that being taken by John F. Welch of GE. Instead, Wright was named president as well as chief executive officer. Along with its competition, NBC started cutting staff and budgets in 1986. In 1984-85, NBC edged up to second place, and the following year it was ranked number one in prime-time viewing for the first time in the three decades of Nielsen ratings.

NBC held on to its first place standing for the following five seasons, through 1990-91. Long-time hit series in the five-year period included "The Golden Girls," "Cheers," and "The Cosby Show." Despite the network's number one standing, figures showed a steady decline in viewers. In May of 1991, Brandon Tartikoff, credited with pulling the network up from third place 11 years earlier, departed from NBC to become head of Paramount Pictures. When "The Cosby Show" ran its final first run episode on April 30, 1992, it became NBC's highest-rated series finale episode ever. The 1992 Summer Olympics also gave the network its widest ratings margin of all time. The 1994-95 season found NBC on top with its popular sitcom "Seinfeld" and the two most highly rated new series, "ER" and "Friends", both placing in the top ten. During the 1995-96 season, NBC was again ranked the number one network, with four of its Thursday night shows ranking in the overall top five. In the summer of 1996, NBC, in association with software giant Microsoft, launched a 24 hour cable and Internet news channel.

In October 1997 the networks adopted an updated "voluntary" ratings system that uses the letters S, V, D, L, SV, which stand for sex, violence, suggestive dialogue, strong language and non-comedic fantasy violence in addition to the age rating. Only NBC and Black Entertainment Television refused to use the new system. Despite pressure from the White House, Congress and advocacy groups, the network had said that the ratings tread on its First Amendment right, and that there was no public outcry for the new system.

With its star show "Seinfeld" going off the air, NBC was faced in 1999 with the seemingly impossible task of finding a replacement. The network did manage to keep "ER" its other highly successful show, albeit at a draining cost of $13 million per episode. Keeping in line with the demand for news television, NBC's Dateline showed 6 1/2 hrs. of programming about Princess Diana and her fatal accident.

In mid-1999, NBC had to ante up again to keep a hit show. The contract for "Friends" was renewed through 2002 at a cost of approximately $5 million per episode. In spite of NBC's attempts to rally after the loss of Seinfeld, the network slipped to second place behind CBS in 1999. Ratings for the new primetime shows do not look promising and it may take another hit of the magnitude of "Seinfeld" to bring "Must See TV" back into American homes.

NBC had a tough year in 1999-2000, coming in third for the season. Perhaps worse than the ratings tumble were the embarrassing numbers during the Sydney Olympics. Various reasons for the poor viewership were cited, including the tape-delay that made it possible to get real-time Olympic results everywhere but NBC. In an effort to boost ratings, NBC executives demanding that Nielsen exclude the first half-hour of the Olympics' primetime broadcast (7:00-7:30) from its calculations. That gambit did bring up numbers somewhat, but it's unlikely that the same tact will work during the primetime season which, with a few exceptions, looks dry.

PAX TV

August 31st, 1998 marked the debut of PAX TV, the nation's seventh and newest broadcast network committed to airing family-friendly programming that includes original live-action series, daily entertainment and information shows, children's programming, as well as popular movies and off-network shows with proven audience appeal. PAX TV is a wholly-owned service of Paxson Communications Corp., a broadcasting company whose principal business is the ownership and operation of the largest broadcast television station group in the United States.

Paxson Communications Corp. was an outgrowth of Paxson Broadcasting founded in 1991 by Lowell W. "Bud" Paxson, the co-founder and past president of the Home Shopping Network, Inc., who had been involved in the radio and electronic retailing business for nearly 40 years. Paxson Broadcasting, a Florida-based radio group, initially purchased four radio stations in the fourth quarter of 1991-AM/FM combos in Jacksonville and Tampa. Over the course of several years, the Company assembled a substantial statewide radio broadcasting group, and as a result of agreements it had in place on radio stations prior to 1993's FCC rule change permitting radio duopolies, the Company was among the first to exercise its options and expand its duopoly holdings.

By 1994, the company sought to replicate in television its success in radio. Paxson looked to acquire two types of television properties: underperforming, undermanaged network affiliates and independent stations in major markets which broadcast long-form paid programming. In April 1994, the company purchased the equipment and acquired an option to buy its first television property, an independent TV station in Miami. Paxson took his company public in November 1994, through a reverse merger with the American Network Group, Inc., and subsequently moved the new company, Paxson Communications Corp. to the American Stock Exchange. By December of that same year, Paxson had owned or operated four stations, airing a variety of infomercial and long form programming which by January 1995, became known as the Infomall TV Network ("IN TV"). By purchasing independent television stations, entering into time brokerage agreements, affiliating with stations and extending its broadcast reach on cable via "must carry" requirements, Paxson created a national television broadcasting distribution infrastructure providing long form programming.

In March 1997, the Supreme Court upheld the "must carry" legislation, and as a result, all of the company's broadcast stations were suddenly viable as a network and would remain accessible to cable television audiences. In June 1997, the company sold its entire radio interest to Clear Channel Communications in a tax-advantaged transaction, and also during that month, acquired The Travel Channel of which it in turn sold an interest to Discovery Communications, Inc. later that year.

The company announced in November 1997 that it would launch the seventh broadcast television network, at that time branded as PAX NET, on August 31st the following year. The network would feature off-network runs of popular shows including the CBS hit series, "Touched By An Angel," "Dr. Quinn, Medicine Woman," and "Diagnosis Murder," in addition to a number of original programs and theatrical and made-for-television movies.

Between the November announcement of PAX NET and August 31st launch of PAX TV, the company acquired additional television stations and expanded its distribution through cable agreements. The company also added popular off-network and original shows, and hired a number of executives and hundreds of new employees. In May 1998, the company announced the appointment of former CBS president, Jeff Sagansky, to the post of president & CEO and the election of William E. Simon, Jr. to the position of vice chairman for Paxson Communications Corp. Paxson also announced that the Simon family would make an equity investment in the company, and one month later, announced the completion of its offering of $275 million of Preferred Stock.

With PAX TV maintaining positive ratings, Paxson Communications Corp. will continue to focus on enhancing the distribution of its network and the quality of PAX TV's programming.

In 1999, NBC bought a 32% stake in Paxson's stations, with an option to acquire control in 2002 for an additional $1.2 billion. Paxson stations, currently without any news programming, will likely carry NBC news as well as NBC programming in secondary timeslots.

In 2000, Paxson continued to do well with its off-network programming, including "Touched By An Angel," "Dr. Quinn Medicine Woman" and other family friendly fare. Paxson reported a 25% increase in viewership in the first three weeks of the 2000-2001 season, and plans to continue with its current slate of programming augmented with made-for-TV movies.

- 1998-99: Little Men, Flipper: The New Adventures, Neon Rider, It's a Miracle.

PUBLIC BROADCASTING SERVICE

In 1948, the FCC stopped issuing new television station licenses. American educators, fearful of the impact of unrestricted commercial broadcasting, pushed for the Commission to hold open channel slots for non-commercial, educational television broadcasts. In 1952, when the FCC freeze was lifted, 242 channels were reserved for educational television. America's first non-commercial educational television station was KUHT in Houston, started in 1953.

By 1962, 75 educational stations were broadcasting around the country. As these stations shared roughly the same programming interests, a loose distribution network evolved, allowing locally-produced programs like "Children's Corner" to be circulated among these stations. Most of the programming was produced on a shoestring budget. In 1962, the federal government authorized $32 million in matching funds for the construction of new educational television broadcasting facilities. In 1967, a blue ribbon panel urged local and state governments to increase their financial support of "public television" and recommended that the federal government participate in the production of programming. To this end, the first Public Broadcasting Act was passed. This law also created the Corporation for Public Broadcasting, a non-profit "steward" of the public funds committed to public broadcasting, and, not incidentally, a barrier against government interference in programming decisions.

In 1969, the Public Broadcasting Service's charter was signed, with its main intent the establishment of a nation-wide program distribution service. 1969 saw the premiere of an hour long, daily children's variety show, named "Sesame Street", which targeted pre-schoolers with fast-paced educational programming and featured live performers, cartoons and Muppets developed exclusively for the show by Jim Henson.

In 1970, PBS' first year as a "network", its programming included series as widely varied as "Washington Week in Review", "Civilisation", "The French Chef" and "Soul!" By 1973, PBS had more than 1 million individual subscribers. PBS and its member stations were responsible for bringing to U.S. audiences critically acclaimed BBC programming under the flag of "Masterpiece Theatre", which included such classics of television as "Upstairs Downstairs" and "I, Claudius". In 1976, PBS began broadcasting closed-captioned programming for the hearing impaired. In 1978, PBS became the first American network to distribute its programs by satellite.

Although some portion of PBS and its member stations' budgets are provided by federal and state government funding and corporate gifts, PBS and its member stations have continued to rely upon the contributions of individual viewers to stay afloat. In the late 1980's and early 1990's, PBS and the CPB suffered an enormous amount of criticism by government officials for an alleged "liberal" bias, and later in the 90's, for not being "self sufficient". Although a notable few PBS series have achieved some financial success in other areas (primarily children's programming in the home video and product licensing fields), it is important to note that the production of most of the all-important local educational and public affairs programming never breaks even. In the face of continuing cuts in government funding, PBS programmers have accepted what may have been inevitable, the inclusion of commercial sponsorship (and actual commercials) in programming.

In the wake of the government threat of fund cuts, PBS increased its effort to achieve financial independence. In 1997, PBS president Ervin Duggan announced that the network would use its recognizable brand to market products and services, such as educational videos and distance learning programs. With this approach as well as using the internet to sell its products and investing in new programming, PBS had a total revenue for the 1997 fiscal year of $239 million; $15 million more than its target.

PBS got caught in a scandal in 1999 involving the sharing of its donor lists with partisan political groups.

The GOP complained about the practice, which primarily involved list sharing with the Democratic Party. PBS admitted that it called into question the independence and impartiality of the public network.

UPN (UNITED PARAMOUNT NETWORK)

UPN began broadcasting on January 16, 1995 as a joint venture between United Television/Chris Craft Industries, Inc. and Paramount Television/Viacom Inc. The fledgling network's first official hit was the newest entry in the long-lived Star Trek franchise, "Star Trek: Voyager." Paramount TV executive Lucy Salhany was named president of the network. UPN currently broadcasts two nights of prime-time programming weekly, a Saturday afternoon movie, and plans to add an afternoon children's programming block. In the 1995-96 season, UPN debuted 8 new prime time series. Lucy Salhany, president and CEO of the fledgling UPN network, announced that she would not renew her contract when it expired in September of 1997.

Led by the newly appointed CEO, Dean Valentine, UPN's management team had the difficult task of giving the sagging network a face-lift. Not unlike the other networks, UPN had to struggle to keep its viewers in 1998. The network's audience, consisting largely of black viewers, was angered when in an effort to attract a broad Middle American audience, UPN cancelled most of the shows that appealed to black viewers. And, in what seemed like a second slap, the network premiered the sitcom "The Secret Diary of Desmond Pfeiffer," despite protests from black activists claiming that the show trivialized slavery. As explained by Mr. Valentine, it appeared that UPN's problem was with its specific programming, which does not attract the female or suburban viewer.

The 1999-2000 lineup features several sitcoms designed to appeal to black viewers, balanced by the WWF and a couple of one hour, action shows. It seems that the Network still has not found its programming niche and is struggling to identify and expand its core audience.

The 2000-2001 lineup seems of less significance this year as UPN owner Viacom is required to sell the UPN stations as part of its merger with CBS. Rupert Murdoch's News Corp. is buying Chris-Craft whose UPN affiliates will likely be turned into either a second Fox network or absorbed into the existing Fox family. In the meantime, UPN has changed its name to The Paramount Network to reflect its new, sole ownership.

WARNER BROTHERS TELEVISION

In the 1950's when other studios were setting their eyes on television, Jack Warner was not interested in doing the same. But in 1955, the television network ABC managed to make a deal with Warner and create the studio's first pact. The agreement entailed a Tuesday night one-hour drama program on ABC, called "Warner Brothers Presents." Three rotating series were featured: "King's Row," "Casablanca," and the TV Western that lasted for eight seasons, "Cheyenne." "Maverick" starring James Garner, was introduced in 1957. The western proved popular with both viewers and critics, finishing sixth in the 1958-59 season ratings and being awarded the Best Western Series for the 1958-59 season, giving Warner Bros. TV its first Emmy award.

Although WB produced and created its share of shows in the 1960s, such as "Room for One More" (the first situation comedy produced by the studio), "The Bugs Bunny Show" (TV's first animated series), and "The F.B.I." (WB's most popular primetime show of the late 1960s), TV production began drying up. With the appointment in 1969 of Gerald Leider as president of WB TV, the studio went through a revival with such shows as "Alice," "Kung Fu," and "The Dukes of Hazzard." The studio also acquired the rights to "Chico and the Man" and "Welcome Back, Kotter" already successful sitcoms, and the dramatic miniseries depicting the lives of African slaves, "Roots."

In 1988 WB acquired Lorimar Television absorbing the series "Dallas," "Knots Landing," "Falcon Crest," "Full House," "I'll Fly Away" and others. By 1989, Lorimar Television & Warner Bros. TV represented the biggest supplier of primetime TV programming to the networks. With the start of a new decade, the Warner Bros. studio appeared to be in good shape. But, the end of the Financial Interest rules, which limited the broadcast networks' ownership in programming and their ability to also produce, put WB in a less than perfect position as supplier. With the fear of falling victim to the networks, newly empowered by the FCC decision, WB began considering a network of its own. The first effort resulted in PTEN, which presented series as a syndicated block offered to stations. In January 1995 and in partnership with Tribune Broadcasting, the WB network took off.

The budding network will be reaching 90% of the country in the 1998-99 season, with five nights of primetime programming. While CBS and ABC have lost audience members in the 18-49 demographic group, and Fox and NBC have experienced only slight growth, WB has continued on its upward swing and increased its viewership by this (most desirable) demographic group, by 60%.

2000-2001 is looking brighter for WB with the likely demise of UPN. While WB doesn't cater to a black audience, it does fill the "youth" programming niche and its new programs are well-suited to continue the WB's stronghold among teen viewers.

CANADIAN YEAR IN REVIEW

BY DEBORAH TIFFIN

The Canadian Radio-Television and Telecommunications Commission (CRTC), which announced new guidelines earlier in the year to address the coming changes as the industry moves towards digital distribution, began hearings in August to consider applications for 10 coveted Category 1 service channels (guaranteed cable carriage) which will be licensed on a one-per-genre basis (the services must not compete with each other or any other existing pay or specialty service). Each of the Category 1 licenses will span seven years and must reach a minimum of 50% Canadian content by the end of term. A primary issue in consideration of the applications is "nesting" - whether specialty broadcasters with established infrastructures may be best able, creatively and financially, to launch the new services, assuring long-term profitability. The CRTC will also consider applications for an unspecified number of Category 2 services (not guaranteed cable carriage), also for seven-year terms. These services must not compete with Category 1 offerings, however they may be competitive with other Category 2 services. Canadian content must reach a minimum of 35% of programming. Services in both categories must be Canadian owned, but international participation is encouraged. Licensing decisions are expected by the end of the year. A list of eligible foreign programming services will be issued early in 2001, with new digital pay and specialty packages to follow.

The impact of new media on the broadcast scene is an issue that the Canadian Film and Television Producers Association (CFTPA) is seeking to address in initiatives designed to attract new multimedia producers into their mentorship program, bringing them together with production companies. The organization is also working with the Dept. of Foreign Affairs and International Trade to bring Canadian multimedia producers to international markets. The CFTPA has been studying the issues of copyright, the assignment of value, and the ability to collect royalties on work distributed via the Internet.

Toronto-based Bill Craig (TVRadioNow Corp.) brought the issues of copyright infringement within the context of the unregulated online world to the fore with the launch of iCraveTV on November 30, 1999, streaming unauthorized "live" video of broadcast signals for realtime consumption online. Craig's original position (reported in Playback Dec. 17) was that "in addition to there being no CRTC restrictions, the retransmission of live over-the-air TV stations, in their entirety, over the Internet, [was] well within the copyright law in Canada". Craig felt that the only body his service was accountable to was the Copyright Tribunal, which he looked to for a tariff applicable to the given mode of redistribution. TV stations, including CBC, Global, CTV, TVO, and City-TV, and members of the CFTPA became involved in legal efforts to bring the service to a halt. In February, a temporary US injunction was obtained, on behalf of a separate American group of affected broadcasters. Further court action was avoided when Craig agreed to temporarily shut down the site pending development of his team's new iWall technology, which is being designed to address copyright and royalty obligations.

Alliance Atlantis Communications (AAC), in association with Back Alley Film Productions, CBC and ExtendMedia launched a thirteen part, interactive, hip-hop dramatic TV series, Drop The Beat. Microsoft WebTV subscribers were able to access on-screen links to the companion website through iTV pages appearing on the screen, as well as being able to log on to the companion virtual radio show. The purchase of concert tickets and the series' Universal soundtrack was also possible through the site. Later in the year, Alliance Atlantis Broadcasting (AAB), in partnership with TVForReal.com announced its ninth channel, U8TV, a reality-based TV station on the Net. Eight salaried hosts (ages 19 - 34) will move into a downtown loft for at least a year, where they'll host three hours of lifestyle and original information programming daily. A Category 2 license application was made with the channel although, being Web-based, the new channel is not subject to CRTC regulation. The venture will offer opportunity for e-commerce, commercial advertising, product placement and sponsorship and cross-promotion.

CanWest Global, Shaw Communications and Corus Entertainment saw the resolution of their bid to carve up the assets of WIC Western International Communications in a CRTC decision handed down in July that changes the broadcasting landscape in British Columbia. Shaw acquired WIC's distribution arm (including 54% interest in Canadian Satellite Communications). CanWest Global, in completing its acquisition of all WIC shares, takes over almost all of WIC's TV stations and interest in ROBTv, creating the third national broadcast network in Canada, at an estimated cost of $800 million. Corus takes over WIC's Premium's pay and specialty TV services (such as MovieMax, Superchannel and Home Theatre) but will have to sell half of its shares in Family Channel (also part of WIC's Premium).

Bell Canada Enterprises (BCE) proposed a $2.32 billion acquisition of the Canadian Television Network (CTV) late in February in a deal that would see CTV management remain as partners. The resulting benefit package, which was announced in August included a $140 million priority programming component (for at least 175 independently produced programming hours); $23 million for regionally based, interactive entertainment series, and a one-time contribution of $10 million to the Bell Broadcast and New Media Fund. The first program year to follow this decision begins in September 2001. The CRTC began hearings on the matter in September.

In April, Telescene Film Group (Montreal) announced a record $148.7 million production slate, extending over 18 months, along with a new distribution deal with Germany's Tele-Munich Group. $80.5 million in programming is destined for the Action Adventure Network.

Early in October, Corus Entertainment announced the acquisition of animation giant Nelvana in a $554 million deal, in a move that is expected to allow for growth in the development of specialty channels. Nelvana's founders Michael Hirsch, Patrick Loubert and Clive Smith will all stay with Nelvana, which currently has 23 series airing on US broadcast and cable channels. Earlier in the year Nelvana acquired California based book publisher Klutz for $107 million. The move was described as an important step in the company's strategic growth line, providing a major Internet and e-commerce platform. Klutz's instructional book product line was to be integrated with that of Kids Can Press.

Cable giants Rogers and Shaw reached an agreement, late in March, to trade cable assets and create strategic alliances with their respective Internet properties. The end result of the deal will see the Rogers customer base increase in Ontario and Quebec to 3.5 million, with an additional 200,000 in New Brunswick. Shaw's subscribers in Western Canada will grow to approximately 1.8 million. The two companies will merge their internet services @Home Canada and Excite Canada into a single, national broadband and narrowband service, available to more than 500,000 high-speed customers, with ownership to be shared between Rogers (51%), Shaw (22.5%) and Excite@Home (22.5%). In September, Rogers conceded defeat in its seven-month effort acquire Groupe Videotron. The setback prevents the formation of the company's envisioned cable cluster, however, a $241 million break fee that was negotiated as part of original proposal has left Rogers well positioned to acquire outstanding interest in Cogeco Cable, Ontario's second largest cable service.

Heritage Canada called for industry comment on the future of the Canadian Television Fund (CTF), which is due to expire March 31, 2001. The Canadian Association of Broadcasters' (CAB) position paper of September 15 called for the creation of "a new institution with the responsibility of providing funding support in television, feature film and new media", blending the CTF and Telefilm. CAB supports the present CTF model - a private / public sector board of directors, and suggested that as long as government guidelines which allow access to public money continued to be respected, that industry needs would be best served by eliminating the cultural watchdog role that Telefilm currently plays in administering the fund's $100 million Equity Investment Program.

Proposals for restructuring of the CTF were also made by the Canadian Broadcasting Corp., the CFT-PA, and the Quebec producer's association, APFTQ.

YEAR IN REVIEW

BY NIMRA HANIF

A survey conducted by the British Film Institute earlier this year revealed that of the 100 top programmes on viewers' lists, only a handful were made in the last decade. Good news for the archives maybe but not so great for the morale of terrestrial channels which have been struggling to meet the challenges posed by new technology, cable and satellite channel and global competition. The last available figures from 1998 show that Britain exported 444 million pounds and imported 692 million pound worth of programmes leaving it with a net deficit of 248 million pounds. The only consolation appears to be that the previous year was even worse with a deficit of 293 million pounds.

But there might still be hope. New leadership in the BBC has meant some significant changes in the corporation's programming strategy. Under Greg Dyke, the new director-general, the BBC has taken on a much more hard nosed commercial approach. The biggest decision to be made so far under the new director is the moving of the Nine O'Clock News on BBC1 to ten o'clock. It is hoped that this will attract many more viewers who will switch on after the American markets close. Past figures show that on occasion, the BBC1 news at nine has been watched by as little as nine percent of television viewers. This is because in its previous slot it inevitably coincided with drama or documentaries on rival channels. Other changes included the increase in the license fee of five pounds per annum. The director general has announced that an extra 480 million pounds will be put into programming over the next three years and seven services provided over five channels. BBC 1 alone will receive an extra 100 million pounds this year and another 55 million pounds the year after that to pay for expensive programs like Walking With Dinosaurs which has received worldwide acclaim. In the new plan, BBC Choice and BBC Knowledge, both digital channels will become BBC 3 and BBC 4 respectively and News 24 will continue to provide a twenty-four hour service. With a mix of music, comedy and lifestyle programming, BBC 3 will be designed to attract younger viewers who currently watch Sky One and MTV. BBC 4 will be the BBC's high-brow channel with arts and science programs as well as heavy-weight political analysis.

One controversial move in the reshuffling has been the scrapping of approximately 1,000 bureaucratic jobs, a cost cutting measure deemed necessary by the new management.

The other giant Granada has taken over three franchises - HTV, Meridian and Anglia - from United News and Media for 1.75 billion. Granada Media already owns Granada, Yorkshire, Tyne Tees and London Weekend. It also owns half of Ondigital, twenty percent of ITN and twenty five percent of breakfast TV company GMTV. The takeover has been seen as a step in the right direction for improvement of programming on ITV which in recent months had begun to rely too much on cost effective programs like Holidays from Hell and OK!TV. There is a possible downside to this takeover because Granada's ownership of the majority of companies might allow it to dictate an increase in the price of TV advertising.

New technology in television has meant that the pressure on channels to provide populist programming has increased. Now, with the imminent arrival of digital recording systems like the TiVo, for ten pounds a month a viewer will have the kind of control which could put paid to the scheduling frenzy by terrestrial channels and their efforts to keep viewers from switching their channels. Essentially this technology will be able to read its owners tastes and provide them with what they want to watch when they want to watch it without wasting time waiting for their favourite show to come on. Above all this could put those advertisers in a quandary whose main preoccupation is with finding out when people are watching what.

INDEPENDENT TELEVISION COMMISSION (ITC)

Founded in 1991, the ITC was created by Parliament under the terms of the Broadcasting Act 1990 to license and regulate all commercially-funded television in the United Kingdom, whether delivered terrestrially (i.e. ITV, Channel 4 and Channel 5) or by cable or satellite, public teletext and certain other text and data services. The ITC regulates these services through license conditions and through its various codes on program content, advertising, sponsorship and technical standards.
