It's a state of mind

Willhight Research, Inc. has been providing local market radio rating and qualitative data for over fifteen years to the broadcast community. Contact us for more information to see how we can help your state of mind.

Willhight Research, Inc
Audience Measurement Surveys

Seattle, WA • 206 431 8430 • FAX 206 431 0603

This section lists the M Street RADIO MARKETS in the United States. In general, a station is included in a market if it is licensed to a city in that market or if the market is a primary focus of its marketing activities.

For each listing, the market name is followed by all states served, Metro and Total Survey Area populations (TSA), the M Street 1998 market rank (MST), the Arbitron 1997 market rank (ARB), the Willhight survey dates (if any), followed by AM and FM stations, in dial order.

Metro and Total Survey Area population figures are based on the 12+ population estimates of Arbitron, if an Arbitron-rated market; Willhight, if the market is rated by Willhight but not Arbitron; or M Street, if the market is not rated. M Street rank is based on population estimates for the M Street-defined market area, which is defined by postal zip codes, rather than counties. The market definitions of Arbitron and Willhight are influenced by stations purchasing each company's ratings services, and do not necessarily coincide with each other or with M Street.

Audience estimates are for persons 12+ Monday-Sunday, 6 a.m. to midnight, average quarter hour shares and persons from the Metro Survey Area. Ratings for each Arbitron market are from the most recent ratings period for that market. Willhight survey dates are given separately for each market.

This year's directory includes Arbitron trend information. The column headers indicate the rating period, or "book," from which the numbers came. Here are our abbreviations, as well as the survey dates for each book:

"F97"	Fall '97 Arbitron	Sep. 18 - Dec. 10, 1997
"U97"	Summer '97 Arbitron	Jun. 26 - Sep. 17, 1997
"S97"	Spring '97 Arbitron	Mar. 27 - Jun. 18, 1997
"W97"	Winter '97 Arbitron	Jan. 2 - Mar. 26, 1997

If the market is measured by both Willhight and Arbitron, the Willhight share is listed in the last column as "Will." Trend data may not be available for all stations. Arbitron does not release rating information for non-commercial stations.

For more information on ratings and copyright information, see the ABOUT RATINGS section at the front of the book. Estimates are Copyrighted and may not be quoted or reproduced without prior written permission of the Copyright owner. For more information on the format descriptions for each station, see the FORMAT CLASSIFICATIONS section at the front of the book.

As with other sections of the book, M Street RADIO MARKETS are a condensation of data collected and are revised on an ongoing basis by M Street. Please call or write us with updates, corrections, or inquiries for customized applications of our market data.

Arbitron Covers the Country with Qualitative

Today, advertisers want to know what type of listeners you have, not just how many. Do you have the tools to describe your listeners? If not, Arbitron can help.

We cover the country with qualitative. Our Scarborough, RetailDirect<sup>SM</sup> and Qualitative Diary services allow us to offer qualitative information for just about every market.

Call your Arbitron representative today to find out how Arbitron's qualitative service can help you grow your station's revenue!

ARBITRON

Key to markets section:

For each listing, the market name is followed by Metro and Total Survey Area (TSA) populations, the M Street 1998 market rank (MST), the Arbitron 1997 market rank (ARB), the Willight survey dates (if any), followed by AM and FM stations in dial order. All current Arbitron ratings are from the most recent ratings period for that market, which are shown in the first column.

Estimates are for persons 12+ Monday-Sunday, 6am to midnight, average quarter hour shares from the Metro Survey area. For more information on ratings and copyright information, see the ABOUT RATINGS section at the front of the book. Estimates are copyrighted and may not be quoted or reproduced without prior written permission of the copyright owner. Trend data may not be available for all stations. Arbitron does not release ratings information for non-commercial stations. For more information on the format descriptions for each station, see the FORMAT CLASSIFICATIONS section at the front of the book.

How did you keep track of the thousands of changes to phone and fax numbers, addresses, owners, formats, call letters, and personnel last year?

We used over 200 stringers and reporters... made thousands of phone calls... drove through hundreds of markets... poured over several tons of FCC filings....

Whew!

Where'd you find the time?

Tap into the Canadian market...

M Street can provide you with mailing lists and labels for Canadian Radio Stations.

We'll customize your Canadian information into mailing lists, labels, data or reports specifically designed for your needs.

We'll even get it to you this week so you can start making more money right away...

Don't wait any longer, Call us today at 615-251-1525

Tracking radio stations in Canada is more difficult than in the United States. Two regulatory agencies, the Canadian Radio Television Commission (CRTC) and the Department of Communication (DOC), rather than one (the FCC) make it hard to follow technical and legal changes. There are multiple stations with the same call letters and low power chains of stations licensed to communities in the remote territories. All of this makes Canada a challenge for us. We do our best, but be patient with us. Errors and omissions are unavoidable.

Unlike our listings for the U.S., we don't try to list every Canadian station. We list all major commercial and CBC as well as campus and significant community stations. In addition, we list larger rebroadcasting facilities, which are always noted with an "r:" in the format field (e.g. Country r:CKAA-570). If the rebroadcaster has an office of its own, we list its contact information. If it does not have an office of its own, only the owner and the originating station's phone number are listed.

We have included personnel listings for primary commercial stations and as many CBC stations as would cooperate. For more information on the format descriptions for each station, see the FORMAT CLASSIFICATIONS section in the front of the book.

If you have an update, addition, or correction to our data, we would love to hear from you. You can fax us at (615) 251-8798 or phone us at (615) 251-1525.

FCC Procedures and Overview

by Gregg P. Skall

Gregg Skall is a communications lawyer with the firm of Pepper & Corazzini, L.L.P., in Washington, DC. He frequently represents parties before the Commission and the Congress to obtain desired policy objectives. In 1984, the National Journal recognized him as one of the leading radio spectrum lobbyists in Washington. He writes and speaks on topics of Federal Communications Commission administrative process, electronic mass media, and telecommunications. He may be reached at (202) 296-0600.

APPLICATIONS AND LICENSING PROCEDURES

The Communications Act of 1934 requires that a radio station be licensed by the FCC before it commences broadcasting. There are two ways to obtain such a license. First, an interested party may participate in a government-run auction to obtain a license for a new station. The Balanced Budget Act of 1997 require the Commission to hold auctions for new broadcast stations that were once subject to a comparative hearing. At the time of publication, the specific rules and procedures for the auctions had not been developed. However, as contemplated by the FCC, the party would file a short-form application prior to the auction, and then upon designation as the successful bidder, it would file the traditional long-form construction permit application.

The second method of obtaining a license is to purchase an existing station and seek authority from the FCC to assign the license to the purchaser. FCC authorization of the ownership change is required, and approval must be obtained before the purchase is consummated.

The Communications Act requires the FCC to observe certain procedures in these licensing activities. While the procedures for new stations are currently under review, those for purchasing a license remain the same. First, an application for authorization to buy a station must be filed. Then, the FCC must issue a public notice announcing the filing. The FCC cannot grant an application until 30 days have passed from the date this notice is published. The Act also requires that the party filing the application give local notice in the community where a station is proposed, or in the case of an existing station, where it is currently operating.

Before an application can be granted, the FCC must find that the grant will serve the public interest, convenience, and necessity. One of the matters it considers is formal petitions to deny, or informal objections challenging the grant of the application. These petitions and objections must be filed within the 30-day period following the FCC's public notice of the application's acceptance for filing. If such petitions or objections are filed, the FCC must determine whether they raise a substantial and material question of fact or whether granting the application would serve the public interest. If such questions are raised, they must be resolved before an application can be granted.

If questions raised cannot be readily resolved, an evidentiary hearing, similar to a trial in a civil suit, is the procedure used to explore and finally resolve such questions. At such a hearing, evidence is collected and the burden is placed on the applicant to prove that the public interest would be served by grant of its application. If an applicant fails to produce sufficient evidence to meet this burden, its application will either be dismissed or denied.

In contrast, if no petitions or objections are filed, and the Commission finds no other problems, an application can be granted as soon as the 30-day public comment period has passed.

Similar procedures are also used when the FCC is asked to grant various other applications. Since a radio license is only granted for a limited eight-year period, a licensee must apply for renewal of its license. Renewal applications, like initial licensing applications, are subject to public petitions and informal objections -- but for a period of several months rather than 30 days. A license terminates automatically if a station is silent for one year.

Another kind of application is one by which a licensee of an existing station seeks a construction permit to make a major change to its station. Among other things, the Commission considers the change in an AM station's community of license or frequency to be a major change. For AM stations, major changes can also include increases in power. For non-commercial FM stations, they include significant (over 50%) changes in the area covered by the station's signal. Whenever such a change is proposed, the same public notice procedures and 30-day public comment period required for initial applications must be observed.

Some applications are considered minor in nature and are therefore not subject to a 30-day public comment period before they can be granted. These include applications for insignificant modifications to existing facilities, primarily those that cannot affect the station's frequency or its community of license. Another example is pro-forma ownership changes, such as partnerships becoming corporations or involuntary transfers of control in bankruptcy or situations involving the appointment of a receiver. Although a FCC public notice of the filing of such applications is still required, and informal objections from the public may still be filed, there is no required waiting period before these applications can be granted.

Finally, there are some modifications to radio facilities that do not require a construction permit application to be filed. Instead, these modifications can be made prior to the filing of a license application with the Commission. Such modifications include: non-grandfathered FM stations increasing to maximum ERP (Effective Radiated Power), decreases in ERP, replacement of FM directional antennas, modifications to FM vertically polarized ERP, minor changes in height of antenna, change from commercial to non-commercial status, tower replacement, use of formerly licensed main facilities as auxiliary facilities, and deletion of FM contour protection status. Most of these changes do have specific technical requirements. Therefore, a licensee is advised to contact its engineer to first determine whether it qualifies for the abbreviated application process.

FCC PROCEDURES

REGULATORY FEES

Pursuant to statutory authority, the Commission collects from broadcasters annual regulatory fees.

Amount of Fees: The Commission's schedule of fees was initially proposed by Congress, but has been modified each year. The amount of radio station fees is based upon the class of the station. In 1997, the Commission reclassified station fees by market size or audience size as well. Fees must be filed with the FCC's Form 159, on the date announced by FCC Public Notice. Each applicant must provide its Tax Payer Identification Number (TIN) and sign the form before filing with the Commission.

Application Fees: The Commission also charges fees for the filing and processing of applications. The schedule of fees changes periodically, but is available from the Commission or from the author of this article.

OWNERSHIP RULES

National Ownership Rules: There is no numerical cap to the number of radio stations in which a single entity may have an attributable interest.

Local Ownership Rules: The local ownership rule consists of four tiers of market sizes defined strictly by contour overlap in market of:

14 or fewer stations: up to 5 total (but no more than half of the stations in the market) and no more than 3 in the same service (AM or FM);

·15 to 29 stations: up to 6 total, 4 in the same service;

·30 to 44 stations: up to 7 total, 4 in the same service;

·over 45 stations: up to 8 total, 5 in the same service.

Under the Telecommunications Act, the Commission may override these limits if it determines that the result would be an increase in the number of stations in operation.

To determine the tier under which an acquisition will be analyzed, the Commission defines a radio market as the area encompassed by the principal community contours of the overlapping stations proposing to have common ownership. The principal community contours are the predicted or measured 5 mV/m daytime contour for AM stations and the predicted 3.16 mV/m contours for FM stations. The number of stations in the market are determined by counting all commercial stations whose principal community contours overlap or intersect the principal community contours of the commonly-owned stations. Included in the count are all operating commercial full-power stations including daytimers and foreign stations and stations subject to time brokering agreements with the transferee involving more than 15% of the brokered station's programming week, but excluding non-commercial stations, translators, construction permits which are not yet on the air, and stations which have been silent for more than six months.

Two Fine Points: First, where the overlap area of a proposed FM/FM station will also overlap a commonly-owned AM station (or where a proposed AM/AM combination will overlap a commonly-owned FM station), then the number of stations in the market will include all which overlap the contours of the three which will be commonly owned. Second, where there will be a chain of commonly owned stations, the Commission will consider each overlap separately.

Joint Ventures and Simulcasting: A "time brokerage arrangement" for more than 15% of the brokered stations' broadcast hours per week is an attributable ownership interest. Further, stations in the same service whose overlap area constitutes more than 50% of either station's principal community contour may not simulcast for more than 25% of either stations' broadcast time.

The FCC defines time brokerage as the sale of discreet blocks of time to a party who both supplies the programming to fill that time and sells the commercial spot announcements in it. It has suggested that time brokerage agreements may provide for liquidated damages upon termination, but that excessive liquidated damages or an unreasonably lengthy term could raise questions concerning a licensee's meaningful control over its station. By its "main studio rule", brokered stations are required to maintain the presence of at least one full-time managerial and one staff person at the brokered station's main studio during regular business hours. (See following section on Main Studio Staffing.)

All Time Brokerage Agreements (TBAs), sometimes also called Local Marketing Agreements (LMAs), must be reduced to writing and included in the public inspection files of both the brokering and brokered stations for the term of the contract, although confidential or proprietary information may be redacted. Time brokerage agreements which qualify as an attributable interest must also be filed with the FCC within 30 days of execution. The FCC filing must include a certification that the arrangement complies with the Commission's ownership rules.

LICENSING AND RENEWAL

Term: The radio standard license term is 8 years, subject to short-term renewal sanctions where appropriate. A license is to terminate automatically if a station is silent for one year.

Procedures: The renewal procedure precludes competing applications. A renewal application must be granted if the FCC finds (a) that the station has served the public interest, (b) the licensee has not committed any serious violations of the Communications Act or FCC rules, and (c) other violations of the Act or rules, taken together, would not constitute a pattern of abuse. The vagueness of the first standard affords the Commission considerable flexibility. In this regard, it is still worth bearing in mind the judicially developed standards for renewal expectancy. If the standards are not met, a renewal application may be denied after hearing or granted subject to terms and conditions. Only after denying renewal may the Commission accept applications for the forfeited facilities.

In a case involving KTTV(TV), Los Angeles, California, the FCC Review Board listed five criteria by which an incumbent licensee's performance should be judged.

Criterion 1: The licensee's efforts to ascertain the needs, problems and interests of its community,

Criterion 2 : The licensee's programming responses to those ascertained needs,

Criterion 3 : The licensee's reputation in the community for servicing its needs, problems and interests,

Criterion 4: The licensee's record of compliance with the Communications Act and FCC rules and policies, and Criterion 5: The presence or absence of any special effort at community outreach or toward providing a form for local self-expression.

MAIN STUDIO STAFFING

In 1991, the Commission held in Jones Eastern of the Outer Banks, Inc. that, where a station located its primary studio outside the 3.16 mV/m contour, it must nevertheless maintain a main studio within that contour staffed by one full-time supervisory (or managerial) employee and one other employee.

The FCC considers positions that will constitute a "meaningful managerial presence" at the main studio to include: president or other corporate officer; general manager; station manager; program director; sales manager; chief engineer with managerial duties; news director; personnel manager; facilities manager; operations manager; production manager; promotion manager; research director; controller and chief accountant. It is job duties rather than titles that are considered.

The FCC does not require management persons to be "chained to their desks" during all business hours. However, they must report to work at the main studio on a daily basis and spend a substantial amount of time there, using the main studio as a "home base."

Non-managerial main studio staff may take on responsibilities for another business outside the studio so long as the main studio is attended by some station employee during all normal business hours. Caution: If the other business is the station's time broker, the parties must maintain EXTENSIVE records regarding the actual time and duties devoted to each employer by the employee.

UNATTENDED OPERATION

The Commission permits the unattended operation of broadcast stations. However, licensees remain fully responsible for adequately monitoring their technical operation and adjusting and maintaining their stations in compliance with all technical rules. An unattended operation station must use EAS automation.

EMERGENCY ALERT SYSTEM

The Commission has replaced the old Emergency Broadcasting System (EBS) with a new Emergency Alert System (EAS). Embracing digital technology and automation, the new rules comprise Part 11 of the FCC's Rules.

The following is a summary of the new EAS:

Participation: All broadcast stations must have EAS decoders. All but Class D non-commercial FM stations and low power TV stations are required to have an EAS encoder installed in their broadcast chain. A station may opt out of the full EAS program, but must then sign off the air after receiving an alert and broadcasting an appropriate announcement.

Mandatory Protocol: An EAS activation message consists of a digital header, an attention signal, an audio or text message and an end of message (EOM) code. The header defines who originated the emergency message and its nature, location and valid time period. The nature of the emergency must be one of 32 "event codes," which provide local authorities and stations with flexibility in determining how to react. The location parameters can be for events affecting as wide an area as a whole state down to specific neighborhoods, blocks or even individual homes (but only if local authorities devise such codes). EAS decoders have the ability to be programmed so that licensees can select certain state and local originators, and event and/or location codes in order selectively to interrupt programming, and establish priorities. Reaction to an EAS national level emergency is mandatory.

Monitoring Requirements: Specific monitoring assignments are delineated in state and local area EAS plans, developed voluntarily by state emergency communications committees (SECCs), subject to FCC review.

Test Requirements: Stations must broadcast certain mandatory weekly and monthly EAS tests. Foreign language stations may translate the test script for the benefit of their audiences. The weekly tests to be run in other weeks of each month may be "unobtrusive," consisting only of the EAS and EOM codes.

Commercial Sponsorship: The Commission permits the use of sponsored PSAs or infomercials explaining EAS to the public, but they cannot be a part of the actual test or activation and may not simulate or attempt to copy alert tones.

EEO ENFORCEMENT POLICIES

The Commission follows an equal employment opportunity enforcement policy that focuses primarily upon recruitment and the relative presence of minorities in interview and applicant pools.

In 1997, the Commission adopted by rulemaking a monetary forfeiture schedule for violations of its EEO policies. A licensee's failure to demonstrate that it has recruited so as to attract an adequate pool of minorities or female candidates for its staff vacancies during the previous license term can lead to monetary forfeitures ranging into the tens of thousands of dollars and possible reporting conditions or short term renewals or even the loss of the license. Penalties can be triggered by inadequate performance or by a failure to document activities with adequate records.

It is important for a station to maintain extensive records of hiring activities for each broadcast station. Special records should be maintained regarding efforts to attract minorities and the sources used for this purpose. Records should also be maintained as to the number of minorities in job applicant and interview pools.

Pepper & Corazzini, L.L.P. has developed an EEO primer responsive to the Commission's new EEO program. That pamphlet is available upon request to the author of this article.

FCC COMPLAINT AND ENFORCEMENT PROCEDURES

There are several types of special procedures and rules which require broadcaster attention with respect to FCC enforcement procedures. They include procedures for FCC field inspections, for public complaints and objections, for station forfeitures or fines, for rule making, for ex-parte contacts by members of the public with the FCC and for required misconduct reports.

Informal Complaints: Anyone may file a complaint with the FCC concerning the operation of the station. If such complaints contain significant allegations, the FCC customarily forwards the complaint to the licensee for comment and explanation. Under this procedure, the licensee is given a specific amount of time to respond. The FCC then evaluates whether any action is necessary and issues a letter informing both the complainant and the licensee of its decision.

Formal Complaints: The FCC also considers more formal complaints against the licensee. These complaints often take the form of a legal petition requesting that the FCC take specific action. Among the most common of these are petitions to deny an application pending before the FCC. Petitions may also be filed independently of the application process. Consequently, a licensee should be wary of such filings at all times.

Petitions often allege that the licensee has violated a federal law or policy. The FCC requires petitions to contain specific facts to support their allegations and a verification by the petitioner. Once a petition is filed, a licensee has a limited period of time to submit a response or "opposition" to the petition. This is important to remember since, unlike informal complaint procedures, the FCC does not inform a licensee when its opposition is due. Unless the licensee submits an opposition on its own initiative, it may be completely precluded from responding to the petition at all.

If a licensee submits an opposition to a petition, FCC procedures generally allow the party filing the petition to submit a reply to the opposition. Thereafter, no further pleadings are allowed. The FCC will then make a decision about whether further action is warranted. If it decides no action is necessary, it will either dismiss or deny the petition. If it believes further inquiry is required, it will usually designate the matter for a formal evidentiary hearing or initiate an investigation.

Field Inspections: As a result of a complaint, a petition to deny, a licensee's failure to file some required information, or a random decision by FCC staff, a station can receive an unannounced field inspection by the agency. Such investigations or inspections may include anything from a review of the station's public inspection file to an evaluation of the performance of a station's transmitter. Such inspections are frequently held after a station has completed significant new construction, to determine whether it is operating as authorized.

Most inspections are simply a routine investigation by FCC staff to make sure a licensee is operating its station in conformance with FCC rules. The FCC has encouraged and endorsed the efforts of state broadcaster associations to conduct self inspection programs. A station that participates in an approved program will be offered limited forbearance from FCC inspections. Generally, an FCC field inspector has a right to inspect every aspect of a broadcast station's operation and can review all documents related to the operation. Remember, however, that FCC rules specify only certain documents must be made available to the field inspector.

While a member of the public has a right to see the station's public inspection file, only an FCC field inspector has a right to see anything more. Consequently, before providing documents or information not contained in the public inspection file, the licensee has a right to see positive identification indicating that the person requesting the information is an FCC official.

Forfeiture Proceedings: If as a result of a field inspection or a complaint, a violation of FCC rules is found, the licensee involved may be subject to a forfeiture proceeding. A forfeiture is a monetary fine. A "forfeiture proceeding" determines how serious the violation is and how large a fine, if any, should be imposed. In a forfeiture proceeding, an official Notice of Violation (FCC Form 793) is mailed to the station. This notice indicates the particulars of the violation. The licensee has 10 days from the receipt of this notice to respond. Failure to respond may result in the FCC finding that a violation has occurred. After the licensee is given the chance to respond, the FCC considers how serious the violation is or whether one has occurred at all. If it decides further action is warranted, it can issue a Notice of Apparent Liability, which indicates what violations have been found and how much of a forfeiture is due.

The FCC's forfeiture authority is limited by law to $25,000 for each violation for each day of a continuing violation, up to a maximum of $250,000. In 1997, the Commission adopted a new schedule for assessing forfeitures. The Commission also has established a range of upward and downward "adjustment criteria," which are to be used in increasing or decreasing the base amount according to the surrounding circumstances. The Commission is also free to respond to violations with other or additional action, for example, admonishment, revocation or non-renewal.

In cases involving more serious violations, the FCC may skip the issuance of a Notice of Violation and issue a Notice of Apparent Liability immediately. In fact, in many cases a field inspection will result in the immediate issuance of both kinds of notices, a Notice of Violation for minor infractions and a Notice of Apparent Liability for more serious violations. Field inspectors have now been granted delegated authority to assess a forfeiture on the spot when conducting an inspection.

If a Notice of Apparent Liability is issued, the licensee has 30 days to challenge either the amount of the fine or the FCC's findings of a violation. It can also pay the forfeiture, which ends the proceeding. If the Notice is appealed, the FCC then makes a final decision as to whether a forfeiture is necessary and, if so, the amount.

FCC Misconduct Reports: The FCC requires licensees to report "relevant non-FCC misconduct." Under this requirement, only adverse adjudications of relevant, non-FCC misconduct must be reported. Pending claims such as pending liable suits or employment discrimination complaints, which have not yet been adjudicated, do not have to be reported. Pending litigation is presumed by the FCC to be irrelevant to a broadcaster's character qualifications. "Relevant non-FCC misconduct" is defined as including: (a) all felonies; (b) fraudulent representations to governmental units; (c) mass media-related violations of antitrust or other laws dealing with unfair competition; and (d) a pattern of adjudicated non-FCC related employment discrimination. Under this policy, an adverse adjudication of a liable claim would not have to be reported, but the same result in a discrimination case would. The liable suit does not fall into one of the above categories, but the employment discrimination case does. Thus, even a single adverse decision of discrimination must be reported, since it might indicate a possible pattern of conduct warranting FCC examination.

The Commission also interprets Section 1.65 of its rules to require report of adjudications of relevant non-FCC misconduct on an annual basis. The report should be filed either with the licensee's renewal application or, like ownership reports, on the anniversary of the date that the renewal application is required to be filed.

The FCC's policy on reportable misconduct also extends to non-licensee entities which share an officer, director or shareholder/partner with the broadcast licensee, if a principal of the licensee was in control of the other entity or was directly involved in its misconduct. The reporting policy also applies to non-FCC misconduct of a parent or subsidiary corporation if there are principals common to the licensee and the related company was involved in the misconduct. The policy extends only to misconduct of all persons with attributable interest in the relevant entity. It does not apply to employees.

CONTENT REGULATION

The FCC has adopted programming regulations which address policies affecting the selection of material that stations use to air, especially political material. They also address the promotion of contests or events in which the station or its employees hold private commercial interests. Political broadcasting is exceedingly complex and is addressed here with the admonition that further explanation and study, not available in the space allowed here, should be undertaken by anyone dealing with these rules. A detailed political broadcasting manual by this author and firm, Pepper and Corazzini, L.L.P. is available upon request at (202) 296-0600. However, a brief treatment is provided in following sections.

POLITICAL AND PUBLIC AFFAIRS PROGRAMMING

There are two basic groups of rules and policies in the area of political and public affairs programming. The first is the largest, and includes the FCC's regulations affecting political campaigns. These regulations include political advertising rules, regulations requiring that political candidates receive equal air time opportunities, laws mandating reasonable access for federal candidates, and regulations requiring every licensee to maintain a political file. The second group of rules concerns the FCC's regulation of commercial practices, including contests and promotions, disclosure of commercial interests, and obscene and indecent programming.

Campaign Programming: A broadcast licensee must provide reasonable access to certain legally qualified political candidates. When a legally qualified candidate makes a use of the broadcast facility during a non-exempt program, then an opposing candidate is entitled to request equal opportunities. The four categories of exempt programs are: bona fide newscasts, bona fide news interviews, bona fide news documentaries, and on-the-spot coverage of bona fide news events. Independently produced bona fide news interview programs also qualify for the equal opportunities exemption. Thus, syndicated and bartered news interview programs qualify for exemption, provided that their carriage by the licensee is a reflection of its bona fide news judgement and not for the political advantage of the candidate for public office. Certain uses may qualify for the station's Lowest Unit Charge. All uses must be free from censorship, and must bear proper sponsorship identification. Each request for use of the station's facilities, and the disposition of that use must be recorded in the station's political file.

The Communications Act imposes two limitations on the rates that may be charged for political advertisements. They are known as Lowest Unit Charge and the Comparable Use Rules. The Lowest Unit Charge applies for 45 days preceding primary elections and 60 days preceding a general election. It requires that a station determine the lowest advertising rate it is charging its advertisers, including all potential discounts. This rate then becomes the maximum rate that may be charged to bona fide candidates in an election for the same length spot during the same part of the day, even if they do not otherwise meet the criteria normally required to qualify for a preferred rate.

The following discussion, although not intended to be exhaustive or complete, highlights some of the most important features of the political rules.

Reasonable Access: The Communications Act itself mandates access only for federal candidates. The Commission has decided that since the statute mentions only federal access, reasonable access applies only to federal candidates and need not be extended to local elections. Thus, the station may, if it chooses, deny access to non-federal candidates. However, if a station chooses to afford access to non-federal candidates, it must also afford equal opportunities to each of that candidate's legally qualified opponents.

Sales of Political Time Within News Programming: A station may adopt policies to exclude candidates from purchasing advertising within news broadcasts.

Sale of Time On the Weekend Before Election: A station must have staff available to sell, produce and/or program candidate spots on the weekend before the election, if it has provided such weekend services to any commercial advertiser at any time during the year preceding the election.

Definition of a "Use": The Commission defines a "use" as any recognizable appearance by a legally qualified candidate in a non-exempt program (bona fide newscasts, bona fide news interviews, news documentaries, and on the spot coverage of bona fide news events). Thus, if an "oldies" radio station had played an old Sonny and Cher recording while Sonny Bono was running for political office, it could have found itself liable to give away massive amounts of time to Sonny's political opponents.

Disclosure: A broadcast licensee must treat a candidate as if he or she does not know the first thing about advertising on its station. This is true even if a candidate works through an advertising agency, political consultant, or another sophisticated and experienced intermediary. Every factor that could reasonably bear upon a candidate's advertising strategy must be disclosed. In other words, a station must treat a political advertiser as it would treat its most favored advertiser, but assume that they know nothing about advertising on radio or television. Although it cannot be required, it is strongly advised that a station obtain written confirmation from candidates that they have received a full disclosure of sales practices before any political spots are aired.

Classes of Time: The FCC permits a station to establish as many separate classes of time as it wishes, so long as there is a genuine, demonstrable difference between them, not based upon price or quantity.

Rebates: The FCC emphasizes that inadvertent overcharges to a candidate must be discovered and refunded promptly, generally in time to be used in connection with the political campaign.

Improper Sponsor Identification: It is the licensee's responsibility to assure that an adequate sponsorship identification is connected with the advertisement. If reasonable assurances cannot be obtained from the candidate, the station may insert the required sponsorship identification into a deficient spot without providing additional broadcast time, even if it means obliterating some of the candidate's message.

Personal Attack Rules: The Personal Attack Rules require that if, and only if, in the context of a program concerning a controversial issue of public importance, an attack occurs on the honesty, character, integrity or other personal qualities of an identified or easily identifiable person or group, then the station must take the following steps within one week of the attack: (1) notify the person or group attacked of the date and time, and identify the broadcast; (2) send a tape or transcript or, if none are available, as accurate a summary as possible to the attacked party; and (3) offer a reasonable opportunity for response.

Political Editorials: When a licensee airs an editorial, either for or against a legally qualified candidate, it is required to provide notification, a transcript, and an opportunity to reply. If an editorial endorses a candidate, then the notice and the offer to reply must be given to the other legally qualified candidates in the same race. If the editorial opposes the candidate, then that candidate must receive the notice and the reply offer. A station is not obligated to allow the candidate to appear personally in a reply, however, so long as there is an opportunity for someone to air a response. There are specific rules regarding the timing of the notice and reply offer.

Obscene and Indecent Programming: A major regulatory concern is the area of obscenity and indecency. While this area is also regulated by the states, the FCC relies upon a U.S. Statute that states "whoever utters any obscene, indecent, or profane language by means of radio communication shall be fined not more than $10,000 or imprisoned not more than 2 years or both." In 1988, the Commission adopted the following benchmark to determine indecency: "language or material that depicts or describes, in terms patently offensive as measured by contemporary community standards for the broadcast medium, sexual or excretory activities or organs."

Although it qualifies as protected speech under the First Amendment, indecent programming may be required to be channeled to certain hours of the day.

Indecent Programming: After three unsuccessful attempts to establish a "safe harbor" for indecent programming, the Commission won court approval to restrict such programs to the hours of 10:00 p.m. to 6:00 a.m. and to ban all indecency over the air at all other hours. The Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia ruled 7-4 in favor of the Commission. The Court upheld the Commission's definition of "children" as those under 18 years of age.

The decision validates fines exceeding hundreds of thousands of dollars it has levied against broadcasters, principally Howard Stern, for alleged indecent programming.

Obscenity, on the other hand, is not protected speech and may be entirely proscribed. The FCC has no authority to impose criminal sanctions for obscene or indecent broadcasts. Only the Justice Department may bring criminal actions under this statute. However, the FCC may bring administrative sanctions and monetary forfeitures. Any broadcaster venturing into this area of speech is well advised to pay close attention to the Commission's litigation over such programming.

Disclosures of Commercial Interests: The Communications Act requires that any announcement or promotion aired by a broadcast station for which money or anything else of value is paid to the station must include an announcement that the matter being broadcast is a paid promotion or advertisement. Moreover, an employee of the licensee who accepts something of value for broadcasting any information or announcement must disclose that payment, in advance of the broadcast to the station's management. Failure to make such disclosures could result in the violation of the FCC's "payola" and "plugola" rules and federal statutes.

Payola is defined as the undisclosed payment of something of value to a station employee for the on-air promotion of goods, services, or events. Payment to a station employee for broadcast of a particular recording is a classic form of payola. Plugola is the promotion by a station of an item or event in which the licensee or one of its employees has an undisclosed financial interest. An example of this would be an on-air promotion or discussion of a concert in which a station employee has a commercial interest. Such a promotion is permissible if the management of the station is aware of the interest and when appropriate sponsorship information is announced. If disclosure is not made, federal law is violated, which can lead to the loss of a license.

Contests and Lottery Rules: The Commission's rules restrict the broadcast of lottery information and impose forfeitures upon stations found to have done so. A determination that a lottery exists requires a finding that the elements of prize, consideration and chance all exist. The Commission will also fine or sanction a station for broadcasting lotteries that were provided to it in the context of syndicated programs that are carried on a barter or cash basis.

The question of whether there is "consideration" is tricky, and what a licensee and the contest promoter may perceive as a free, alternate means of entry could be viewed by the Commission as onerous enough to constitute "consideration," thus making the contest an illegal lottery. It is also important to bear in mind that recent revisions to the federal laws on lottery permit the broadcast of information about contests that have the element of a lottery so long as the lottery is either authorized or otherwise not prohibited by state law and conducted as a promotional activity by a commercial organization that is clearly "occasional and ancillary" to the main business of the sponsoring organization. Special rules apply to advertising pertaining to Indian gaming.

If the contest has the elements of a lottery, you must check with the appropriate official in your state to determine whether it is permissible under state law. If the state law prohibits the lottery, it is a violation of the Commission's Rules to broadcast information about it. To provide protection against liability, a licensee should have in place procedures for systematic review of every program, and indemnification provisions in its syndication contracts.

With respect to the advertisement of casino gambling, this past year saw two court decisions that could fundamentally alter the future of this issue. First, on February 25, the Ninth Circuit U.S. Court of Appeals released its decision in Valley Broadcasting Company v. USA. Argued over two years ago, the broadcasting community has been eagerly awaiting this decision as a milestone and, perhaps, turning point on the issue of broadcast advertisements for casino gambling. Further, in Players International, Inc. v. USA, Civil Action No. 96-4911, the United States District Court, District of New Jersey, granted a Motion for Summary Judgment filed by numerous casino owners in New Jersey.

In both decisions, the court held that the underlying statute, and the FCC regulations implementing the statute, were unconstitutional infringements on the First Amendment. Essentially, the court concluded that the federal anti-lottery advertising statutes were so internally inconsistent as applied to the various activities they covered and specifically excepted from their coverage, that the Act could not be upheld because the government failed to demonstrate that its restrictions will in fact alleviate the asserted harms to a material degree.

In addition to these two decisions, the Supreme Court remanded an appeal of the Fifth Circuit's decision in Greater New Orleans Broadcasting Association v. USA, finding it inconsistent with its recent decision in 44 Liquormart v. Rhode Island. Also, on December 23, 1997, the Department of Justice appealed the Valley decision.

However, during the pendency of the appeal, those broadcasters in the Ninth Circuit, consisting of Nevada, California, Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana and Arizona, as well as those broadcasters in New Jersey, may run casino advertisements, so long as the state in which the licensee operates does not prohibit such advertisements. Again, though, each broadcaster is strongly urged to contact their counsel to confirm state law.

Broadcast Hoaxes: The FCC prohibits the broadcast of hoaxes containing false information concerning a crime or catastrophe. It defines a "crime" as any act or omission subject to criminal punishment and a "catastrophe" as a disaster involving violent or sudden events affecting the public. Thus, the rule does not cover a broadcast that might upset some listeners but does not pose a substantial threat to public health or safety.

A violation of the hoax rule requires a finding of the following three elements:

1. Licensee knowledge of falsity: the licensee must have known that the broadcast concerning the crime or catastrophe was false. A licensee will be held accountable for the actions of its employees and, therefore, must monitor their actions.
2. Foreseeability of substantial public harm: the FCC deems public harm to have been foreseeable if the licensee could expect with a reasonable degree of certainty that substantial harm would occur.
3. Direct causation of substantial public harm: the FCC defines public harm as damage to the health or safety of the general public, diversion of law enforcement or other public health or safety authorities from their duties and damage to property. The public harm must begin immediately after the broadcast and result in actual damage, rather than a mere threat of harm.

PUBLIC INSPECTION FILES

All broadcasting stations are required to maintain a station file open to public inspection. The file must be kept in the station's community of license at an accessible location. If the main studio is in the community, then it must be kept there. If not, then it must be kept somewhere else in the community, and a toll free telephone number must be maintained to provide the public access to station management. The file must be available upon request, without further inquiry except for name and address, during normal business hours, and the inquiring party must be allowed to copy any portion of it.

The public file must contain a variety of station information. Two of the most important items are the station's annual "Issues/Program List," a list of community issues and the station's most significant programming responding to them, and the Political File.

The "Issues/Programs" List must be prepared every three months and placed in the public file on the tenth day of each calendar quarter. The Political File must include a complete record of all requests for broadcast time made by or on behalf of candidates for public office, along with information about disposition and charges. Requests for a specific class or length of time must be recorded even if time is not actually sold.

Records must be complete and self-explanatory. Numerical or shorthand codes are not allowed! Generally, material in the file must be retained for the longer of the license term, or until the FCC grants the first license renewal after the materials were put in the file.

Other items that must be kept in the public file include, with some exceptions, all FCC applications and all correspondence about them between the FCC and the applicant, all pleadings relating to the station, FCC decisions about the station, and a statement about any petitions to deny which might have been filed against the station. The station must also keep the engineering portion of any application as long as it reflects the current technical operation of the station, and for three years after it becomes obsolete.

The file must also include every ownership report or supplemental ownership report filed after May 13, 1965 for the longer of the usual retention period, or as long as they reflect current ownership. All control, management or programming agreements associated with ownership reports must be filed. For example, network affiliation (television only), citizen group programming agreements, stock pledges, oppositions and proxy statements. While the file does not require agreements with the station personnel and professionals, copies of them must be kept available for inspection by authorized FCC officials.

The station must maintain in the file a copy of every Annual Employment Report during the license term with all associated documents and a copy of the station's EEO Program submitted with the last renewal.

The file must include sponsor identification materials for political or "controversial issues of public importance" programming, letters from the public that do not request anonymity, a certification of compliance with public notice of renewal applications and all other matters which have a "substantial bearing" on a claim or complaint against the licensee or permittee or which relate to a Commission investigation.

NRSC-2 STANDARD

All AM radio stations are required to comply with the NRSC-2 standards showing an absence of spurious emissions, and must take measurements annually to demonstrate compliance with the emission limits contained in Section 73.44 of the Commission's Rules. No more than 14 months may elapse between measurements.

The measurement data must be accompanied by a description of the equipment and procedures used in taking the measurements, and must be signed and dated by the qualified person or persons taking the measurements. The measurements must be kept on file at the transmitter or remote control point of the station for a period of two years, and on request must be made available to representatives of the FCC.

Although the FCC suggests using a radio frequency spectrum analyzer calibrated in accordance with Section 73.44(a) of the Rules, a licensee may use "other specialized receivers or monitors with appropriate characteristics." However, any disputes about the accuracy of the measurements will be resolved in favor of measurements obtained by a properly calibrated spectrum analyzer.

DIGITAL AUDIO BROADCASTING

The Commission has established the satellite DAB service in the "S" band. It has held an auction for two available licenses, the winners of which are CD Radio, Inc. and American Mobile Radio Corp. Between them they have proposed both an all subscription service and a mixed subscription and commercially supported service. Both contemplate making their systems available in some form to other programmers.

To date, the FCC has not established standards for terrestrial digital radio broadcasting and the broadcasting industry is conducting tests of various DAB systems, such as in-band, on-channel systems. The National Radio Systems Committee, a joint effort of the National Association of Broadcasters and the Electronic Industries Association, has convened a committee for exploring various options for in-band, on-channel systems. The committee is continuing to meet regularly in an effort to develop a standard satisfactory to all parties.

RADIO BROADCAST DATA SYSTEMS

The National Radio Systems Committee (NRSC), the joint venture of the National Association of Broadcasters and the Electronic Industries Association, has adopted a Standard for Radio Broadcast Data Systems known as RBDS. The system incorporates the Radio Data Systems (RDS) Standard employed by the European Broadcasting Union and additional U.S. enhancements, such as the In-Receiver Database System (IRDS) and MBS/MMBS the system used by some companies for broader band FM subcarrier paging and other users of subcarrier data capability. The IRDS system is an in-receiver rom database that is updated by a subcarrier data stream and may be used to make some RBDS benefits available to AM broadcasters.

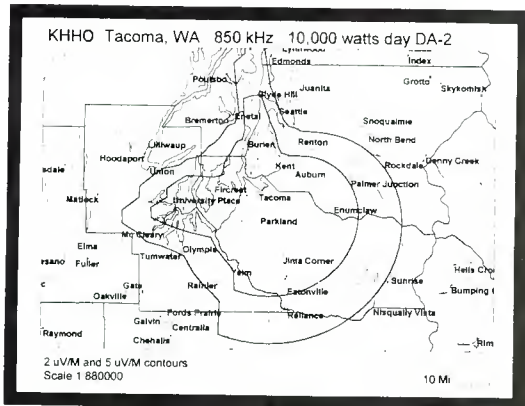

RBDS provides radio broadcasters with the opportunity to have a display on the face of the receiver that provides the information identifying the station, its location and the format in which it is broadcasting at the time. The codes are broadcaster controlled and can be displayed on character screens located in the new RBDS radios. They are especially useful to allow the receiver to scan by format. In addition, RBDS can be employed to provide some of the following services: alternate frequencies to have a receiver retune itself to a broadcaster-designated alternate frequency when the one to which it is tuned becomes weak; emergency broadcasts which may replace the existing EBS system; paging services; navigational services for utilization in automobiles and other mobile vehicles and transparent data channels which can be used for any purpose.

The NRSC is currently exploring new methods to provide high-speed data services over FM broadcast subcarriers.

RF RADIATION STANDARD

The Commission recently adopted more restrictive guidelines for the protection of the exposure of workers and the public to radio frequency (RF) radiation. The revised guidelines for RF evaluation are contained in a new Bulletin 65 published by the Commission's Office of Engineering and Technology (OET). Specifically, the Bulletin establishes differing standards for exposure to the general public, and for workers who are present in the vicinity of the tower during the operation of the station. Each licensee must achieve compliance with the Commission's revised requirements. Every existing radio station will be required to comply with the guidelines by September 1, 2000.
