NORTH CAROLINA

Population 4,556,155 (U. S. Census, 1960)
(July 1, 1968 estimate, 5,135,000)

State Capital, RALEIGH

North Carolina is bounded on the north by Virginia, east and southeast by the Atlantic Ocean, south by South Carolina and Georgia, and west by Tennessee. Its extreme breadth from east to west is 503 miles; extreme length, 185 miles; land area, 49,067 square miles.

The coast is bounded by the famed Outer Banks, site of the Cape Hatteras National Seashore, and a popular resort area. The site of the first English settlement in America is on Roanoke Island. The coastal region is developing industrially, but is still basically agricultural. Tobacco and grains are the most important crops. Next is the middle or "Coastal Plain" section, with varied surface and fine soil. West of this is the "Piedmont" section, a fine farming region producing North Carolina's staples, cotton and tobacco, in abundance, as well as large crops of wheat and other grain. It is a land of fertile valleys and gently sloping hills, which gradually increase in altitude until they reach the mountain region in the west. The Piedmont is the industrial heart of the state, leading in the production of textiles, tobacco and household furniture.

Some of the peaks in the Black Mountains and the Blue Ridge form the highest land east of the Rocky Mountains. Mt. Mitchell, the highest, is 6,684 feet. This region contains good grazing land, and much timber. The scenery is remarkably beautiful, and the climate mild. The Weather Bureau at Asheville gives the temperature (annual monthly mean) at 54.1; highest on record, 99; lowest on record, -6; total annual precipitation, 40.28 inches. With such a climate the state is a popular health and pleasure resort. Asheville is the chief resort and is the eastern gateway to the Great Smoky Mountains National Park and the Blue Ridge Parkway. Pinehurst is one of the nation's famous golf centers.

The State University is located at Chapel Hill, Duke University, at Durham, and the North Carolina State College of Agriculture and Engineering, at Raleigh.

POPULATION

Rank among the states (1960), twelfth. Urban population in 1960, 39.5%. Of the 4,556,155 total population, 3,399,285 were white; 1,156,870 were non-white. Please note that population figures for the U. S. are from 1960 Census, unless otherwise specified. Figures preceded by (x) indicate they were obtained from Rand McNally, and are estimated.

NORTH DAKOTA

Population 682,446 (U. S. Census, 1960)
(July 1, 1968 estimate, 626,000)

State Capital, BISMARCK

North Dakota is bounded on the north by Manitoba and Saskatchewan, Canada, south by South Dakota, east by Minnesota, and west by Montana. Its breadth, east to west, is about 355 miles; length, about 200 miles. Land area is 70,057 square miles.

The Missouri River, in the south central part of the state, furnishes navigation for boats of from three to six hundred tons burden. The Red River, in the northeast, drains on its eastern border the great wheat valley where a premium grade of this cereal is grown. The Missouri River and all small streams and lakes are lined with timber.

That portion of the state east of the Missouri River is mostly rolling prairie. The soil on the Missouri slope is a black, sandy loam, with clay subsoil; while in the Red River valley it is a vegetable deposit of unsurpassed richness. West of the Missouri River the surface is more broken, with stretches of excellent farming and grazing lands, except the badlands areas. In the north center is a group of hills of moderate elevation, known as the Turtle Mountains. In the southwest is a district of eroded clay hills, called the "Bad Lands," generally a good grazing region.

Although great extremes in temperature are recorded, the climate is healthful and the soil productive. The Weather Bureau at Bismarck gives the annual monthly mean temperature as 39.1; highest on record, 114; lowest, -45. The total annual precipitation is 16.84 inches, not a great amount, but sufficient in ordinary years.

The University of North Dakota at Grand Forks, and the North Dakota State University at Fargo, are the leading collegiate institutions of the state.

POPULATION

Rank among the states (1960), forty-fifth. Urban population in 1960, 85.2%. Of the 682,446 total population, 619,538 were white; 12,908 were non-white. Please note that population figures for the U. S. are from 1960 Census, unless otherwise specified. Figures preceded by (X) indicate they were obtained from Rand McNally, and are estimated.

World Radio History

OHIO

Population 9,706,397 (U. S. Census, 1960)

(July 1, 1968 estimate, 10,591,000)

State Capital, COLUMBUS

Ohio is bounded on the north by Michigan and Lake Erie, east by Pennsylvania and West Virginia, south by West Virginia and Kentucky, and west by Indiana. Its greatest extent from east to west is 225 miles, from north to south, 200 miles. Its land area is 41,014 square miles plus 3,457 square miles which are in Lake Erie.

The general character of the surface is that of a plateau about 800 to 1,000 feet above sea level. Deep valleys cut by rivers and streams give the whole state a distinctively undulating surface. The soil is everywhere fertile and the state ranks high in all branches of agriculture.

Ohio has navigable waterways for the 430 miles of the Ohio, the 230 miles of lake frontage, and for 100 miles up the Muskingum River in the southeast. Rail transportation, served by 34 railroads with 8,139 miles of track, is heavy in all directions. The highway system exceeds 106,000 miles. The mean average temperature is 52.7; highest on record, 103; lowest on record, -17; total annual precipitation, 35.5 inches.

Ohio is ranked third as an industrial state, and is first in production of many things including tires and tubes, paint, refrigerators and machine tools.

One of the interesting features of Ohio has been its political life. It is regarded as a pivotal state in many elections, and eight Presidents have been born here. Ohio has 70 institutions of higher education, some of which are Ohio State University at Columbus; Western Reserve at Cleveland; Cincinnati University at Cincinnati; Ohio Wesleyan University at Delaware; Oberlin at Oberlin.

POPULATION

Rank among the states (1960), fifth. Urban population in 1960, 73.3%. Of the 9,706,397 total population, 8,909,698 were white; 796,699 were non-white. Please note that population figures for the U. S. are from 1960 Census, unless otherwise specified. Figures preceded by (X) indicate they were obtained from Rand McNally, and are estimated.

OKLAHOMA

Population 2,328,284 (U. S. Census, 1960)
(July 1, 1968 estimate, 2,518,000)

State Capital, OKLAHOMA CITY

Oklahoma is bounded on the north by Kansas, east by Arkansas and Missouri, south and west by Texas. It is over 300 miles in width from east to west, and in length from north to south averages about 160 miles. Its land area is 68,417 square miles.

The surface is a vast, rolling plain, treeless in the west, but rising in the east to the Chautauqua, Wichita, and Ozark Mountains which are heavily wooded. The Arkansas and Red Rivers are navigable for boats of light draft for some distance into the state. The prevailing type of soil is a deep, dark red loam. The climate is variable and the rainfall in the west is scanty, though it is generally sufficient in the east. Dry farming is extensively practiced in the western section. The Weather Bureau at Oklahoma City gives the temperature (annual monthly mean) as 60.1 highest on record, 113; lowest on record, -17. The total annual precipitation is 31.65 inches.

The Indian Territory, which was combined with Oklahoma Territory to form the state, was the home of the Cherokee, Creek, Choctaw, Chickasaw and Seminole Indians. The descendants in 1960 numbered 64,689, according to the census.

OREGON

Population 1,768,687 (U. S. Census, 1960)
(July 1, 1968 estimate, 2,008,000)

State Capital, SALEM

Oregon is bounded on the north by Washington, east by Idaho, south by Nevada and California, and west by the Pacific Ocean. Its width east and west is 395 miles; length north and south is 295 miles; land area, 96,850 square miles; rank in area, tenth.

It is divided unequally by the Cascade Mountains. East of this range the surface is generally undulating table land, with high, cone-like hills and deep canyons. Between the Cascade and Coast ranges is the Willamette Valley, 60 miles wide by 150 miles long and exceedingly fertile; from the coast range westward the surface is mountainous, hilly, and broken. Dairying, wool growing, stock raising, and the growing of walnuts, filberts, winter wheat, barley, oats, and hay all flourish. The growing and processing of peas, beans and corn in the Willamette Valley and Umatilla County is a vast industry.

The fruit industry is among the most important in the country, particularly pears, apples, strawberries and cranberries, which are shipped to eastern markets. Prune growing and drying is also an important industry. The Weather Bureau at Portland gives the temperature (annual monthly mean) as 53.1; highest on record, 107; lowest on record, -2; total annual precipitation, 41.62 inches.

Several irrigation projects are located in the stretches of semi-arid lands in the southeast. The Owyhee Dam, one of the highest in the world, is the key of a great reclamation project and provides water for 101,476 acres near the Idaho line.

The Columbia River, on the north, carries tonnage along the whole of its 400 miles from the Idaho line, and flows into the Pacific with a width of fourteen miles at its mouth, making one of the finest harbors in the world. The Snake River, on the east, also conveys much traffic. The salmon fisheries at Astoria at the mouth of the Columbia are among the world's greatest.

Oregon has almost half of more than one trillion feet of timber standing in the three coast state, Oregon, Washington, and California. For timber cut it ranks first. Its great Columbia Highway, unexcelled for scenic beauty, Mt. Hood, and the unique Crater Laker, are points of tourist interest. Also the Malheur Wildlife Refuge, perhaps the greatest migratory bird refuge in the United States. The University of Oregon is located at Eugene; Oregon State University at Corvallis.

POPULATION

Rank among the states (1960), thirty-second. Urban population in 1960, 62.2%. Of the 1,768,687 total population, 1,732,037 were white; 36,650 were non-white. Please note that population figures for the U. S. are from 1960 Census, unless otherwise specified. Figures preceded by (x) indicate they were obtained from Rand McNally, and are estimated.

PENNSYLVANIA

Population 11,319,366 (U. S. Census, 1960)
(July 1, 1968 estimate, 11,712,000)

State Capital, HARRISBURG

Pennsylvania is bounded on the north by New York and Lake Erie, east by New York and New Jersey, south by Delaware, Maryland, and West Virginia, and west by West Virginia and Ohio. Its greatest breadth from east to west is about 302 miles; its greatest length about 175 miles. Its land area is 45,045 square miles, slightly more than half of which is forested.

The surface is varied, chiefly level and slightly undulating in the east and northwest, mountainous in the interior. The Appalachian range traverses the state from northeast to southwest. In these mountains are many of the state's popular vacation resorts. The Susquehanna, Delaware, Allegheny and Monongahela are rivers important in drainage or navigation.

Pennsylvania is a leading industrial state, its two most important industries being metal and metal products, and textiles and kindred products. The Pittsburgh area, Johnstown, Bethlehem and Greater Philadelphia are the centers of steel production. Ingots and steel for castings account for approximately 20 per cent of the national total. It leads the nation in the production of carbonated beverages, chocolate and cocoa products and pretzels. It also has a virtual monopoly in the production of anthracite in the coal region surrounding Scranton, Wilkes-Barre and Pottsville, besides producing considerable bituminous in the southwestern part of the state.

The largest city, Philadelphia, is one of the principal ports for foreign and coastwise trade and one of the leading manufacturing cities. Together with Chester, it is also one of the main shipbuilding stations. Erie, Pittsburgh, and the Allentown-Bethlehem-Easton area are also great commercial centers.

There is a wide diversification of agriculture in the state, the principal agricultural counties being Lancaster, York, Chester, Berks, Lancaster and York counties are the principal tobacco raising localities, Lancaster county probably producing more than any other county in the United States.

The Weather Bureau at Philadelphia gives the temperature as: highest on record, 106; lowest on record, -11; mean daily average temperature range, 46.5 to 62.8; average annual precipitation, 41.20 inches.

Many of the important colleges and universities of the East are located here. They include the University of Pennsylvania and Temple University at Philadelphia, University of Pittsburgh and Carnegie Institute of Technology at Pittsburgh, and Pennsylvania State University at University Park. Altogether Pennsylvania has 130 institutions of higher education.

POPULATION

Rank among the states (1960), third. Urban population in 1960, 71.6%. Of the 11,319,366 total population, 10,464,004 were white; 865,362 were non-white. Please note that population figures for the U. S. are from 1960 Census, unless otherwise specified. Figures preceded by (X) indicate they were obtained from Rand McNally, and are estimated.

AGRICULTURE

Number of farms (1964), 83,086. Farm acreage, 10,803,983. Average acreage per farm, 130. Average value per farm, $30,358. Farms selling products over $10,000 in value, 24,036. Cash receipts from farm marketings (1967): crops, $242,420,000; livestock and products (includes meat animals, dairy products, poultry and eggs), $671,027,000.

Value of sales of chief crops (1967): corn, $32,095,000; potatoes, $17,187,000, rank, eighth; soybean, $15,783,000; hay, $15,488,000; tobacco (value of production), $10,878,000; barley, $2,842,000; oats, $2,430,000; soybeans, $1,310,000; maple sirup, $313,000; red clover seed, $103,000; rye, $90,000; timothy seed, $30,000.

PUERTO RICO

Population 2,349,544 (U. S. Census, 1960)
(July 1, 1968 estimate, 2,730,000)

Capital, SAN JUAN

Puerto Rico lies between 65° and 68° west longitude and 16° and 19° north latitude. San Juan, the capital, is 225 miles east of the Island of Santo Domingo-Haiti, and 1,899 miles southeast of New York. The Island is 95 miles long and 35 miles wide, has an area of 3,435 square miles, and a coast line of about 345 miles. The territory includes also a number of smaller islands, among them Vieques Island and Culebra Island, at the east and Mona Island at the west. Puerto Rico is the easternmost island of the Greater Antilles, and one of a chain of islands extending from the tip of Florida to the coast of Venezuela.

Few areas of the United States afford such a delightful climate as Puerto Rico. Its location within the trade-wind belt and its mountainous surface make it one of the most favorable regions in the tropics. The climate is warm, but excessive temperatures do not occur. The Weather Bureau at San Juan (1967), gives the temperature (annual monthly mean) as 76.6, highest on record, 97; lowest on record, 50. Total annual precipitation is 40.28 inches.

There are two good harbors: San Juan on the north coast, Ponce on the south.

POPULATION

The average number of inhabitants to the square mile is about 714, making it one of the most densely populated agricultural areas in the world. The population has generally shown a steady increase; 50.6% being urban and 49.4% rural.

AGRICULTURE

The land resources of Puerto Rico are not great. Only 845,000 acres, according to Soil Conservation Service estimates, are well adapted to permanent agricultural use, of which three fourths require complex or intensive soil conservation practices.

Chemical fertilizer is used generally in the growing of sugar cane, tobacco and other field crops. Agriculture, nevertheless, is an important source of income and employment. Agricultural produce has contributed in all years the great bulk of total exports. However in 1965, for the first time in Puerto Rico's history, more people were employed in manufacture than in agriculture. In 1967-68, there were 91,000 employed in agriculture, compared to 137,000 employed in manufacture.

Sugar cane production has been the foundation on which the agricultural structure of the Island was based. It was the largest single source of employment, 30,000 or 32.3% of the gainful workers in agriculture were employed in sugar cane farming during 1965-66 and production reached 9,465,000 tons but in 1967, this figure dropped to 8,160,000 tons.

Tobacco continues to hold an important place in Puerto Rico's economy. It represents the only source of cash income for many small farm growers. Cultivation of tobacco expanded rapidly until market difficulties introduced a period of decline. In 1967 the tobacco crop, grown under quota, reached a total of 123,500 hundredweights, the lowest in 24 years.

IMPORTS AND EXPORTS

Trade is chiefly with the continental United States. Because Puerto Rico is an integral part of the United States, there are no tariff barriers and it is as easy to transact business as it is in any of the states. The banking system is the same and there is no difficulty in obtaining credit ratings. Practically all the business men speak English. Puerto Rico buys more merchandise per capita from the continental United States than any country in the world, except Canada.

Shipments from the United States mainland in 1967 were $1,570,289,873. Chief imports from the mainland: vegetable food products and beverages; textile fibers and manufactures; animals and animal products; metals and manufactures (including machinery and vehicles); chemicals and related products; non-metallic minerals; wood and paper; dairy products; also fish, rice, wheat, flour, dried beans, rubber products, cigarettes, manufactured cotton goods, petroleum, glass, cement, automobile parts and accessories, medicinal and pharmaceutical preparations.

Shipments to the mainland during 1967 totalled $1,256,326,275. Of this figure sugar and its by-products (rum, alcohol, molasses, acetone, butyl alcohol, bay rum), account for $84,065,497.

Other exports: pineapples, tobacco, coconuts, needlework, electronic and pharmaceutical products. In 1967-68 exports of fresh pineapple amounted to $2,469,618; canned pineapple, $1,090,994; coconuts in the shell, $362,517. Cucumbers, tomatoes, and peppers are the principal vegetable crops exported from Puerto Rico.

MISCELLANEOUS

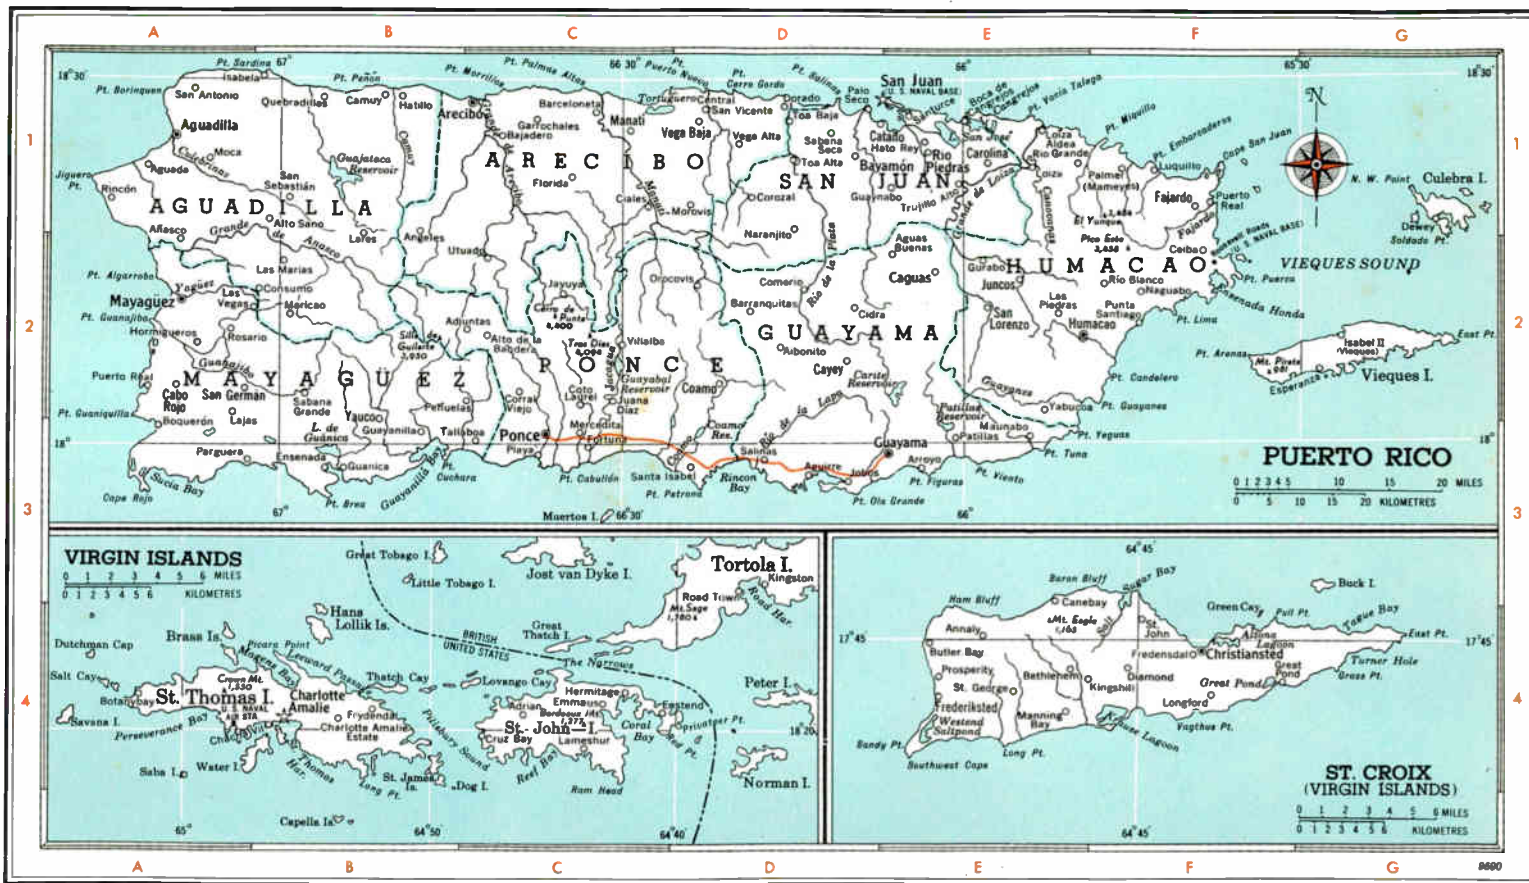

Mineral products in 1967 had a value of approximately $56,862,000 (est.). Cement is the principal mineral product.

Puerto Rico is making great strides in her economic and social life. A network of over 3,800 miles of hard-surfaced roads serves all cities and towns of the Island. Motor vehicle registrations as of June 30, 1968, were 470,000. Not one of the Island's twelve ports is more than five hours distant by motor vehicle from any important community.

The unusual panoramas of mountains, valleys, tropical seas and white beaches provide a very fascinating attraction on a tour of the Island. Old-world splendor is found in its cathedrals. Towns are of quaint atmosphere, enlivened by new industrial plants, homes and public buildings, which are the result of the current development program. Old historic forts are of much interest. A considerable variety of tourist accommodations is available. A record of 810,000 visitors spent $154,900,000 in the Islands in 1967. Visitors to the Island need fear none of the illness of other tropical areas.

The majority of new homes in the Island are detached and built of reinforced concrete. Electric or gas cooking facilities are available. There were (6-30-68), 635,155 electric meters. Telephone service is supplied at a reasonable rate. Number of telephones (6-30-68), 252,073. Number of post offices (6-30-68), 100. Total bank deposits (6-30-68), $1,829,702,000. The United States Armed Forces operate a radio station at San Juan. There are also 45 AM and 23 FM radio stations and 11 television stations.

The educational system is much like that found elsewhere in the United States. Spanish and English are taught and spoken in the classroom. The University of Puerto Rico is a land-grant college offering a variety of undergraduate and graduate programs.

Under the Constitution put into effect July 25, 1952, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico is governed by a Legislative Assembly of 27 Senators and 51 Representatives from 8 senatorial districts, 40 representative districts, and 11 of each at large; an Executive Branch by a Governor and 8 Secretaries; and a Judicial Branch administered by the Supreme Court, consisting of a Chief Justice and 6 Associate Justices. The Government plans public works in support of industry and greater development of modern agriculture techniques. Wages and the standard of living are lower than on the mainland.

RHODE ISLAND

Population 859,488 (U. S. Census, 1960)

(July 1, 1968 estimate, 913,000)

State Capital, PROVIDENCE

Rhode Island is bounded on the north and east by Massachusetts, south by the Atlantic Ocean, and west by Connecticut. Its extreme length from north to south is 47 miles; extreme breadth, 38 miles; land area, 1,057 square miles; smallest state in area.

Beyond the Narragansett basin, the surface is mostly rough, hilly, and stony. There are no mountains and few hills of any altitude. About two-thirds of the land area is woodland. The Weather Bureau at Providence gives the temperature (annual monthly mean) as 50.6; highest on record, 102; lowest on record, —17. Mean annual precipitation is 39.41 inches.

Newport, on Narragansett Bay, is one of the most famous of America's watering places and is noted for the palatial homes built there by wealthy patrons. Rhode Island State University, located at Kingston, and Brown University, at Providence, are important among the state's institutions of higher education.

Rhode Island has the third largest per capita industrial output of all the states. It is more than eighty per cent urban, has the densest population of all the states, 748 persons to the square mile, and exerts influence out of all proportion to its size and population. Providence, the capital, Woonsocket and Pawtucket are the chief industrial centers. Major manufactures are textiles, jewelry and metal products. Providence is an important oil port, rail center, and center of wholesale and retail trade, the second largest market in New England.

POPULATION

Rank among the states (1960), thirty-ninth. Urban population in 1960, 87.5%. Of the 859,488 total population, 838,712 were white; 20,776 were non-white. Please note that population figures for the U. S. are from 1960 Census, unless otherwise specified. Figures preceded by (x) indicate they were obtained from Rand McNally, and are estimated.

AGRICULTURE

Number of farms (1964), 1,115. Farm acreage, 105,135. Average acreage per farm, 94.3. Average value per farm, $47,255. Farms selling products over $10,000 in value, 419.

Cash receipts from farm marketings (1967): crops, $9,444,000; livestock and products (includes meat animals, dairy products, poultry and eggs), $10,909,000.

Value of sales of chief crops (1967) potatoes, $2,579,000; hay, $111,000.

Value of sales of fruits (noncitrus) (1967): apples, $295,000.

Farm value of animals on farms (1-1-68): all cattle and calves $3,870,000; hogs and pigs, $288,000; all sheep and lambs, $31,000.

Cash receipts from poultry (1967): eggs, $2,949,000; chickens (farm and commercial broilers), $485,000; turkeys, $85,000.

Cash receipts from dairy products (1967): all milk and cream, $5,599,000. Total milk production on farms, 85,000,000 lbs. Dairy products (1967) ice cream, 1,687,000 gallons.

FISHERIES

Total catch (1966), 68,088,000 lbs.; $5,328,000 value. Principal fish: clams, flounder, porgy, butterfish, lobsters.

MANUFACTURES

Statistics for 1964: value added by manufacture, $930,000,000. Leading industry groups: textile mill products, primary metal industries, machinery (except electrical). Total expenditures for new plant and new equipment, $42,000,000.

Final figures for value added by manufacture in each of the leading industry groups are available through Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402.

MINERALS

Value of production (1966), $3,947,000. Principal minerals in order of value: sand and gravel, stone, gem stones.

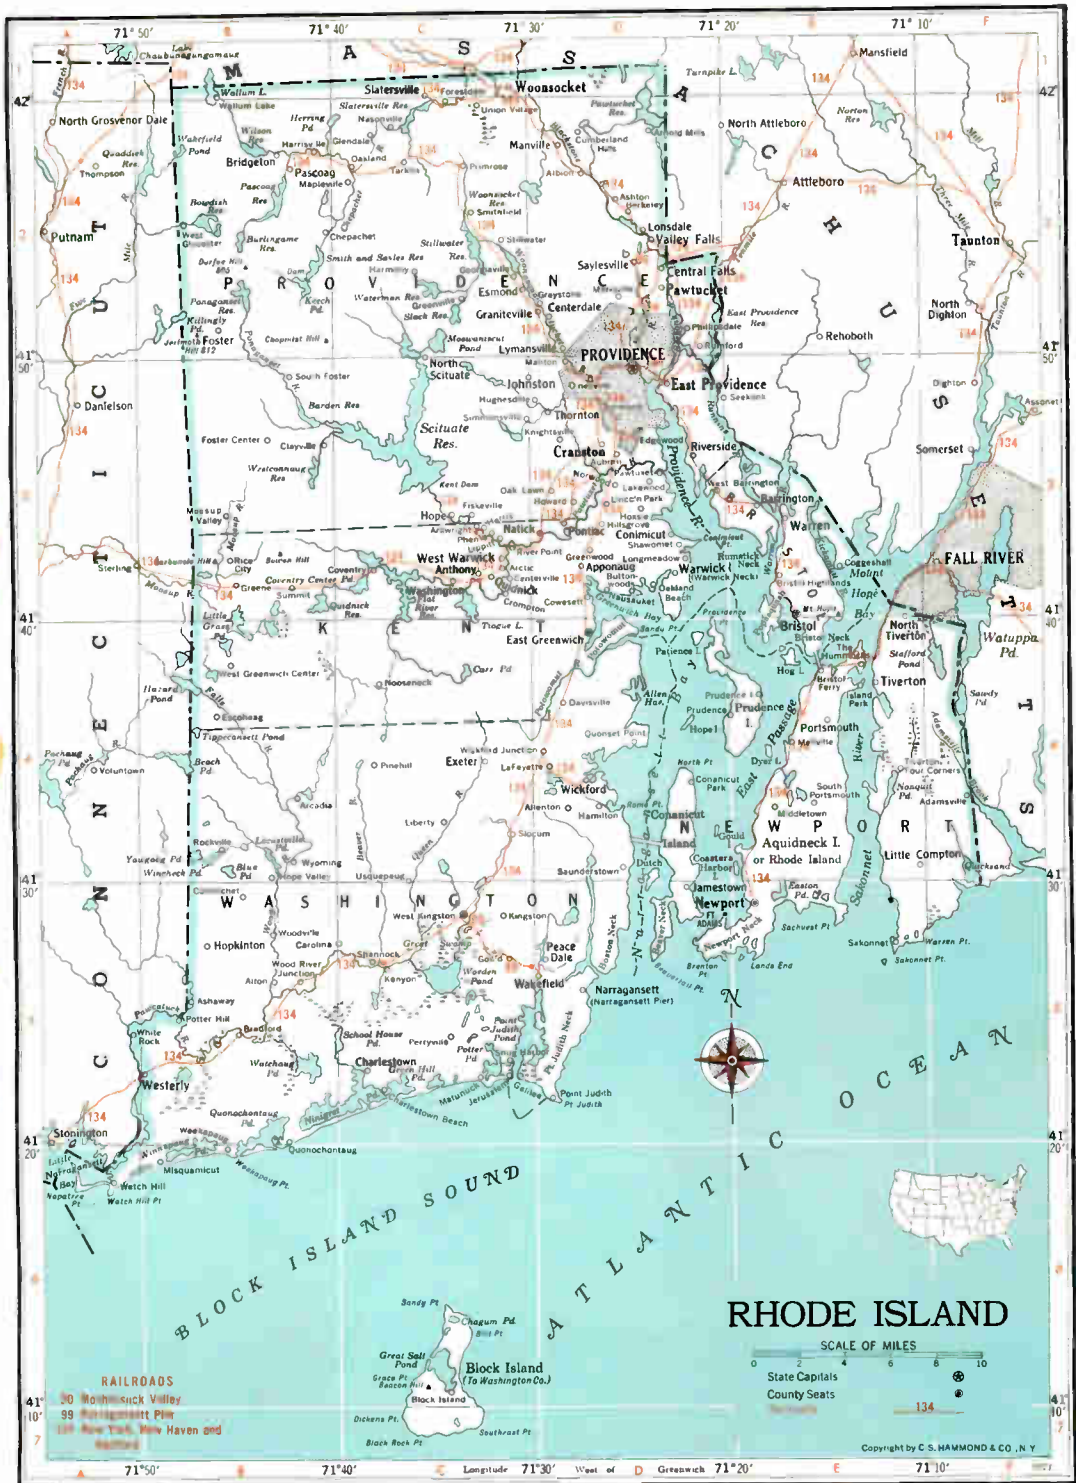

MISCELLANEOUS

Number of telephones (1-1-68) 471,000. Motor vehicles registered (August, 1968, est.), 445,000. Number of post offices (6-30-67), 59. Number of retail stores (1963), 8,821; sales, $1,125,878,000.

SOUTH CAROLINA

Population 2,382,594 (U. S. Census, 1960)
(July 1, 1968 estimate, 2,692,000)

State Capital, COLUMBIA

South Carolina is bounded on the north and northeast by North Carolina, southeast by the Atlantic Ocean, west and southwest by Georgia. Its greatest breadth from east to west is about 275 miles, and its greatest length about 210 miles; land area, 31,055 square miles.

The surface presents nearly the same features as North Carolina, a wide sand belt along the coast, then a tract of sand hills, then rising land westward to the Blue Ridge Mountains. The highest peak, Sassafras Mountain, is 3,548 feet above the sea. The climate in the western section is comparatively cool, the central part medium, and the coast warm and humid. The Weather Bureau at Charleston gives the temperature (annual monthly mean) as 66.0; highest on record, 104; lowest on record, 7. Total annual precipitation is 49.16 inches.

The coast is indented with several harbors, Charleston, the most important one, being a prominent coast-wise and foreign shipping point. Agriculture is the state's leading occupation, with tobacco the principal money crop, followed by cotton, eggs and dairy products. The University of South Carolina at Columbia and Clemson Agricultural College, lead among the institutions of higher learning.

POPULATION

Rank among the states (1960), twenty-sixth. Urban population in 1960, 41.2%. Of the 2,382,594 total population, 1,551,022 were white; 831,572 were non-white. Please note that population figures for the U. S. are from 1960 Census, unless otherwise specified. Figures preceded by (X) indicate they were obtained from Rand McNally, and are estimated.

SOUTH DAKOTA

Population 680,514 (U. S. Census, 1960)

(July 1, 1968 estimate, 657,000)

State Capital, PIERRE

South Dakota is bounded on the north by North Dakota, east by Minnesota and Iowa, south by Nebraska, and west by Montana and Wyoming. Its breadth, east to west, is nearly 380 miles; length about 240 miles; its land area is 77,047 square miles.

The Missouri River, which drains most of the state, has been harnessed by six huge earth-fill power dams. Four in South Dakota are: Oahe, north of Pierre, is 242 feet high and the world's largest rolled earth dam; Big Bend at Ft. Thompson; Ft. Randall at Pickstown and Gavins Point at Yankton. East of the Missouri the state is mostly rolling prairie, and a succession of fertile valleys are highly productive in the growing of corn, wheat, and other grains and vegetables. West of the river the land is more broken, with rich mining land in the southwestern or Black Hills region, a mountain district that is nearly 5,000 square miles in extent. It is largely forested and rich in mineral wealth. Westward from the Missouri River to the Wyoming line, in the entire west river area, are the best grazing lands. The Weather Bureau at Huron gives the temperature (annual monthly mean) as 43.6; highest on record, 111; lowest on record, —43; total annual precipitation, 20.65 inches.

A feature of the state is the large area in Sioux Indian reservation—the Rosebud, Cheyenne River, Crow Creek, Pine Ridge, Lower Brule, Standing Rock and Sisseton. The estimated Indian population numbers about 40,000.

Another feature is the Mount Rushmore National Memorial, of which the first unit, a sixty-foot head of George Washington, was unveiled in 1930. Other units completed in the ensuing decade are the heads of Thomas Jefferson, Abraham Lincoln, and Theodore Roosevelt. These are all on the face of Mount Rushmore (altitude, 6,200 feet; with 1,686 acres).

The Black Hills National Forest covers 1,134,167 acres, nearly surrounding Custer State Park. The state university is located at Vermillion; South Dakota State College is at Brookings.

TENNESSEE

Population 3,567,089 (U. S. Census, 1960)
(July 1, 1968 estimate, 3,976,000)

State Capital, NASHVILLE

Tennessee is bounded on the north by Kentucky and Virginia, southeast by North Carolina, south by Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi, west by Arkansas and Missouri. Its extent from east to west is 432 miles; north to south, 109 miles; land area, 41,797 square miles.

The state is popularly divided into East, Middle, and West Tennessee. East Tennessee includes the Great Smoky Mountains, the eastern mountain border, the beautiful East Tennessee River Valley, and about half of the Cumberland Mountain plateau. Here are produced corn, cotton, apples, peaches and winter wheat. Middle Tennessee reaches from about the center of the plateau to the Tennessee River, and is a region of fertile terraces. It includes a vast elliptical basin of nearly 5,000 square miles which yields excellent grain, tobacco, and much cotton. West Tennessee extends from the Tennessee River to the Mississippi, and is somewhat broken in the east, succeeded by a rolling plain descending to the latter river. It is extremely fertile, and produces good crops of cotton and corn. Beef and dairy cattle are produced throughout the state.

The Weather Bureau at Nashville gives the temperature (annual monthly mean) as 60.1; highest on record, 107; lowest on record, -13; normal annual precipitation, 45.03 inches.

The forests of the state are extensive, covering nearly 30,000 square miles. The Tennessee Mountains are beautiful, and make delightful summer resorts. Lookout Mountain, site of a celebrated battle during the Civil War, is of particular interest at Chattanooga. Among the many institutions of higher learning are the University of Tennessee, located at Knoxville, and Vanderbilt University at Nashville.

POPULATION

Rank among the states (1960), seventeenth. Urban population in 1960, 52.3%. Of the 3,567,089 total population, 2,977,753 were white; 589,336 were non-white. Please note that population figures for the U. S. are from 1960 Census, unless otherwise specified. Figures preceded by (x) indicate they were obtained from Rand McNally, and are estimated.

State Capital, AUSTIN

Texas, second in size among the states, is bounded on the north by New Mexico, Oklahoma, and Arkansas; east by Oklahoma, Arkansas, and Louisiana; southeast by the Gulf of Mexico; southwest by Mexico; and west by New Mexico. Its greatest length is 801 miles; greatest breadth, 773 miles east to west; land area, 263,449.4 square miles.

The surface elevation varies from sea level along the Gulf Coast to 8,751 feet at the summit of Guadalupe Mountain in Culberson County. From the Sabine River to the Trinity River extends the great pine timber region of Texas, generally level and sandy in the south, rolling and fertile in the north. From the Trinity to the Colorado is prairie, timbered along the streams, with extensive forests of oak, extending through central and western Texas to the Rio Grande, the "Cross Timbers." Four-fifths of western Texas, between the Colorado and the Rio Grande, is prairie. Big Bend National Park, in Brewster County, and Padre Island, called Padre Island has been designated as a national seashore recreation area. Elevation increases gradually from the coast until the Llano Estacado, or Staked Plains, are reached in the northwest. These plains form a large portion of the section known as the "Panhandle," and the natural vegetation consists chiefly of grass. Thousands of acres are irrigated and dry-farmed in this district, but a major agricultural activity here and in the whole western part of the state is stock raising.

The Weather Bureau at Houston gives the temperature (annual monthly mean) as 70.0; highest on record, 108; lowest on record, 5; total annual precipitation, 45.26 inches. At Fort Worth the annual monthly mean is 65.6; highest on record, 112; lowest on record, -8; total annual precipitation, 31.33 inches.

Principal agricultural crops are cotton, sorghum grain, corn, wheat, rice, oats, vegetables, citrus and stone fruit, and pecans. Texas is also one of the leading tree-farming states. The state leads in the number of cattle, sheep, and goats.

Its mineral wealth is also great. Of chief importance are petroleum and natural gas. The gas manufacturing industries are: food processing, petroleum and natural-gas processing, and the manufacture of chemicals, apparel, wood products, primary metals, machinery, and the Ordnance and transportation equipment. Chief centers for manufacture are: Houston, Dallas, Fort Worth, San Antonio, El Paso, Beaumont-Port Arthur, and Corpus Christi.

Texas Agricultural and Mechanical University is located at College Station. The University of Texas, well known for research, is located at Austin and is the largest university in the Southwest, having branches at Houston, Dallas, Galveston, and El Paso. Other major state-supported institutions of higher education are located in Houston, Lubbock, Denton, and Arlington. Houston; a converging point of railroads, Galveston, Beaumont, Port Arthur, and Corpus Christi are important seaports.

UTAH

Population 890,627 (U. S. Census, 1960)
(July 1, 1968 estimate, 1,034,000)

State Capital, SALT LAKE CITY

Utah is bounded on the north by Idaho and Wyoming, east by Wyoming and Colorado, south by Arizona and west by Nevada. Its length, north to south, is about 350 miles, its width about 200 miles, land area 82,346 square miles.

Being in the Rocky Mountain region, Utah has a surface that is generally mountainous. It is, on an average, nearly 6,000 feet above sea level and much of it is a plateau broken by valleys and basins. The Wahsatch Mountains and the Uintas divide the state into two portions, that lying to the north and west in the interior basin, from which there is no drainage, and that to the south and east which forms part of the scenic basin of the Colorado River. In the Uinta range some of the peaks rise to a height of 13,500 feet. Great Salt Lake, noted for its extremely high percentage of salt, lies in the northwestern part of the state at an altitude of 4,218 feet and with an area of 2,360 square miles.

The climate is dry, stimulating and the weather exceptionally clear, with cloudless skies 300 days a year. The Weather Bureau at Salt Lake City gives the temperature (annual monthly mean) as 50.9; highest on record, 106; lowest on record, -30. Total annual precipitation is 13.45 inches.

Mountains and grazing lands comprise about two-thirds of the state, the wooded area about 7,000,000 acres. Most of the latter is situated in the National Forests. The area of land under cultivation is relatively small, although agriculture was the principal source of wealth prior to the last decade. Manufacturing, the development of oil and natural gas, as well as copper and uranium, have now become industries of major importance.

The mineral resources of Utah, which include every known mineral but platinum, are highly valuable. Semi-precious stones are found in large quantities and high grade marble and onyx are quarried.

Sixty-nine percent of all church members in Utah are Mormons (Latter Day Saints). This faith and the great Tabernacle in Salt Lake City are distinguishing features of Utah. Much of the early development of the state is due to the pioneering of the Mormons who fled to its religious security when it was little more than a wilderness. In Salt Lake City, also, is located the State University. Utah has eleven national parks and monuments of great scenic beauty, of which Zion and Bryce Canyons are the better known. The Great American Desert lies in the northwestern part of the state.

POPULATION

Rank among the states (1960), thirty-eighth. Urban population in 1960, 74.9%. Of the 890,627 total population, 873,828 were white; 16,799 were non-white. Please note that population figures for the U. S. are from 1960 Census, unless otherwise specified. Figures preceded by (X) indicate they were obtained from Rand McNally, and are estimated.

VERMONT

Population 389,881 (U. S. Census, 1960)

(July 1, 1968 estimate, 422,000)

State Capital, MONTPELIER

Vermont is bounded on the north by Quebec, Canada, on the east by New Hampshire, south by Massachusetts, and west by New York. It is 143 miles long, from 40 to 85 miles wide, has a land area of 9,278 square miles.

The Green Mountains, by whose name the state is so often called, traverse it from north to south, as do the Taconic Mountains. These are generally covered with forests but also afford excellent early pasturage. Vermont is a leading dairy state and receives 80% of its agricultural income from the sale of fluid milk. Four of Vermont's counties are among the top dairy counties in the union. In this state is found, too, the largest quantity of maple sugar, its millions of maple trees producing maple products that give it first rank in quantity and a reputation for quality. The best soil is found in the river valley areas and the largest farm land areas are near the Connecticut River on the east side of the state, and near the shores of Lake Champlain. This body of water stretches for 120 miles along the state's west boundary. Vermont's picturesqueness with its rugged mountains and many streams attracts many visitors to Vermont annually who find it desirable as a summer residence region. In the winter it is noted for its skiing. The many ski areas help make recreation an important item in Vermont's economy.

The chief mineral wealth of Vermont lies in its quarries. It leads all states in the production of granite and marble. Asbestos mining is also important.

The Weather Bureau at Burlington gives the temperature (annual monthly mean) as 45.1; highest on record, 101, lowest on record, —29. Total annual precipitation is 31.61 inches.

The University of Vermont at Burlington, Middlebury College at Middlebury, St. Michael's College at Winooski Park, and Norwich University at Northfield, are the leading institutions of learning.

POPULATION

Rank among the states (1960), forty-eighth. Urban population in 1960, 38.5%. Of the 389,881 total population, 389,092 were white; 789 were non-white. Please note that population figures for the U. S. are from 1960 Census, unless otherwise specified. Figures preceded by (X) indicate they were obtained from Rand McNally, and are estimated.

AGRICULTURE

Number of farms (1964), 9,247. Farm acreage, 2,524,371. Average acreage per farm, 273. Average value per farm, $30,341. Farms selling products over $10,000 in value, 4,154.

Cash receipts from farm marketings (1967): crops, $14,680,000; livestock and products (includes meat animals, dairy products, poultry and eggs), $124,949,000.

VIRGINIA

Population 3,966,949 (U. S. Census, 1960)
(July 1, 1968 estimate, 4,597,000)

State Capital, RICHMOND

Virginia, the old Dominion State, is bounded on the north by West Virginia and Maryland, east by Maryland and the Atlantic Ocean, south by North Carolina and Tennessee, and west by Kentucky and West Virginia. Its greatest breadth from east to west is about 440 miles, its greatest length 192 miles, land area 39,893 square miles.

The surface is divided into several natural divisions: the Tidewater, comprising the south and southeast, its soil yielding large crops of vegetables and small fruits; an extensive tableland in the center part rising to the mountains in the west; the Piedmont, the Blue Ridge and the Appalachian regions noted for their grasses; and the Shenandoah Valley region which has a rich fertile soil adapted to the growing of cereal grains, particularly corn, wheat, oats and rye. Both the Piedmont and Shenandoah areas are noted for the high quality and variety of the apple orchards.

Much of the mountain region is uncultivated, being forested with a variety of trees. Among them are valuable hardwoods, and the export of lumber is an important industry.

Among watering places, Virginia's Hot Springs is famous as a center of year-round social activity. The climate of the state varies with the topography, the Weather Bureau at Richmond giving the temperature (annual monthly mean) as 57.5; highest degree on record, 107; lowest, -3; total annual precipitation, 42.02 inches.

Of outstanding interest is Virginia's rich historical background. In the state are found the home of George Washington at Mt. Vernon, of Thomas Jefferson at Monticello, Arlington National Cemetery, Appomattox, and Old Surrender Field at Yorktown where Lord Cornwallis laid down his arms in 1781. Thousands of visitors are yearly attracted to these shrines and to Williamsburg, the restored colonial capital.

In Newport News is a large shipbuilding plant. In Hampton Roads the United States maintains a navy yard, and Fortress Monroe, between Chesapeake Bay and the James River, dominates the waterways.

The state has some noted as well as very old institutions of learning. Naming only a few, William and Mary College, second oldest in the country, founded in 1693, is located at Williamsburg; Washington and Lee University at Lexington and the University of Virginia, founded by Jefferson, at Charlottesville.

POPULATION

Rank among the states (1960), fourteenth. Urban population in 1960, 55.6%. Of the 3,966,949 total population, 3,142,443 were white; 824,506 were non-white. Please note that population figures for the U. S. are from 1960 Census, unless otherwise specified. Figures preceded by (X) indicate they were obtained from Rand McNally, and are estimated.

VIRGIN ISLANDS

Population 32,099 (U. S. Census, 1960)
(1967 estimated population, 60,000)

Capital, CHARLOTTE AMALIE

(For map see Puerto Rico)

The Virgin Islands are situated about 40 miles east of Puerto Rico, and the capital, Charlotte Amalie, is 1,442 miles southeast of New York. They consist of three principal islands: St. Thomas, area 28 square miles; St. Croix, 84 square miles; St. John, 20 square miles, and about 50 smaller ones.

They were purchased from Denmark in 1917, for $25,000,000, and, although they had been in the possession of that country for over 200 years, the language of the people is English.

Fanned by the steady trade winds, the Islands have an agreeable year-round climate despite their tropical location, with an average temperature of 78°. They possess the physical beauty, charm and hospitality of the West Indies, and are realizing an increasing revenue from tourist trade. Tourist expenditures for the year 1967 were $75,000,000. Nearly 650,000 visitors came to the Islands in 1967 which makes this the biggest single factor in the economy of the Territory. There are regularly scheduled cruise ships and three airlines which operate weekly passenger service to the Islands.

There is a public highway system, but the dearth of hard-surfaced roads remains a major problem. The second urgent requirement of the Virgin Islands is for improved housing. Such economic problems have been attacked and the people are gradually advancing in the techniques and principles of American democracy.

POPULATION

The population (1960) for St. Croix, 14,973; St. Thomas, 16,201; St. John, 925. Over 80% are wholly or partly Negro.

AGRICULTURE

The land in farms is 52.2% of the area of the Islands. According to the census of 1960 there were 501 farms containing 44,062 acres. Land and buildings were valued at $64,289,529. Average acreage per farm, 87.9. Average value per farm, $128,322.

Until recently sugar cane was the only important crop, but it is now being phased out and will be terminated as a commercial crop. Over 4,000 acres of land will be utilized into feasible food crops.

IMPORTS AND EXPORTS

Trade is carried on mainly with the United States. Total imports (1965), $114,481,000; exports: $34,375,000. A continuous effort is being made to reduce the unfavorable trade balance, which will result in better economic stability. Limited natural resources, few industries, and small population make this a difficult problem.

Textile processing, watches and watch movements are the chief exports; foodstuffs, house furnishings, and machinery the chief imports.

MISCELLANEOUS

Marked advances have been made in educational fields, and in the economic and social life of the people through the expenditure of government funds. In 1966-67 there were 22 public and 17 private schools with an attendance of 15,140.

Air transportation is an increasingly important factor in commerce. In 1965 there were 36,450 landings bringing passengers to the Virgin Islands. Although there is no large commercial fishing industry, the Virgin Island waters are rapidly becoming recognized as a prime game fishing area.

There was an increase in the number of commercial ships entering the port of St. Thomas in the fiscal year 1967. There were 2,599 ships, with a gross tonnage of 6,848,414.

Modern telephone facilities are in operation on St. Thomas, St. John, and St. Croix, with over 14,000 telephones in service as of 8-11-68. Marine cables have been installed that have made possible direct dialing to Puerto Rico and to the mainland. The islands are now served by three radio and one television station. Motor vehicles of all kinds registered (1965), 13,560. Number of post offices (6-30-67), 5. During fiscal year 1965, eight new dams were built.

WASHINGTON

Population 2,853,214 (U. S. Census, 1960)
(July 1, 1968 estimate, 3,276,000)

State Capital, OLYMPIA

Washington is bounded on the north by British Columbia, Canada, west by the Pacific Ocean, east by Idaho and south by Oregon. Its average breadth, east to west, is 330 miles, length 220 miles, land area 66,786 square miles.

The Cascade Mountains divide the state into an eastern and western section which contrast markedly in characteristics. A distinguishing feature of the western section is Puget Sound with more than 2,000 miles of shore line and many harbors, among them the important cities of Seattle, Tacoma, Everett, and Olympia. From its ports go extensive shipping and much passenger travel to Asia, Alaska and points reached by means of the Panama Canal. Manufacturing is Washington's leading industry, followed by agriculture, tourism, and forest products. Non-resident travel accounts for more than $250 million income annually. The state has standing timber of about 330 billion board feet and ranks third in the nation in timber cut.

The valleys in both eastern and western Washington are productive in vegetables, hops and especially fruit. East of the Cascades wheat is grown and in the valleys are great ranges providing winter grazing. Extensive developments in irrigation have been undertaken in the dry portions of eastern Washington. The Weather Bureau at Seattle gives the temperature (annual monthly mean) as 52.0; highest on record, 100; lowest 3; average annual precipitation, 34.1 inches.

The shore resorts of the state are popular, especially along Puget Sound. Many of the mountain peaks rise to great heights. Mt. Rainier with an altitude of 14,410 feet is the fourth highest peak in the United States. It is in the center of a national park—the most popular tourist attraction of the State. The University of Washington is located in Seattle and Washington State University is in Pullman.

POPULATION

Rank among the states (1960), twenty-third. Urban population in 1960, 68.3%. Of the 2,853,214 total population, 2,751,675 were white; 101,539 were non-white. Please note that population figures for the U. S. are from 1960 Census, unless otherwise specified. Figures preceded by (X) indicate they were obtained from Rand McNally, and are estimated.

WEST VIRGINIA

Population 1,860,421 (U. S. Census, 1960)
(July 1, 1968 estimate, 1,805,000)

State Capital, CHARLESTON

West Virginia is bounded on the north and east by Pennsylvania and Maryland, east and south by Virginia, and west by Kentucky and Ohio. Its greatest length from north to south is about 240 miles; greatest breadth, 160 miles; land area, 24,080 square miles.

The surface of West Virginia's rivers is estimated at 135 square miles, for many navigable tributaries of the Ohio River flow through the state. Transportation on the Ohio in the west is heavy. A large part of the land is mountainous and hilly, about two-thirds covered with forests. West Virginia ranks sixth in production of hardwood and has vast timber wealth. The soil of the mountain ridges is fertile to the tops, and the summits of many mountains are flat, natural meadows. The Weather Bureau at Parkersburg gives the temperature (annual monthly mean) as 54.3; highest on record, 106; lowest on record, -27; total annual precipitation, 39.41 inches.

The valley of the great Kanawha is the finest grazing region in the state. No finer blue grass farms exist than those of the central, northern and Greenbrier sections. The soil is well adapted to the production of apples, peaches and other fruits, although agriculture in the state is not so important. The most valuable mineral resource of the state is its coal. The same Appalachian vein that supplies Pennsylvania gives West Virginia, too, coal of highest quality. Next to Pennsylvania it ranks highest among the states in the value of coal produced. The state also ranks high in the production of glassware, chemicals, in steel works and rolling-mill products.

The University of West Virginia is located at Morgantown. White Sulphur Springs, in the eastern part of the state, is a popular health resort, with a famous golf course.

POPULATION

Rank among the states (1960), thirtieth. Urban population in 1960, 38.2%. Of the 1,860,421 total population, 1,770,133 were white; 90,288 were non-white. Please note that population figures for the U. S. are from 1960 Census, unless otherwise specified. Figures preceded by (x) indicate they were obtained from Rand McNally, and are estimated.
