

Now in our twenty-fourth year of reaching people who reach people

Charlie Edwards, head of Broadcast News, Toronto, who holds the world's record for attending and staying up at conventions, was honored for 25 years association with the news gathering field at the recent annual meeting of the B.C. Radio and Television News Directors' Association. "Uncle Charlie", as he is affectionately known throughout the industry has listened to tales of woe on an average of twice for every Canadian newsmen. He is also given to sniping at station management for its lack of interest in its highly profitable news departments, at the drop of a hat. This time he was presented by the B.C. newsmen with a 12-inch hand-carved Thunderbird totem pole, together with a scroll outlining the Haida Indian interpretation of the pole's significance. Gordon Williamson of Radio CJVI Victoria made the presentation and described Charlie Edwards as "top man in Canadian radio and television news circles."

Rampant on a field of wives — their own — who graced the Western Association of Broadcasters' convention at Banff this month are (left) Bill Stovin, manager of CKOM Saskatoon and immediate past president of the WAB and Jean Pouliot, managing director of Télévision de Québec Ltée, and president of the Canadian Association of Broadcasters. Their wives, among the many who attended the convention to ride herd on their husbands but were diverted by the WAB entertainment and the Banff scenery are Doreen Stovin (left) and Rachel Pouliot.

Frank Canino, director of the play judged best in the Dominion Drama Festival by adjudicator Guy Beauline (r.), waves enthusiastically at the festival audience as he learns his troupe has won the competition's $1000 Canadian Association of Broadcasters' first prize. Jean Pouliot, CAB president, stands with cheque in hand waiting to make the presentation. The CAB, as in past years, donated $21,000 to support the festival and made over 200 news clips available to member stations in order to publicize the event. The CTV Television Network carried news and a one-hour Drama Festival special report produced by CJOH-TV Ottawa. A host of other stations also gave the event special coverage.

About Radio and Television . . .
Accounts, Stations and People

▲ CKLW-TV AND CKLW AM AND FM Radio have set up their own sales office in Toronto, parting company with All-Canada Radio & Television Ltd. in the process, and have made two major executive changes.

Effective June 15 Fred Sorrell took over CKLW sales for Toronto, Montreal and Northern New York State, operating out of the offices of the National Sales Division of RKO General Broadcasting at Suite 322, Lord Simcoe Hotel Toronto.

RKO made the switch to self-selling in the U.S. in 1961, and "the end result has been so dramatic it's been hard to believe," says Edwin C. Metcalfe, new manager for CKLW-TV.

Metcalfe was formerly director of sales operations for the CKLW radio-TV complex. His appointment to the post of television station manager was effective June 14.

The second senior staff change at CKLW saw Robert (Bob) Buss, previously manager of CHAT-TV Medicine Hat Alberta, and manager of CHRC Radio Winnipeg, become manager of CKLW Radio, AM and FM. Buss has assumed responsibility for all radio operations.

▲ PRIME MINISTER PEARSON HAS expressed the hope that Dr. Andrew Stewart will remain on as chairman of the Board of Broadcast Governors for "a while longer."

Speaking in the House of Commons June 14 he said that while Dr. Stewart is contemplating retirement from the board, the government understands he has made no final decision. The Prime Minister added, "We hope to prevail on him to stay on a while longer."

▲ CHUM RADIO TORONTO AND CJCH Radio in Halifax are completing arrangements for joint ownership of the Halifax station, president E. Finlay MacDonald of CJCH Limited has announced.

MacDonald is reported to have said the proposed company, to be operated under the name of Radio CJCH 920 Limited, will have a board of directors appointed by CJCH Limited and Allan Waters, president of CHUM.

The application for joint ownership is expected to be put before the Board of Broadcast Governors in the fall.

▲ BYLES-GIBB & ASSOCIATES Ltd., the new radio sales half of former Stovin-Byles Ltd., was appointed to represent CKAC Radio Montreal nationally effective June 14. CKAC experimented with its own Toronto sales office for the past year, but abandoned the arrangement.

Paul Choinard, formerly Toronto sales representative for the station, is joining Byles-Gibb's Montreal sales office.

▲ CONSTRUCTION OF EDMONTON'S new, and eighth, AM radio station is reported to be running behind schedule because of wet weather. CHQT general manager Murray D. (Curly) Dyck has said the station, originally scheduled to begin broadcasting late in June, will not be on the air until August.

Wet ground has apparently made it impossible to install ground equipment and antennas for the 10,000 watt outlet.

The Edmonton area, with a metropolitan population of slightly under 400,000, is presently served by seven AM stations, two television stations and three FM operations.

▲ THE CANADIAN ASSOCIATION of Broadcasters has announced discontinuation of its annual $21,000 grant to the Dominion Drama Festival. The CAB has been the festival's major sponsor since 1960.

Jim Allard, CAB executive vice-president, is reported to have said the CAB wants to revamp its method of aiding amateur drama. Tentative plans call for a switch to airing amateur theatre on radio and television across the country — with an aid program that in Allard's words "will help the amateurs learn broadcasting techniques."

CFCF-TV in Montreal pioneered the CAB's contemplated project by presenting a series of amateur dramas during the 1964-65 television season. Allard outlined a format for broadcaster assistance to the amateurs that closely parallels CFCF's methods.

Allard said plays presented on radio and television could be run in series as competitions, and adjudicated by local critics aided by tape recordings and videotape playbacks.

"In that way both the amateur groups and people in the radio or TV audience would learn a great deal about theatre technique," he explained.

Further discussions of the change in method of assisting drama were to be held by CAB officials before the end of June.

Alternative financial help for the festival has already been pledged — at least for 1967 — by the Centennial Commission.

▲ A MISSED CUE IN APPLYING for a radio station license means North Bay, Ontario will have to get along without a new AM station — or the prospect of one — until at least next spring.

Bruce McLeod, the prospective station applicant, said he and his group of North Bay businessmen-backers missed the application deadline for September hearings of the Board of Broadcast Governors through an oversight. Rather than face the prospect of winter construction, the group has shelved its plans until spring next year.

McLeod, presently an officer with the Workmen's Compensation Board in Toronto, was formerly manager of the North Bay television station, CFGN-TV (now CFCH-TV) vice-president and general manager of CHIC Radio Brampton, and director of station relations with the CTV Television Network.

He regards North Bay as an attractive radio station site because "it's the only city in Northern Ontario that hasn't got two AM outlets."

▲ TYRRELL & NADON Broadcast Representatives Ltd., after going through a transition-name stage when Cam Logan joined the firm recently (Tyrrell, Nadon & Cam Logan and Associates), has settled on a new corporate identity. Broadcast Media Sales Ltd. is to be the firm's new handle.

▲ GEOFFREY ADAMSON, manager of the electronics division of Canadian Westinghouse Company Limited, was elected president of the Electronics Industries Association of Canada during the group's annual meeting in Ste. Adele, Quebec last week. He replaced retiring president David Knapp, executive vice-president and general manager of Canadian Stackpole Ltd. Toronto.

Regulation by public opinion

If radio and television broadcasting suddenly came under the control of the Canadian Association of Maiden Aunts, if they suddenly introduced a regulation that all spots had to be whispered, if all music had to be of the strictly long-hair variety, if the Board of Broadcast Governors was made up entirely of doctors of philosophy, radio and television would still be the most potent media of communication, the most powerful influence on the Canadian public and the best movers of merchandise that ever existed.

Maybe it would be a good idea if we, who are connected directly or indirectly with radio and/or television remembered these facts and acted accordingly.

Once upon a time the fly in the ointment was the CBC, with its dual function of regulating private broadcasting and at the same time competing with it in the field of advertising.

The new Broadcasting Act and the establishment of the Board of Broadcast Governors as an independent regulatory body whose function it was to regulate both the private industry and the government-owned CBC went a long way towards accomplishing this.

One basic problem is the board's actual structure of three full-time members, who, after the first few months, were able to acquire an amazing knowledge and understanding of the problems of this remarkable business. They have performed commendably, devising and enforcing their regulations with honesty and impartiality to the great benefit, not so much of the industry as of broadcasting itself.

While their regulating has been stringent, the two surviving full-time members have earned the respect, affection even, of their "charges", as was evidenced earlier this month, when both Dr. Stewart, the chairman and Carlyle Allison, the vice-chairman, were made honorary members of the Western Association of Broadcasters. Had it not been for the sad death of the third-full-time member, Bernard Goulet, we are sure that the same gesture of appreciation would have been bestowed upon him at the same time.

Unfortunately this is not the complete story.

In addition to the three full-time members, the Act called for a further twelve governors who were called upon to operate on only a part time basis.

Undoubtedly these twelve, or those of them who are still on the Board, are upright citizens, deeply interested in working conscientiously for the good of their country. However two incongruities stand out very forcibly:

(1) With their other activities - professional, business or social - these twelve part time members never had the opportunity of acquiring a knowledge and understanding of the inner workings of the business to the same degree as the full-time governors.

(2) With the part-time governors outnumbering the full-time ones in the ratio of three to one, it is possible for these part-timers to outvote the full-timers, and we believe that this has sometimes happened.

If regulation of this industry by this sort of tribunal is really necessary or even desirable - and we steadfastly believe that the Criminal Code is adequate to "regulate" all kinds of business - we would urge for a permanent full-time board, somehow or other immunized against political influence and interference. This board, if it has to be, would obviously be armed with the power of introducing regulations, but we do not subscribe to the idea of empowering it to close up a business by its refusal to endorse an application for the re-issuance of an expired license. Rather its function, when it felt circumstances warranted it, would be to lay a formal charge, under the Criminal Code, to be heard by a court of law.

Whatever the future holds, broadcasting will, as we have said, continue to be the tremendous force it is in Canadian life. There have been abuses as there always will be, for the control of which the Criminal Code already exists. But it is our experience that the best and the most effective arbiter of good taste is the public, whose discrimination enables it to choose between good and bad, decent and indecent, in broadcasting just as it does in publishing, theatre, literature and every other field of expression.

It is the good things broadcasting does which have given it its well-earned standing in the national community, and allowing public acceptance to be its arbiter is the best system of regulation there is.

Breaking through the mediocrity barrier

Conclusion of an address by the hard-hitting agency man,
STAN FREBERG

Members of advertising's Old Guard are quick to cite me, or anyone, who would dare to criticize advertising, as the real cause of the black eye Madison Avenue has finally cultivated. "Outrageous!" they thunder. "Advertising can't afford any more bad publicity at this time". Like the alcoholic, who blames everyone but himself for his problem, they refuse to look inward and see themselves as others do. Terrified of introspection, they throw their defense mechanisms into high gear and lash out at all critics, the while destroying themselves by their own commercials. It is one thing to refuse to accept the new school of painless advertising, or a growing revolt of the public toward its painful counterpart it is quite another to continue to nurture the very type of moldy fig technique that has today's consumers laughing at its image. It is one thing to discourage entertainment in advertising; it is another to encourage mediocrity.

Granted, commercials are supposed to move products. On that, hard sell-advertisers and I are in perfect accord. But advertising has another obligation, it seems to me. As the keeper of the keys to a pretty potent communications tool, it must contribute to the cultural level of our society. To actually try and raise that level, not merely help maintain the status quo. Above all, it should not contribute to the lowering of the level.

When people are delighted, enlightened, charmed or entertained by advertising, you automatically gain their gratitude and respect. You also manage to strike a warm responsive note between the consumer and the brand name that so moved him.

By keeping the public kindly disposed toward a product, an agency may, in the long run, be doing its client a far greater service than by merely hypoing immediate sales. It is possible to sell hard and still be entertaining at the same time. As long as you remove the dullness ingredient, you might just get through to somebody.

If there is any special word of advice I could give to Canadian advertisers it is this: Never underestimate the intelligence of the public. The average IQ is not that of a twelve year old, and people do not enjoy being treated as such by big business. The fact is it infuriates them.

Now, how can you be sure that the public is as fed up as Freberg has been claiming all these years? Well, until recently the only recorded statement by the people as to how they felt about commercials was issued by an organization called The League Against Obnoxious Television Commercials. The League's members in 34 states voted for the "terrible ten" and the "decent few" sent along every two months with the organization's Newsletter. In the last poll I saw, Procter and Gamble took five out of the ten brickbats.

Newspapers Make TV Survey

Now comes a report of an official large scale sampling of the people's true feelings, by a major company. The North American Newspaper Alliance, one of our largest syndicates for over forty years, has revealed some heartening facts... and I quote from the Saturday Review; April 10:

"Art for the sake of Money"

"N.A.N.A. has conducted an enormous nationwide poll on television programming and commercials, and the most recent results from 5,200 ballots all over the country ought to open eyes along Madison Avenue, particularly among those agencies specializing in TV advertising.

"American television viewers' reaction to TV commercials is violent and certain, and no holds are barred in the NANA balloting.

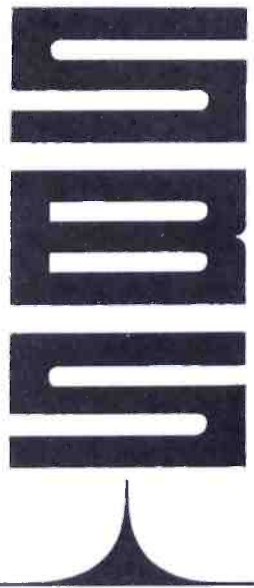

"The most unpopular single product commercial in America today is, this poll shows, Tareyton Cigarettes' Switch or Fight theme. The consensus of a poll three times as large as a Neilson sampling is that the Tareyton TV ad campaign is just plain silly.

Artful commercials will do more to shine up the tarnished image of advertising

"Some of the loudest hisses, however, are directed at soap and detergent commercials. Many viewers say they simply can't stand any more of them.

"Most unpopular commercials in this area appear to be the Ajax White Knight and, White Tornado and the Dash makes your washing machine clean like it's ten feet tall messages.

"Crest Toothpaste is unpopular for the repetitious nature of its commercials.

"Anacin and Excedrin are named as the worst offenders among drug products; according to the syndicate's voters, they gave more headaches than they cured."

The report goes on to name many other advertising villains.

Why Do Obnoxious Commercials Sell?

"Well" . . . one might ask, "if the people are as infuriated with these types of commercials as it appears, how do you explain the fact that a great many of these products have been successful at the sales level?"

Well, according to "Freberg's Law", which I have been preaching for the last nine years now, the consumers have long since reached the point of commercial saturation, and just dial most everything out . . . mentally . . . if not physically.

Thus, a major soap company, say, has to spend more and more to reach the poor consumer who is in the interest of his sanity, slowly building an immunity to commercials, which forces the soap company to have to spend even more, and the consumer, accordingly, to build more immunity.

Since advertising then, like the using of narcotics, must be taken in ever-increasing doses, it is easy to see why the annual costs keep soaring in America, until they have become what my friend Howard Gossage refers to as, "a fourteen billion dollar sledge hammer to drive a 39¢ thumb-tack".

Invasion Technique

Look, I'm as much in favor of advertising as you are. In principle. I realize what a vital role it plays in American and Canadian economy. But enough is enough! I mean fourteen billion dollars???? Come on now!

American manufacturers in their enthusiasm, (see greed), will drive us all into the laughing academy, if commercials keep accelerating the way they have in the last five years.

Companies like Alberto Culver, and Procter and Gamble use what I call the "Invasion of Normandy" technique, with wave after wave of commercials striking at the viewer's head each evening of his life. He tries hard not to listen, but the dead commercials keep piling up on the front of his forehead until the tanks finally push in right over the tops of them, and establish a beachhead in his brain.

Procter and Gamble, for example, is willing to spend more than any other advertiser — over 100 million dollars a year in television, to be successful at this type of brainwashing. Procter and Gamble's TV ad budget in 1964 was a mind-staggering one hundred and forty-eight million, seven hundred and eighty-three thousand dollars.

The word "budget" seems rather ludicrous, in context with that nifty sum.

But, if an advertiser has that kind of fortune and cares not one whit about the immorality of such brainwashing, then the approach suggested by P & G would be a good one to follow. On the other hand, if a client does not have a private gold mine, it is a foolhardy thing indeed to play the game according to the Hard Sell rule book . . . the costs of media, and public apathy being what they are.

There are many ways of breaking through the mediocrity barrier to reach the consumer at a far lower cost.

Here in Canada, I recently saw some terrific spots for Greb Hush Puppies, created by Gerry Goodis of Goodis Goldberg Soren. In America people like William Bernback, David Ogilvy, Howard Gossage, Steve Frankfurt of Y. & R. and many more have been breaking through with whimsy, beautiful art, arresting photography, and very few tigers, actually. I have broken through mostly with humor. But all of us share one thing in common . . . a profound respect for the intelligence of the consumer.

Through the excellent creative strides many advertisers and agencies are making today, many products are breaking through the mediocrity barrier. But all of our work is cut out for us. If you doubt that mediocrity still abounds, I beseech you again to turn on your television and watch, for a prolonged period of time.

The advantages of separating oneself from the garbage, become, I think, instantly apparent. And if the hard-sellists criticize you in the name of reality, for trying to bring artfulness or simply taste, into commercials, remember this: It was not artful or humorous or tasteful advertising that brought our profession to the state of dubious respect it enjoys in many quarters today.

Artful commercials will do more to shine up the tarnished image of advertising than all the defensive speeches to Rotary Clubs or all the institutional commercials being run by some agencies defending the role of advertising in our society. Let the people, rather, know advertising by its artistry, which, paradoxically, will come back to the advertiser a hundred-fold, like bread upon the airwaves.

There is an old vaudeville line which goes, "Don't applaud, throw money"! I always suspected that an entertained consumer, treated as though he had some degree of intelligence, out of sheer shock and appreciation would, in lieu of applauding, throw money at the point of sale.

In other words, "Ars Gratia Pecuniae". When I went into advertising this was pure theory. Today, seven years later, it has become my reality in advertising.

OVER THE DESK

... of shoes and ships and sealing-wax — of cabbages and kings

SOMETHING HAPPENED at the WAB Convention in Banff earlier this month which made me wonder if I was some sort of a Rip Van Winkle, wakening after a thirty-odd year old dream, and wondering where in hell I was.

It happened right after the annual dinner when the entertainment came on and I wondered if I was back in the dim dark (or dear old, depending, where you sit) ages of 1930 when I first got into a brand new business called Radio.

(Radio was an electronic device which carried the sound of entertaining concerts, dramas, comedy sketches and what were then called "programs" into the nation's living rooms.)

It was a nostalgic experience that night at Banff I can tell you.

My journalistic intuition told me that this was a flashback to the fore-runner of the present day's medium of communication called "Discotheque" and the "programs" were then what we now know as "time periods".

PEG MILLER and FRIEND

The foursome of Bill Walker (TV star of the same name); George Brown, (retail sales manager); Dalt Elton, (station manager) and Orville Kope, (ditto), kept two hundred broadcasters and their ladies cheering till the rafters rang and laughing till their tears started cheering too, throughout the gayest, zaniest hour or two (it seemed like ten minutes) of Peg Miller's (CJCA's creative director) super-script.

They awarded Peg an honorary WAB membership (along with BBG's Andrew Stewart and Carlyle Allison) which she accepted for herself and her four cohorts. She also won this paper's "Press Table Trophy", a portable typewriter. (See picture of presentation).

There was no doubt in the world about how much the audience enjoyed this show.

But never, ever do radio broadcasters purvey a solid hour or whatever it was of ribald humor, pre-written, pre-revised and pre-rehearsed.

If anyone comes in with the old bromide "Radio is working to a mass mentality with an average age of 12", phooey on 'em from a great height, because how old do broadcasters think their own mentalities are?

This piece kind of got off on a tangent for a moment, but the tribute remains, and the rumor that a similar show will be used to entertain us at next year's CAB Convention is one which I should dearly love to see materialize into fact.

WEDDING BELLS

JACK DAVIDSON, general manager of CJAY-TV, Winnipeg and his secretary, Daphne Rodgers, are altar-bound September 25.

This news flash was nearly left out because it came to light in Walter Dales' Winnipeg Letter which got squeezed out of this issue when some damn fool bought a want ad at the last moment. Wouldn't you know?

I must apologize to Jack and Daphne (and Walter too) for the brevity of this announcement, and assure them that its size bears no relationship to the length of the list of Broadcaster readers who will be wishing them well.

You'll be hearing from me again in a cuppla weeks, so, in the meantime, buzz me if you hear anything!

Prairie broadcasters' resolutions have teeth

by DICK LEWIS

THERE WAS A NOSTALGIC let's-get-at-it ring to the resolutions tabled and passed at the Western Association of Broadcasters convention in Banff this month. Presented by that old war horse, Gordon Love of CFCN Calgary, who was chairman of this committee, the especially important ones went like this:

Be it Resolved:

...request the Canadian Association of Broadcasters to "strengthen the committee to which is referred breaches of our Code of Ethics; furthermore that stations and individuals do not hesitate to call to the attention of this committee any and all programs and broadcasts that tend to degrade the industry or affect the good image of broadcasting in Canada. We further request that the Board courageously consider all recommendations from the Code of Ethics Committee."

...that the WAB "endorse the proposal, if acceptable to the Canadian Association of Broadcasters, in consultation with F. C. Jorgenson, (principal) of the Southern Alberta Institute of Technology and an appointed committee, assist in getting said course under way as soon as convenient, being in the best interests of the broadcasters." (This had reference to the offer of SAIT to offer a two year course in broadcasting if the industry wanted it).

...recommend to the Canadian Association of Broadcasters that they "set up a committee to examine the credentials, methods of instruction and all other essentials pertaining to the satisfactory teaching of broadcasting techniques in all its facets, with a view to granting a certificate of merit or some other method implying our complete approval of their methods and instructions, in other words, creating a situation paralleling our method of enfranchising advertising agencies."

...that the members of the Western Association of Broadcasters wish to express "our extreme displeasure with the activities of Expo '67, especially their activities that relegate the tax-paying private broadcasters to a secondary classification; and that we recommend to the directors of the Canadian Association of Broadcasters that they effectively request that the broadcasting industry receive their appropriate share of all money expended by this organization for publicity purposes, thus making it possible for the entire broadcasting industry to get behind this potentially great Canadian event."

Election of Officers:

Succeeding Bill Stovin, CKOM, Saskatoon, as president of the Western Association of Broadcasters is A. J. "Red" Hopps, 57, manager of CFRN Radio, Edmonton where he has spent his whole business career.

Serving on the new Board with Hopps are: Cam Perry, CFGP Grande Prairie, Alta.; Ron Skinner, CKOS-TV, Yorkton, Sask.; Jack M. Davidson, CJAY-TV, Winnipeg, Man.; Stuart Craig, CKX, Brandon, Man. With the exception of Stuart Craig, who was elected for a one-year term all directors serve for two years. Bill Stovin, as immediate past-president, remains on the board.

On the CAB Board, the remainder of the term of Don Hartford, who has moved to CFRB, Toronto, will be served out by Gordon Carter, CFCN, Calgary

Next year the WAB Convention will be held at Jasper, Alta., June 12-15.

POET'S CORNER

Joe Broadcaster wanted to sell,
When his business went lousy
as hell.
So he worked day and night;
To make the price right;
Then said: "Sell? What the Hell? Things are swell!"

GEOFF STIRLING (CKWW Windsor, CKGM Montreal, CKPM Ottawa etc.) and Allan Waters (CHUM Toronto, CJCH Halifax etc.) have offered to purchase one-third interests each in CKVR-TV Barrie, in a transaction that will leave Ralph Snelgrove, present majority shareholder of the Barrie station, with the remaining third.

An application for approval of the change in ownership will likely go before the Board of Broadcast Governors later this year.

Stirling called the move to three-way control "an attempt to broaden CKVR-TV to get more broadcasters into it and share the work load." He felt the station staff would remain as is.

Rumors suggesting the new CKVR management would attempt to relocate the station, or establish a transmitter, in Richmond Hill immediately north of Toronto were pooh-poohed by Stirling, though he said, "We've obviously looked at the possibility."

He believed there might be some confusion because the station is presently setting up a satellite transmitter in Collingwood, and said "It's the oldest thing in the world to hear stories that the Barrie station is moving."

Radio CKBB will apparently be unaffected by the ownership changes. Stirling said, "Ralph (Snelgrove) wants to maintain the radio station as sort of a private little station of his own."

Color Television

Manufacturers are geared to go

FIRST BROADCAST INDUSTRY reaction to State Secretary Lamontagne's go-ahead for color TV in Canada has varied from dismally pessimistic to enthusiastic. One of the more positive viewpoints was put forward by Dennis J. Olorenshaw, advertising manager for Canadian Admiral Corp. Ltd.

Olorenshaw said for the first time in the history of this country, privately-owned television stations have been given a "glorious opportunity" to seize the initiative in Canadian broadcasting - to jump in, and show what they can do. "It may be the only opportunity like this they'll ever get."

It's Olorenshaw's feeling that the private television stations in Canada are ahead of CBC-owned outlets in terms of existing color equipment installations. And current evidence suggests he's right.

The government evidently proposes that the million-or-more dollars worth of color equipment destined to be plugged into Expo '67's Broadcast Centre will revert to exclusive use by the CBC after the World's Fair, but outside of Montreal the CBC is likely to be dragging its tail on color installation, spokesmen feel.

And their view has been reinforced by Lamontagne, who said in the Commons June 16, "It will cost close to $40 million for the CBC to do a stage-by-stage conversion over a 15-year period. It's not something we are going to do right away. It will probably be done gradually, as black-and-white equipment becomes obsolete."

In the meantime the CTV Television Network will apparently be in the catbird seat. Only three of the network's eleven stations (Edmonton, Kitchener-Waterloo and Halifax, it's believed) presently lack color TV transmitters.

And Gordon Keeble, CTV executive vice-president, foresees no serious problem with microwave network color conversion. What has him worried is "a drastic shortage of color broadcast origination equipment - telecine chains, color cameras and color videotape recorders."

However one of Canada's major broadcast equipment manufacturers has reassuring words for Keeble and others concerned about the possible supply problem. A spokesman for the company says, "We don't see supply as a difficulty. Here's how it sits now:

(Several private broadcasters have evidently been reading Lamontagne's mind. They placed color equipment orders as much as six months ago.)

"We have orders for four color chains and we'll be delivering them on short notice - in December. Color videotape recorders will also probably be available in the fourth quarter of this year. On color cameras, we've already got eleven orders, and people who put in for them should be in a position to go on the air with the units by mid-66.

"Deliveries would be a lot better if there hadn't been the big rush on color in the States. And of course if there's a big Canadian demand the present delivery dates could change - but not to any great extent," the spokesman explained.

He went on to say there's no problem in getting new color transmitters to buyers, and noted that phase-equalizing equipment (needed for some existing Canadian station color transmitters, at a cost of $5,000 - 6000) is readily available.

Up-to-the-minute transistorized designs manufactured by the company have to be imported from the U. S., the spokesman noted - but again, "no problem."

CFTO-TV Toronto is one of the Canadian stations that anticipated Lamontagne's announcement. John Bassett, president of the station, said he made a decision some months ago and ordered color equipment. "We'll be equipped by October this year to program on film or tape," he stated.

Replacing CFTO's color facilities, (the station was originally set up to go with color in 1961, but later returned the equipment to the manufacturer) will cost the station "just under $200,000" according to Bassett.

At CTV, Gordon Keeble has put the network's immediate outlay (for color transmitting facilities, but no color program originating units) at $350-400,000.

Through the Magic of Recording CKPM brings you Canadian History in the Making

CANADIAN HISTORY MAKERS

Specially Produced by Canadians for Canadians

'64

This has been one of the most exciting years in our history. A year to remember, a year in which our great nation proudly emerged after long and bitter debate with a flag of its own. But it was also a year in which our parliament was seriously rent with accusations of scandal and worse. All these events were covered by CKPM and captured in living sound for you on the record "Canadian History Makers '64". Narrated by CKPM's Tom Cherrington with interviews by Paul Taylor.

THIS RECORD, THIS FACTUAL CHRONICLE $3.95 OF CANADA IS YOURS NOW FOR ONLY

"Mad Capp" *

DEREK MOORE

More precisely, at the CFQC weekend man, Derek Moore, director of entertainment fun every Saturday and Sunday afternoon on CFQC radio. Derek spins the top twenty hits, both pop and western, Saturday afternoon and devotes Sunday to pleasant music for Sunday drivers.

All part of CFQC's "something for everybody" policy that has made the station a community leader in Saskatoon. Everyone listens to CFQC and those all-important weekend hours are carefully plotted to capture the extra sets flicked on in leisure time. CFQC means a lot to the people in Saskatoon. It should mean a lot to your western media plans, always.

*Sketch of Derek by our own "Mad Capp" 'QC staff announcer Barry Bowman who doubles as a very talented artist. Typical of the myriad interests of each CFQC staff member, all of them with much to offer the station and the community.

THE NEW CANADA LABOUR (STANDARDS) CODE

Effective July 1, 1965

THE CODE COVERS EMPLOYMENT IN THE FOLLOWING INDUSTRIES:

- RAILWAYS operating beyond any one province
- HIGHWAY TRANSPORT – interprovincial or international
- PIPELINES extending beyond any one province
- TELEGRAPHS, and TELEPHONES except those operated wholly within a province
- all RADIO and T.V. BROADCASTING
- all SHIPPING and services connected with shipping
- FERRIES – interprovincial or international
- all AIR TRANSPORT
- all BANKS
- all URANIUM MINING and PROCESSING
- all GRAIN ELEVATORS
- all FLOUR and FEED MILLS, FEED WAREHOUSES and SEED CLEANING MILLS
- PRIMARY FISHING, where the fishermen work for wages
- most FEDERAL CROWN-CORPORATIONS

THE CODE SETS THESE STANDARDS:

1. A standard 8-hour day and a 40-hour week, with overtime limited to 8 hours a week and paid at one and a half times the regular rate.
2. A minimum hourly rate of pay of $1.25
3. Two weeks annual vacation with pay
4. Eight general holidays a year with pay

Where it can be shown that the immediate application of the new hours of work would be prejudicial to the interests of employees or detrimental to an industry's operation, the Minister of Labour may postpone the introduction of the hours of work standard to allow time for adjustments.

In industries operating only in a local area, the introduction of the new minimum wage may also be postponed.

For complete information on the new Code, write to the MONCTON CELEBRATES ITS 75TH. BIRTHDAY WITH A BOOM!

Moncton has long been the hub and distribution centre of the Maritimes. Now - 75 years young - it is also the centre of a tremendous industrial expansion. "This is a period", says Premier Louis J. Robichaud, "of prosperity for our province and people, and profitability for the promoters of industry". In 1964, new construction alone amounted to $234 million, & included a $29 million smelter to complement extensive mining operations; establishment of a chemical industrial park; construction of Canada's newest newsprint mill; and a number of new manufacturing plants came into production. Work is now underway on Atlantic Canada's largest hydro-electric project. So Lionel DOES sell in "A Market to be Reckoned With", and advertisers using the Lionel Television Network will share in the prosperity of the booming NEW New Brunswick.
