EXPLANATION OF ARRANGEMENT OF DATA AND SYMBOLS

Stations are listed alphabetically by country, in order of frequency in kilocycles.

In the heading for each country, the language, total number of medium-wave stations, and local clock time as related to Eastern Standard Time are shown. Postal rates, both to and from the U.S., are given, and with some exceptions, these rates apply to letters weighing  $\frac{1}{2}$  oz. or less for airmail, and 1 oz. or less for surface mail. Note however, that regardless of where they are located, AFRS stations having APO or FPO addresses take the rate of 3¢ for surface mail and 6¢ for airmail, both to and from the U.S. The heading also indicates whether or not that country accepts International Reply Coupons.

At the foot of the listing for each country, explanation of key letters used to indicate network affiliations is given, as well as of any other special symbols used in that listing, and any other special information.

Information on stations is arranged in eight columns of data, as follows:

- COLUMN 1 - operating frequency in kilocycles. If the frequency is followed by the letter "v", this indicates that the frequency varies, or that the station is not operating on its assigned frequency. In the listing for Cuba, when the operating frequency of a station will change if and when the new NARBA agreement is ratified, the new frequency is shown in parentheses immediately following the present operating frequency.
- COLUMN 2 - call letters assigned. The following symbols are used in front of the call letters: * indicates station has a short-wave relay. # indicates station is under construction, or currently inactive and not operating. Small letters (a, b, c, etc.) indicate station is part of a network, and when the letter is underlined, this indicates it is the key station of the network. Further explanation is given at the foot of each listing. It should be noted that unless otherwise indicated, stations belonging to networks function in network only during part of the broadcast day. Other symbols used, such as @ and %, are explained at the foot of listing.
- COLUMN 3 - operating power in watts. When day and night powers are different, nighttime power in watts is given first, followed, in parentheses, by daytime power in kilowatts. The letter "d" indicates station is authorized to operate during the daytime only.
- COLUMN 4 - station name or slogan, if any. The abbreviation "R." for "Radio" is used occasionally. Exception: For U.S. possessions the name of the station licensee is shown instead of name or slogan.
- COLUMN 5 - city or town where station is located. For Mexico, the state name or abbreviation is also shown.
- COLUMN 6 - post office box or street address of business offices or studios.
- COLUMN 7 - in most cases in this column the name of the general manager or owner is shown. Occasionally, when it is known that another member of the staff, such as the chief engineer, signs verifications, his name is listed.
- COLUMN 8 - when known, normal sign-on or sign-off hours, or both, are shown in Eastern Standard Time. In some cases, regular test periods are shown instead. The following abbreviations are used: w - weekdays; s - Sundays; m - Mondays. Omission of these symbols, however, does not necessarily mean that the same hours are followed seven days a week.

@ - this station broadcasts the correct time only, every minute, interspersed with short news items and ads.
 Note: No attempt has been made to show network affiliation of Mexican stations, principally because there are a great many networks in Mexico, and some stations belong to three or four, and some networks have as many as six affiliates in one city! Therefore, to keep the listings simple, this information has been omitted.

The editor wishes to thank the many government agencies, radio clubs, and persons who have assisted in the preparation of this log, as well as to the many radio stations who have supplied and helped check the data. More than 100 sources were used in compiling the information contained herein, and without the very kind help of these many people, this log would not exist. Every effort has been extended to insure the greatest possible accuracy; however, changes take place every day, especially in station personnel and operating hours. It should also be noted that many stations frequently do not operate with as high power as authorized, although when possible, the actual operating power rather than authorized power has been shown. It is hoped that this log will fill a longfelt need for accurate and comprehensive information on radio stations in the areas covered.
