Snoopstar dogs Duet moves

by Juliana Koranteng

LONDON — The major companies' battle for control of music online distribution is heating up with Vivendi Universal and Sony Music moving forward with their joint project Duet, Napster's offer to settle with labels, and Bertelsmann's development of a new technology using MP3 files.

The latter system has been in development for the past few months by a Bertelsmann eCommerce Group (BeCG) subsidiary called Snoopstar, an information-technology development specialist company based in Hamburg. Using MP3 technology and involving 1,000 participants around the world, it is currently at the testing stage.

Circulating in the industry only as a "new file-swapping system" rumour until now, the news was confirmed last week by BeCG spokesman Alexander Adler, who said it had nothing to do with the file-sharing technology behind Napster.

Both however use MP3 technology. Nick Henry-Stolz, a music analyst at JP Morgan, London, agrees that Snoopstar's software has not been designed specifically to replace Napster.

But the nine-month-old Snoopstar was acquired by Bertelsmann, through BeCG, last summer, and before it formed an alliance with Napster late last year. This, he says, showed that Bertelsmann's decision to invest in file-sharing technology wasn't based on a whim. "This confirms how serious Bertelsmann has always been about the possibilities offered by file-sharing," Henry-Stolz notes.

Analysts suggest the Snoopstar development could be seen as a failsafe or parallel system Bertelsmann can use, depending on whether Napster will be ordered by the US courts to shut down or be allowed to continue trading. That court decision was pending (March 2) as M&M went to press.

To prevent it being shut down, Napster recently offered to compensate the music industry by paying $1 billion over the next five years for the use of authorised music. The revenue is expected to come from the paid-for version, which is set to launch in July. In a recent interview with the LA Times, Bertelsmann chairman and CEO Thomas Middelhoff confirmed the July launch date for the pay-ser-

David's profile boosted despite Brit awards snub

by Gareth Thomas & Gordon Masson

LONDON — It could have been the crowning of an amazing year for the 19-year-old UK artist Craig David. Instead, the Wildstar/Telstar R'n'B singer who emerged at the end of 1999 with Artful Dodger's Re-rewind, left the Brit Awards ceremony without a single award, despite being nominated in six categories.

The managing director of a UK-based record company not linked to the artist called the absence of David from the final list of accolades "a disgrace".

However, industry movers predict that the controversy surrounding David's absence from the list of winners at the

Jazz FM slides into the black

by Jon Heasman

LONDON — A combination of a smoother music policy and related CD sales has finally enabled the UK radio station Jazz FM to make a profit, 11 years after its London station went on air (March 1990).

In figures just released, Jazz FM—formerly Golden Rose Communications—which runs Jazz FM 102.2/London and Jazz FM 100.4/Manchester, recorded pre-tax profits of £60,000 (€ 93,900) for the six months ending December 31 2000, on revenues of £3.9 million. This contrasts with a £286,000 loss for the equivalent period last year.

Upfront

by Emmanuel Legrand, Music & Media editor-in-chief

Often in life it doesn't take much to gain self-confidence—or lose it.

The rule applies to business as well. Take Norway. By demographic standards, it's not a big country. Musically, it has suffered from an inferiority complex to neighbouring Sweden, recognised since the days of ABBA as a major source of repertoire.

However, things started to change for Norway a couple of years ago when Lene Marlin, a native of the Northern city of Tromsø, embarked on an international journey.

She was the proof the Norwegian music community needed that not only could they produce an artist of international calibre, but that they could also sell that artist themselves to the rest of the world.

This new self-confidence was certainly apparent last week at the by:Larm music festival and convention. As Virgin Records MD Per Erik Johansen—the architect behind Lene Marlin's success—said at by:Larm, what can make Norwegians proud is that Marlin's success—unlike, say A-ha's in the '80s—was that it originated from, and was co-ordinated by, the local Norwegian industry.

The creativity in Norway is buoyant, and an army of artists—some of whom featured in our Norway Spotlight last week—are ready to conquer the planet.

One black spot remains, though—Norwegian commercial radio still seems to be reluctant to give homegrown talent the exposure it needs in its own country. The criticism was heard many times at by:Larm and it is difficult to understand the reasons for such an attitude.

After all, it is far more gratifying to be part of a success story than left at the side of the road.

Briskeby, Kings Of Convenience, Maria Solheim, Ai Phoenix, Madruga-da and many more deserve attention, not least in their home country.

Radio news still adds local value

by Gareth Thomas

LONDON — News is still seen as a vital way for local music stations to attract listeners, according to delegates at the UK Radio Academy's News and Speech conference in London on February 27.

"Localness is vital," said Phil Dixon, managing director of GWR-owned Hot AC outlet Leicester

Sound. "But relevance of stories to our target audience is even more important. The test is whether the news is compelling and entertaining. It must pass the 'So what?' test."

Delegates heard that listeners to national public CHR station BBC Radio 1 will be getting more political coverage as the UK's general election approaches, following the recent appointment of the station's first-ever dedicated political reporter, Polly Billington.

"What's important is that the news is delivered in a way young people can understand," said Billington, who provides the political input to the station's news coverage, including the twice-daily Newsbeat programme. "My job is to focus on the stories and the personalities behind those stories and to make them accessible to a young audience."

Billington's appointment was made following audience research undertaken by Radio 1 which showed that, despite often being bored by politics, listeners were still interested in issues such as drink, drugs, crime and sport—all politically-tinged areas.

Meanwhile, local and regional stations are being specially targeted by the British government in its bid for re-election, and Prime Minister Tony Blair lunched with conference delegates at Downing Street. Blair's press secretary, Alistair Campbell, told journalists: "It's much more effective telling listeners that their local school around the corner is doing better, rather than saying that education is improving nationally."

Other topics that came under the conference spotlight included the future of radio regulation following the publication of the government's recent White Paper on communications reform (M&M, December 23).

Paul Brown, chief executive of commercial radio trade body CRCA, said he believed commercial radio was still "over-regulated, stifling choice and growth". He also said that the "jury was out" regarding the wisdom of the government's proposals for creation of new multi-media "super-regulator" Ofcom.

MTV Europe makes major market moves

by Wolfgang Spahr & Siri Stavenes Dove

LONDON — MTV Europe has made two key appointments in its biggest markets.

Swiss TV executive Catherine Mühlemann has been appointed managing director of MTV Central Europe, while Christine Boar has been made production and programming VP at VH1 UK and VH1 Classic, having previously held the equivalent position at MTV UK.

Mühlemann's hiring comes in the same week as official German TV ratings for the first four weeks of 2001 indicated that MTV Central has been overtaken once more by its local competitor Viva, which has a daily market share of 14.4%, compared to MTV's 10.2%.

Mühlemann, who will report to Brent Hansen, president/CEO of MTV Networks Europe, is currently head of programming at Zurich-based cable television station TV3, the leading commercial TV channel in her native Switzerland.

She will take up the MTV post on May 1, replacing Christiane zu Salm, who will become MD of commercial German broadcaster TM3 at the end of April. In her new Munich-based position, Mühlemann will oversee all of MTV Central's European activities, including programming and production, advertising sales, distribution, strategy/planning and marketing/PR. She also has a brief to further develop interactive content for platforms such as SMS, broadband and interactive TV.

London-based Christine Boar joined MTV Europe in 1996, having previously worked as a producer at public CHR station BBC Radio 1. At MTV, she started as VP programming and production before moving on to the position of director of talent and music for MTV Networks UK. One of her immediate tasks will be to increase VH1 UK's focus on newer artists and music.

"Christine has been a dedicated and valued team player at MTV Networks for five years, and has a knowledge and passion for music that is second to none," says MTV Networks UK managing director Michiel Bakker.

Sales boost for Grammis winners

by Johan Lindström

STOCKHOLM — A return to live TV coverage of the Swedish Grammis awards seems to have paid dividends for the country's record labels, with Grammis winners The Ark and Håkan Hellström both climbing back up the album charts (to numbers three and two respectively) in the week following the February 19 show.

Där Jag Ar E're Alltid Bast (Columbia), the current album by the ceremony's host Magnus Uggla, also returned to the chart in the week after the show. Some 1.1 million viewers saw TV4's live broadcast of the gala, held at Stockholm's Globe, which represented a slight increase on the audience figures for last year's recorded highlights.

TV4 has been broadcasting the Grammis awards since 1996. "We are very satisfied with how it turned out. It was exciting to broadcast live again, it gave the show more of an attitude," says TV4 executive producer Fredrik Arefalk.

The biggest winners were rock act Teddybears STHLM (MNW) and hip hop/rock artist Thomas Rusiak (Led Recordings/Universal). Teddybears, who last week announced they were switching labels to Sony Music, scooped the album of the year and pop/rock group of the year, with producer Fabian Torsson picking up producer of the year.

Rusiak, meanwhile, took home the male pop/rock, newcomer and music video awards. Virgin act The Ark were also multiple winners, receiving artists of the year and song of the year.

The Swedish government's annual export award was presented to ABBA's Björn Ulvaeus and Benny Andersson by international trade minister Lars Pagrotsky, while Jörgen Elofsson was named composer of the year for his work with Westlife and others.

Dutch CHR station Radio 538 officially opened its new studios in Hilversum on February 2, which it claims are "the most advanced in the Netherlands." One special feature, to facilitate stand-up DJing, is an ergonomic mixing desk which is variable in height. Pictured in the new studios are Radio 538 founder and board member Lex Harding (left) and Radio 538 managing director Erik de Zwart.

Call Out-UK to provide free music research

by Gareth Thomas

LONDON — Former Capital Radio group head of programmes Clive Dickens has teamed up with Peter Ruppert, founder of research company SongPeople.com, to launch Call Out-UK, a new service which will supply UK radio programmers and the music industry with free weekly music research.

Each week a panel of 200 13-34 year olds, split equally between the sexes, will give their verdicts on 15 tracks (a mix of current chart singles and new releases). Information on how the tracks score will be sent free every Friday to radio stations via Fastrax, the digital music delivery service. The research data will also be available free of charge to the music industry via Fastrax's web site www.fastrax.co.uk

"Music research is an essential tool for radio programmers who want audience feedback," says Dickens. "Only the big radio groups can currently afford to conduct this type of online research, and I felt that it was time to level the playing field and give everyone access to this data."

SongPeople currently conducts telephone-based music research for public CHR broadcaster BBC Radio 1 and MTV Networks Europe.

In addition to the aim of generating new broadcast clients who may not currently use music research, Call Out-UK's free service is being seen as a "loss-leader" to encourage more record companies to use the kind of music research already undertaken by most of the UK's big commercial radio groups.

"It is essential for the music industry in this country to factor in consumer taste into 'singles sales,'" says Dickens. "If they don't they are not keeping in touch with what consumers want."

"Teaming up with Fastrax gives us the opportunity to create an industry standard in online music research," adds SongPeople's Ruppert. "Reading and understanding consumer music preferences is an increasingly vital issue for the music and broadcasting industries, as sales charts don't truly represent popular taste."

Ruppert, a former head of music at MTV Germany, also reveals that there are plans to extend the Call Out-UK service into the rest of Europe.

TELEFONICA IN TALKS WITH PLANETA

MADRID — Telefonica Media, which owns Spanish network Onda Cero Radio (OCR), has been in talks with publishing company Planeta about a possible link-up. Planeta controls Radio España, which has 20 stations, after purchasing an additional 35% of the radio group last October. OCR, which owns 124 stations and is associated with some 200 more, plans to launch a new 100-station music network in September following other recent acquisitions (M&M, February 17).

VITAMINIC BOOST FOR IRELAND

DUBLIN — Italy-based music website Vitaminic has launched its service in Ireland (Vitaminic.ie)—the company's tenth local consumer portal, which follows its recent launch in Denmark. The UK office will oversee management of the Irish site, which will be operated by a dedicated team charged with developing unique content for the country. "The launch of this platform will offer real benefits to the Irish music industry," promises Vitaminic UK managing director Chris Cass (pictured).

CLASSIC FM RUNS TARGETED ADS

LONDON — UK national broadcaster Classic FM, part of the GWR Group, has become the first British station to broadcast separate advertisements on its Internet stream. The system, devised by US company Hiwire, allows the station's FM ad spots to be replaced online by ads targeted at listeners according to their age, gender and location. "With Hiwire's ad insertion technology, Classic FM's on-line listeners in cities like New York or Dallas are now receiving local advertisements, which is helping GWR generate additional online revenue," explains GWR commercial director Simon Ward.

MOVING CHAIRS

LONDON — Robin Banks (pictured) is joining London dance station Kiss 100 from March 5 to present its afternoon drive show. He joins from central Scotland's Beat 106, where he had been hosting the breakfast show. Banks will replace "Ugly" Phil O'Neil who has returned to Australia for family reasons.

BERLIN — Daniela Leubner has been named head of promotion at V2 Records Germany. Leubner, formerly head of promotion at Epic Records Germany, will report directly to Willy Ehmann, regional general manager GSA and Italy.

Norway comes in from the cold

The Norwegian music industry is finally becoming a force to be reckoned with. The international successes of the likes of Lene Marlin and Madrugada—soon to be followed by those of Briskeby or Bertine Zetlitz—has brought a new found self-confidence in the potential of Norwegian talent and the capacity of the industry to ensure home-grown talent gets global exposure.

This confidence was palpable in the various panels and discussions which took place February 20-25 at the by:Larm music festival and industry conference in Tromsø in the North of Norway, which offered a sunny, frozen winter landscape, surrounded by white mountains and ice cold sea.

Arctic edition

But even if the fourth by:Larm was dubbed the “arctic edition”, the 600 delegates and 70 acts attending quickly warmed to the numerous panels, talks and showcases in the Polar city.

Summarising the changes in the Norwegian music industry, Virgin Records Norway MD Per Erik Johansen—who was welcomed almost as a hero in his home town for engineering the success of another local, Lene Marlin (who sold 1.6 million albums worldwide)—said that the difference between now and 15 or 20 years ago with the success of A-ha is that “it was the success of a completely Norwegian team—the artist, the label, the management.”

His comment was echoed by “(Lene Marlin) was the success of a completely Norwegian team—the artist, the label, the management.”

Per Erik Johansen, MD, Virgin Records Norway

Marius Lillelien, music programmer at NRK PeTre. During a panel on the success story of Lene Marlin, that in previous by:Larm editions, he said the debates were “about the possibility of having success with our artists, this time, it has happened and it’s a good thing for everyone in the industry.”

For Johansen, Virgin has proven that it is possible to manage an international marketing and promotional campaign from “a small country like Norway” and be successful. He hopes the success will be emulated by others in the country, and judging by the intense activity planned by Norwegian labels and the wealth of talent displayed at by:Larm, 2001 may well be the year for Norwegian music.

Although some high profile participants like Ahmet Ertegun and Moby’s manager Eric Harle were unable to attend, the event welcomed a large share of international delegates.

Among the interna-

difficult to get the ball rolling.”

In the same panel, Christian Jebsen, head of music at commercial CHR station Radio 1, said that in order to be picked up by hit radio stations “you have to make pop music that’s pop music, not Norwegian. It has to fit in our format.”

Marketing methods

S2 Records Norway managing director Terje Engen, who was previously the managing director of Swedish indie label Sonet, noted, “It’s unfortunate that good old marketing has been replaced by TV advertising. It reminds me of when my mother drives her car. She thinks everything works out fine, but she doesn’t pay any attention to those in the ditches behind her.”

With regard to low domestic A&R share and higher international visibility, Singaas said it is all about refocusing local labels. “A couple of years back, [Universal] emerged from [PolyGram] which released 30 to 40 albums a year, and the staff didn’t necessarily know what was released,” he said. “That certainly had an impact on the market, and with today’s competition there needs to be an underlying idea behind the releases. Clarity hasn’t really been a trademark within the Norwegian industry. There’s a lot of competent musicians, but that doesn’t automatically lead to sales.”

One satisfying factor for the Norwegian music industry is that it is now capturing the interest of the government. Tore Sandvik, the secretary of state at Norway’s Ministry of Trade and Industry pledged to support the industry, saying: “Music has a given position in our policy. The officials can’t select what can be developed and marketed, but we can stimulate growth and development. With pulse, bureaucracy, creativity, politics, art, and regulations, we can create noise together.”

Sandvik expressed a wish from the ministry to be in closer contact with the music industry. “Music as a trade is important to Norwegian industry as a whole—a picture of Norway as a modern, culture rich nation strengthens the element of competition.”

Johansen

tional guests at by:Larm this year were Mute Records founder/president Daniel Miller, IFPI general counsel and executive director Allen Dixon, WIPO director of copyright law division Jørgen Blomqvist, and journalists from the UK and Germany.

by:Larm’s chairman Paal Ritter Schjerven, says the growing number of foreign guests is the proof that by:Larm is “regarded as an important event from an international perspective”.

Industry analysis

The Norwegian industry was analysed down to the smallest detail, including the role of music journalists, the relevance of WAP technology (under the title “WAP is crap?”) and the role of newly formed Music Export Norway.

The Norwegian music press, usually in the form of daily newspapers, were criticised for creating hype rather than informative reviews, and for their treatment of Norwegian artists. Virgin’s Johansen brought up the issue of lack of radio support for Norwegian acts and the lack of music on TV. He urged programmers to take more local acts into consideration and give them the exposure they deserve.

In one of the seminars, Universal Music Norway managing director Petter Singaas concurred with Johansen. He said: “Norway hasn’t got any TV shows for showcasing artists, the radio scene is indifferent, and we haven’t got any music magazines. It’s really

A platform for artists

As an ever-increasingly important showcase for new music, by:Larm has, in the last couple of years, helped bands such as Big Bang, Tungtvann, and Briskeby land contracts with Warner Music Norway, EMI Norsk and Universal Music Norway, respectively.

Among the musical highlights of numerous genres and styles at this year’s event was Global Tempera, a 90-minute concert featuring ECM Germany-signed Norwegian trumpet player Nils Petter Molvær, former Bel Canto vocalist Anneli Drecker, female singer Sainkho (from the republic of Tuva), U.S. bass player Bill Laswell, Tunisian vocalist/oud player Dhafer Youssef, and Norwegian guitarist Eivind Aarseth.

Overall, some 70 acts performed in the different clubs in Tromsø, covering a wide range of styles, from home-grown hip hop in Norwegian to trash metal and folk music. Maria Solheim, signed to indie label Kirkelig Kulturverksted as well as Warner act Tweeterfriendly Music, fronted by Californian lead singer Leslie Ahern, received a lot of attention, as did Tromsø-born Peter Chrystalief, who is being lauded as the new Espen

Lind. Fellow local rock act Sister Sinister are also ones to look out for—they scored points in the war for attention by starring as one of four bands in a NRK TV fly-on-the-wall documentary on Tromsø acts.

Virgin Records Norway’s freshly signed 18-year old Sondre Lerch also made waves with his singer songwriter skills, while Icon Of Coil’s innovative techno-metal hybrid showed why they recently have had great success in Germany.

“More than six hundred demos were sent in, which shows that the festival attracts newcomers to a larger and larger degree,” said by:Larm’s chairman Paal Ritter Schjerven.

This year’s by:Larm was heavily covered in the Norwegian media, and has created a buzz around next year’s event. As the delegates leave around NOK7 million (€850,000) in the host city, the event has become very popular for city councils around Norway, and not only for the purpose of giving their cities a “cool” quotient. The next by:Larm host will be announced in March, while one city has even started building extra hotels with the competition for the 2003 event in mind...

DANCE GROOVES

GIVE THE ALIGATOR A BONE

Although it is, in principle, a frightfully risqué song, DJ Aligator Project's Doggy Style (EMI/Denmark) is in fact very funny. The lyrics might well have a major dose of innuendo but the fact that a main part of the chorus is made up of the immortal words "woof woof" completely undermines the supposedly naughty nature of the tune. That said it is a well solid, commercial proposition with fizzy, upful music that recalls 2 Unlimited.

HOT & SPICY

The "Gork Edit" of Woodoorave by MADRAS (New Music International/Italy) sees a return to the sort of rhythmic stance last heard from Boney M during their mid '70s peak. The track may lack English lyrics but it does, however, have an instantly memorable shout-along chorus and a sort of verse vocal in an Indian style. In terms of sheer exuberant fun the track is both highly programmable and a surfer dancefloor behemoth.

INTO THE DEEP SWING

US duo Deep Swing were one of the sensations of the 1999 Winter Music Conference, a fact that has perhaps been somewhat obscured by the fuss surrounding Stardust. Their latest release, In The Music (Rise/Italy) is already deservedly making waves in Italy, where it topped the Suburbia radio chart and is currently climbing towards the top 20 of the singles sales chart. A laidback monologue, sax, some slapped bass and a layers of strings form the basis of a house track that is cool but far from icy. Different and refreshing.

A NEW NAME IN WHITE LIGHTS

Also refreshing but for very different reasons, the White Light EP by Quintessence (Dorado/UK) sees the return of jazz, mixed with sparse, tasteful electronica and featuring a superb new voice. This Finnish trio make a noise that mixes some of the scat and extemporisation of classic jazz with an admirably uncluttered approach to music-making. The result is four tracks that simply ooze class. Singer Emma Salokoski has a thoroughly elastic voice that is equally at home in the context of a pure jazz tune like White Light as it is on the sultry pop of Never. While comparisons to Erykah Badu, Sade and D'Angelo are inevitable, they should be seen as compliments for a superb new act rather than accusations of sameness.

AT HOME IN NEW YORK

With a three-night-a-week residency at New York's Au Bar, Mark Gorbulew is in an enviable position. Freed from the usual constraints of the dancefloor his sets tend towards the mellow, eclectic end of things, with a fair degree of exoticism thrown in. Le Groove Eclectique (Container/US) kicks off with the vocal from Arabian Pleasure, a thoroughly untypical track from Italian house maestros Mario Piu and Mauro Picotto, then flitting through "horizontal" territory like Matrass Mambo by Sven van Hees and Original Soulboy's classic Touch The Sun. Alongside that, less well known material like Yabiet by Amel Wahby, the shimmering Delmotion by De Fontaine, a fabulous Aquamarina by Intrallazi and Fratti plus Gorbulew's own Haman make for a splendid 70 minutes.

Addis Black Widow's belated Karma

by Kai R. Lofthus

Five years after the release of their debut album, Swedish hip hop/R&B-duo Addis Black Widow are finally set to hit paydirt on an international label—Rob Dickins' new UK-based Instant Karma.

Goes Around Comes Around was a new entry last week at 24 on M&M's Border Breakers chart and is already a top five hit in Scandinavia. Taken from their sophomore album, ABW, released February 26, the track is rapidly moving up the playlists at European radio. Philip Lundsgaard, head of music at CHR station The Voice in Copenhagen, says, "We're moving the song from evening rotation to C rotation next week. It's a great song. It's catchy and it's performed in a very extraordinary way." This view is echoed by Radiomafia in Finland's head of music Ville Vilén. "Like it often is today, this song has a very clever hook that doesn't get to you right away," he says. "After five times you get it and then it just gets better. It has gone into power rotation this week."

The band members—Pigeon from Addis Abeba in Ethiopia and Cream from Teheran, Iran—met as children in San Francisco before being reunited in Stockholm. Switching between the Swedish capital and London seemed natural after having their career threatened by continuous corporate upheaval since 1995. In 1994, they signed with Breakin Bread, an independent label based near Stockholm operated by Gordon Cyrus (a former member of Hut/Virgin UK-signed rock band Whale). He signed a distribution deal in January 1995 with Sonet, but that label's managing director Terje Engen left seven months later over troubles arising from the four-year old merger with PolyGram. The result was a flop for Addis Black Widow's debut album The Battle Of Adwa.

Addis Black Widow's current break came when Rob Dickins heard the band while on holiday.

"I have a house in France, and I remember I used to see the video to Innocent on MTV there," Dickins tells M&M. "So I had heard the song quite a lot. When Steve Fagnoli [the band's manager] played their new material for me, I said to him 'I love this, I've gotta meet them.'" After signing the act,

Dickins went to Stockholm to help them with the structure of their songs. "They have so many ideas, so it's just a matter of bringing through their greatest ideas and having to stop them at some point!"

"We had briefly heard about Rob Dickins before we signed with Instant Karma," says Cream. "We knew he had an ear for different sounds and that he had been in the business for a while. There was a choice between his company and two or three other labels which wanted to sign us at the time. It's a different story [with Instant Karma], because Rob owns the label and we also have a really good manager. We didn't have anyone [before]."

In the UK, a different single, Wait In Summer will be released on May 28. "I travelled Europe last autumn to present our up-and-coming releases, and [Sony Music Sweden] said they loved [Goes Around Comes Around]," explains Instant Karma director of international marketing Phil Straight. "We didn't intend to release that as a single ourselves, and it wasn't a conscious move either to break it in Scandinavia first." Instant Karma confirms that Goes Around Comes Around will be released in Germany and France shortly.

Roxy Music back on the road again

by Paul Sexton

With the news that Bryan Ferry, Phil Manzanera and Andy Mackay will head a Roxy Music arena tour starting June 9 in Dublin, the familiar media suspicion about rock reunions has largely been outweighed by the prospect of seeing one of Britain's truly seminal bands back in action.

It's 18 years since a North American tour signalled the end of the original Roxy, whose combination of nostalgic and futuristic elements with an individualistic fashion sense influenced glam, prog and Kraut-rock, the new romantic scene and contemporary bands such as Suede and Pulp. Even sax player Mackay confesses to being slightly taken aback by the continuing goodwill towards the band. "I'm amazed the reaction's been so positive," he confesses. "I thought we were going to get more flak about being too old, doing it for the money, blah blah." Guitarist Manzanera says the fact that

Roxy are not releasing any new material to accompany the tour makes the project far less complicated. "The equation is very simple. The audience know they're paying good money to come and see the songs they enjoyed; we know they enjoyed them, so automatically it's not 'them versus us,' it's all of us together."

Ferry adds that the trio are now in the process of putting together a band, with full-blown rehearsals set to start in late April. "We're in the process of putting together a band that can play all the stuff, because it stretches stylistically quite a long way. There's a lot of interesting stuff to cover, I think."

Ferry says that the live set will be a mixture of familiar tracks such as Street Life and Virginia Plain and the key album material. "You want to get a balance of both, the ones that were on the radio, and the ones that were never on the radio. So I hope it'll be a nice blend."

AIRBORNE

The pick of the week's new singles
by Raul Cairo and Siri Stavenes Dove

VANESSA AMOROSI SHINE

(Universal)
Release Date: January 29
After making an impact in her native Australia with Have A Look in 1999, Vanessa Amorosi came to worldwide attention when she performed its follow-up, Absolutely Everybody, at last year's Olympics and Paralympics opening ceremonies. When Absolutely Everybody came out in Europe late last year the track established her as fixture on mainstream radio. Shine is a well produced but by no means slick ballad, which is starting to impact radio as well. Holger Lachmann, head of music at German AC station 104.6 RTL explains why he waited before adding the song. "Although it's very different from its predecessor I think it's a great song," he begins. "We have waited with this one because Absolutely Everybody is still very big over here but when she performed Shine on TV recently we decided to add it and the listener response was quite encouraging," Lachmann continues. "We moved the track up into B-rotation—this means somewhere between 25 and 30 weekly plays." RC

Currently playing at: Bayern 3/Germany, 104.6 RTL/Germany, HR 3/Germany, SWR 3/Germany

BBMAK BACK HERE

(Telstar)
Release date: February 12 (UK), February 26 (Europe)

When BBMAK's debut single Back Here only peaked at 37 in the UK, the trio from the north-west of England decided to try their luck in the US instead. The boyband, who formed in 1996, were quickly picked up on by radio and toured the States with Britney Spears during the summer before embarking on a solo jaunt. As a result, Back Here stayed in the US top 20 for three months and their debut album Sooner Or Later sold over a million copies. No better time, then, to try again back home. Back Here has already entered at five in the UK singles chart and features guitars played by the boys themselves and predictably smooth vocals. The rest of Europe is also starting to pick up on the group and AC station, Rix FM in Sweden, was the first in the country to play the record. "It's a great track, and it's perfect for us," says head of music Anders Svensson. "It's done well in the US and the UK, and I hope our listeners will like it as well. It's the kind of song we need now, and I hope other stations will follow because it deserves to become a hit." The album will be released all over Europe on May 21. SSD

Currently playing at: Rix FM/Sweden, Radio Maximum/Russia, The Voice/Denmark, Sunshine 855 AM/UK, DR P3/Denmark, Radio Sky+/Estonia

PICK OF THE WEEK

ON THE AIR

M&M's weekly airplay analysis column

Veteran rockers Aerosmith and Rod Stewart are making an assault on M&M's European Radio Top 50 this week. Following the former's success with Jaded (Columbia), at 21 this week, Stewart enters at 41 with new track I Can't Deny It (Atlantic).

AC stations M-80 in Spain and Radio 2 in Denmark and rock/CHR station Virgin Radio in the UK are among the fans of the track. "It's a great pop song, probably the best Rod has come up with in the last few years," says music director at Virgin Radio, James Curran. He says that the quality of the track is largely due to the skills of songwriter Craig Alexander, who also has worked with Ronan Keating.

Virgin meanwhile is beefing up its live music output. The station has launched a new feature called Guest List Only, which takes bands back to where they first started out. Ocean Colour Scene recently played at the 100 Club in London's Oxford Street in front of 200 people. Listeners win tickets on air by answering band-related questions," so that we get some real fans," said Curran.

Back in the chart, US R'n'B artist R Kelly enters like a ray of sunlight at 29, with The Storm Is Over Now (Jive). It is the highest new entry this week and has been picked up by AC stations 104.6 RTL in Germany and BBC Radio 2 in the UK as well as CHR station Radio 538 in the Netherlands.

Ireland's U2 (pictured) are slowly inching their way up the European Radio Top 50 chart, and are now getting dangerously close to the number one spot, occupied by triple-Brits winner Robbie Williams' Supreme (Chrysalis). Stuck In A Moment You Can't Get Out Of (Island) goes up to two after 13 weeks in the chart. The Irish veterans themselves took two prizes at the Brit Awards, for best international act and for their outstanding contribution to music. Bono showed the band's support for Craig David, who was nominated for six awards but didn't win any, by singing lines from Walking Away over One Love on the night. The track in question, David's Walking Away (Wildtstar/Edel), is still popular on European radio, and goes up from nine to eight in the chart this week.

Swedish Eurythmics lookalikes Roxette are occupying the European airwaves with their new single The Centre Of The Heart (EMI). The track, which is currently getting a lot of support, especially from German radio stations, tops the Most Added chart this week and is guaranteed an entry in next week's Top 50.

Finally, some Irish candidates are queuing to get into the chart next week. Ronan Keating's Lovin' Each Day (Polydor) is rapidly growing on radio, and The Corrs' Give Me A Reason (143/Lava/Atlantic) is proving an equally popular choice among programmers.

The European Radio Top 50 chart is based on a weighted-scoring system. Songs score points by achieving airplay on all of M&M's reporting stations with contemporary music fulltime or during specific dayparts. Stations are weighted by market size and by the number of hours per week. TW = This Week, LW = Last Week, NE = New Entry, TS = Total Stations. Indicates singles which previously featured in the Border Breakers chart. Highest New Entry Greatest chart points gainer awards show, held February 26 at London's Earls Court, may well help to boost sales of his album Born To Do It, which has already sold 1.5 million copies in Britain and another three million worldwide.

Monica Marin, VP international marketing at edel, which handles David for Europe outside the UK, says: "He is getting a lot of publicity and exposure because of this, and this is boosting his profile in Europe."

Marin adds that David is nominated in most awards' ceremonies around Europe. "It looks like he is going to receive in the rest of Europe what he was denied in the UK," she says.

David's omission from the winners' list was also noted during the ceremony by award-presenters Elton John and DJ Pete Tong, as well as by David himself who performed on the night.

Rob Dickins, chairman of the British Phonographic Industry, suggested that the controversy was overblown. "The best thing is to perform on the show and win an award," he said. "The second best is to perform and third is to win an award."

But if David was this year's loser, then EMI/Chrysalis' Robbie Williams was the winner, walking off with three gongs—for Best Male Solo Artist, Best British Single and Best Video for Rock DJ. The tally takes Williams' Brits collection to a record 12 trophies.

Parlophone/EMI's Coldplay took two key awards: Best British Album, for Parachutes, and Best British Group. Island rock band U2 got a standing ovation on receiving Best International Group award, and the Special Award for Outstanding Contribution to Music.

Artists on EMI and its associated labels won the most awards, bagging six, while Universal acts took five. Sony notched two awards, while BMG and Warner took one each.

Internationally, the event continues to gain popularity and was broadcast on radio stations in 32 countries worldwide. "It was a great success and we had plenty of positive feedback from broadcasters," says

Murielle Ruyet, programme sales director at Wise Buddah, the UK production company responsible for the show's global radio syndication.

She estimates around 20 million people listened to the event worldwide. In Europe that figure was around 10 million with 22 countries, including Bosnia and Russia, taking the transmission, mainly live via satellite.

Broadcasters with their own on-site broadcast crew on the night included Italy's Hot AC network RTL 102.5, and London dance station Kiss FM. In addition, Spain's AC network Cadena 100 joined the ranks for the first time this year.

"The Brits is being seen as the music event of the year—a lot of people prefer it now to the Grammys. It's seen as more relevant to the youth market," says Ruyet. Out of the major European territories only France did not take the feed. "I think it may have had something to do with the Brits coming hot on the heels of the Victoires," conjectured Ruyet.

The event was broadcast the following night on commercial channel ITV in the UK and screened in the days after the event by most of the European countries which have secured broadcast rights.

Seventy countries around the world—around 20 of them in Europe—have taken the feed. For the first time, cable channel BBC America has secured the broadcast rights in the US. "People love the informality of the Brits," says Jane Small, director of international television at Eagle Rock, the company responsible for international TV sales. "It's an unpredictable, fun event."

Overall, the show was hailed as a success by the British industry. "We set out to do a show that represented what is going on and what was happening last year musically, and we achieved that," concluded Brits chairman Tony Wadsworth.

"We also set out to make the show better in the hall and I think we managed that as well. I'm really pleased with what we got."

vice and pleaded that Napster should be allowed to continue to operate during the transition.

The news of these developments comes on the heels (February 21) of Vivendi Universal's chairman Jean-Marie Messier's confirmation that subsidiary Universal Music Group and Sony Music Entertainment are jointly launching a "virtual jukebox" service this summer to rival Napster.

In fact as long ago as last May—before it was acquired by French media giant Vivendi—UMG had announced plans to jointly launch a subscription-based audio and video service with Sony Music. With Duet as a working title, the service is currently being tested in San Francisco using UMG's secure bluematter distribution platform. Messier estimated that Duet will offer up to 50% of the world's music by licensing tracks from other labels plus UMG and Sony's catalogues. In addition to subscription-based packages, it is expected to feature a pay-per-play option.

The recent revelations from Messier indicate that the race to offer consumers the first legitimate subscription-based file-sharing online music service is intensifying, according to Henry-Stolz.

He says services such as Duet—formed by the majors coming together—would be another route for them to enter the retail sector. Unfortunately, online retail has not been their strongest asset to date. "The majors have tried to integrate downward into online retail and failed," Henry-Stolz declares. "After all, what's happened to GetMusic? Who really remembers it (as a major music brand)?"

Analysts believe Messier's comment was a tactical ploy to show the industry that the Sony/UMG joint venture should be taken seriously and that for the time being he was not interested in working with Napster. "Vivendi and Universal are known for keeping their cards close to their chests, so I found Messier's decision to talk about Duet surprising," says analyst Simon Dyson at Informa Media Group, London. "But it's like a big card game in which no one wants to reveal their true hands. So it's difficult to know who's bluffing whom."

tors behind the company's move into the black has been its decision to enter the record business. The three labels owned by Jazz FM Enterprises—Jazz FM Records, Hed Kandi and Onion—accounted for 58% of turnover in the period.

"The whole thing feeds off itself," says Jazz FM programme director John Baish. "Part of the reason Jazz FM Enterprises is doing well is that we're releasing CDs that we make popular on the radio, and we are advertising them in the commercial breaks on the station."

Increased time spent listening to both Jazz FM outlets has also boosted the company's airtime sales revenues. Baish puts the 37% increase in listening hours during the past year down to the success of the US-inspired smooth jazz and soul format, which was introduced in 1999 to replace the station's more traditional jazz output during the daytime.

"There's no doubt that playing jazz from the '50s, '60s and '70s was never going to build an audience at breakfast time and during the day. We've proved that beyond any contestable doubt," says Baish. "We had to do something different, and there were lots of roads we could have taken."

He says the stations could have gone younger and more urban, or more intensively soul, but that they wanted a format that would keep the upmarket profile of their audience, and that was "going to stay broadly compatible with the traditional jazz that was, and is, working so well in the evening and weekends."

Baish also attributes the improved audience figures to employing personality presenters, particularly at breakfast, where Robbie Vincent in London and Mike Read in north west England have both proved big crowd pullers.

Julian Allitt, managing director of Jazz Radio/Berlin—one of the few other full-time jazz stations in Europe—says news of Jazz FM's profits is "very welcome, although not unexpected. They and ourselves are proving that jazz is actually a strong commercial format." Allitt adds that Jazz Radio, which has doubled its revenues every year in the past three years, also hopes to move into profit during the current financial year.

HOTLINE

Edited by Gareth Thomas & Siri Stavenes Dove

Competition is heating up in France for the national airplay monitoring tender launched by labels organisation SNEP. Hotline understands that three companies have made bids: newcomer Yacast, which has developed an online service, pan-European airplay data supplier Music Control, and the current contract holder, Ipsos Music, which took everyone by surprise by announcing a last-minute partnership with Mobiquid, a start-up company specialised in the instant recognition of music. SNEP should render its verdict by the end of March.

Former president/CEO of BMG Entertainment Strauss Zelnick (pictured) has joined the board of directors of San Francisco-based streaming music company Echo Networks and his holding company, zelnickmedia llc, has made an undisclosed cash investment in Echo.

Hotline has learned that Swedish Bonnier Radio Group is looking to expand into Denmark, as the company recently applied for the fourth national radio licence in the country.

UK-based, Storm Digital Broadcasting, run by ex - BBC Radio 1 DJ Bruno Brookes, reportedly plans to expand his Internet radio station StormLive into Sweden, as well as India and South Africa.

Universal topped the Dutch Edison awards, which took place in Amsterdam on February 27, with the label's artists taking home six of the 19 accolades. French jazz act St Germain (Blue Note/EMI) and Dutch country singer Ilse Delange (WEA) received two awards each.

Still with music awards, the Swedish Grammis, closely followed by the industry, obviously got the majors interested in the new hard rock trend. A week after Teddybears Sthlm won four Grammis, Sony Music snapped up the act from Stockholm-based independent label Music Network Records Group.

Staying in Sweden, former MD of Motor SE and EMA Telstar Management Petri H Lundén has launched Talent Trust, a Scandinavian artist management company owned and run by Lundén himself. The artist roster of the Gothenburg-based company includes the Cardigans, Joey Tempest and Weeping Willows.

Hotline hears that the NAB Europe Radio Conference has secured the approval of a leading European operator as a keynote speaker at the forthcoming event in Paris in November.

In the US, industry veteran Russ Thyret, has left Warner Bros. Records, where he served as chairman/CEO. Current president Phil Quartararo will assume day-to-day responsibility for the company, until Tom Whalley, president of Interscope Geffen A&M, joins in January 2002.

And finally, Italian tenor Luciano Pavarotti is to stand trial for tax evasion in his home town of Modena on May 2. If found guilty, he risks anything from one to three years' imprisonment. Pavarotti has been under investigation since 1996, but paid the amount he owed, L24 billion, to the similarly large and bearded Italian Minister of Finance Ottaviano Del Turco. However, under Italian law, paying up does not prevent penal action. The centre of the problem is the tenor's misleading declaration of L50 billion (€25.5 million) in royalties earned between 1989 and 1995.
